

SAM DICKSON

OUR Candidate for Lieutenant Governor
Democratic Primary August 8, 1978

Dickson for Lieutenant Governor, P.O. Box 1783, Decatur, Georgia 30030

At Last — A Voice for US

Sam Dickson, in declaring for the Lieutenant Governor's office, made the following statement: "We are going to raise the issues that the Atlanta political menagerie hoped would never be raised again."

One of these issues is the race issue, which the liberal news media and the power structure do not want discussed.

"Race is a legitimate issue. It is raised every day by blacks and other minority groups demanding some special favor, some new benefit. We whites cannot sit back and allow them to win by default. We owe it to our children to demand what is rightfully ours. I refuse to be intimidated by the liberals and sellout artists into dodging this issue. I am not anti-black, I am pro-white."

There is no issue so critical to the future of our country and our state as the race issue. For this reason, powerful forces are opposed to any candidate who questions the policies of the federal and local governments which work against the interests of the white majority. They immediately condemn anyone who stands up for whites as a "hater."

Here is what Sam Dickson has to say on this point: "If 'racist' is defined as someone who hates others because of their skin color, then I am not a racist. However, as I define the word 'racist,' it means someone who is proud of his race and wishes to protect it. Every sensible person should love his own people.

"I am white; I am proud to be a member of the race which built our civilization and culture. I do not apologize for promoting the just and legitimate interests of whites.

"I do not condemn the political behavior of blacks and other minority groups. These non-white minorities are behaving with good sense. They bloc vote for candidates who represent their interests. No one can blame them for this. However, the question I raise is this: Why do liberals and power structure elements condemn anyone who proposes that whites vote for what is good for them?

"Have we ever heard the liberals or news commentators condemn blacks for voting for Andrew Young and Maynard Jackson? Have we ever heard them say that the Jews are 'haters' or 'prejudiced' because they did not vote for what was good for Arabs? No. Only we whites are con-

Sam Dickson

A Lifetime in Georgia

Sam Glasgow Dickson was born March 6, 1947 in Atlanta. His whole life has been spent in our State, a place he loves and whose heritage he cherishes.

"I do not believe you can be a good American without being a good Southerner. I cannot understand the psychology of people who believe that they can show their love for humanity by hating their own race. It is physically painful to me that students at the University of Georgia and other schools are not allowed to play Dixie because of the demands and pretensions of a few blacks." Dickson's parents are the Reverend Bonneau Harris Dickson, former executive secretary of the Presbytery of Atlanta, and Elizabeth Beckman Dickson, a first grade school teacher.

Sam attended school in DeKalb County and graduated from Druid Hills High School in 1965.

In September, 1965 he entered the University of Georgia where he was to remain in undergraduate and law school for the next seven years. While a student at the University in Athens, he majored in history and political science and also found time to be active in student activities.

He was a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, Gridiron, Demosthenian Society, Blue Key and many other groups. In 1969 he graduated with general honors and entered the UGA Law School. In 1972 he graduated from law school and entered the United States Army through the ROTC program and served as a second lieutenant of the infantry branch at Fort Benning, Georgia.

Presently a practicing attorney in Decatur, Sam is a member of the State Bar of Georgia and the Decatur-DeKalb Bar Association. He is the author of three books on law.

Sam is a member of the North Avenue Presbyterian Church, the Atlanta Evening Optimist Club, the John B. Gordon Camp of the Sons of Confederate Veterans, and serves on the Board of Managers of the Atlanta Chapter of Sons of the American Revolution.

Sam announces his candidacy for Lieutenant Governor of Georgia in front of the statue of Tom Watson at the State Capitol on March 2nd.

GET THE ZELL OUT!

MILLER ESS

Zell Miller —

On the Wrong Side of Every Issue

Zell Miller is a self-proclaimed "liberal." As reported in the November 28, 1976 edition of The Atlanta Journal-Constitution: "Although most Georgia politicians would undoubtedly try to wash off with strong disinfectant the 'liberal' label, Miller accepts it without blushing."

Here are just a few of the liberal causes and positions Zell Miller has advocated:

Property Taxes

In 1976 Miller proposed a tax increase to pay for the public education of the handicapped, saying:

"There is no better way we could spend $15 million and I sincerely believe Georgians would pay that much and more in new taxes, if necessary, to get this job done completely..."

Zell favors higher taxes!

Anti-White Discrimination

As discussed in more detail elsewhere in this paper, Miller has endorsed quota hiring and open, legal discrimination against white workers.

Miller has also raised money for black-only voter registration drives. He has marched with Coretta King. He has publicly embraced anti-white radical Julian Bond, who greatly assisted Zell in his first race for Lieutenant Governor.

Miller uses the term "redneck" for any white person who criticizes him for his sellout to black pressure groups. "Redneck" is a hate term for white working people. Miller does not mention his use of the term "redneck" or his ties to black power when he is shuffling around with his country music routine.

Equal Rights Amendment

Miller has repeatedly lobbied and pressured the State Senate for ratification of the so-called Equal Rights Amendment. The ERA has been wisely rejected by the Georgia Legislature. It is opposed by people like former Senator Sam Ervin, the constitutional authority, who has said that the only ones the ERA would help would be the homosexuals.

The ERA would outlaw any distinction in the law based on sex. It would add nothing to the existing protections for women. What it would do is require a flat, linear equality and would stop the legislature and Congress from making reasonable, sensible distinctions between men and women.

Thus, for instance, if the United States went to war again and re-instated the draft, it would be unconstitutional to exempt women from the draft or to excuse them from military duty. Do we want women in infantry combat? The ERA would also make illegal fraternities, sororities, and all-girl or all-boy choirs in schools.

This crazy proposal is opposed by reasonable Georgians. But it is pushed by the radical fringe and Zell Miller.

Panama Canal Treaties

Miller has not been content to confine his liberal activities to Georgia affairs. He has publicly endorsed the Panama Canal treaties, under which America is supposed to surrender our canal to a Marxist dictator and pay him millions of dollars for the privilege of giving him our canal.

Public Employee Unions

Miller has close ties to the AFL-CIO. During his first campaign for Lieutenant Governor, Zell toured the state in the company of Herb Mabry, the AFL-CIO lobbyist for Georgia.

There is nothing wrong with Miller seeking the votes of labor, organized or unorganized. The problem is that Miller has gone so far as to endorse union organization of public employees and the right of public employees to strike.

Strikes by public employees against the public interest have paralyzed northern cities and states.

Miller says specifically that he would endorse the right of public school teachers to strike. This would give the radical teaching unions the power to close down our educational system, leading to increased property taxes for bigger and bigger school budgets.

MILLER SNEERS AT "REDNECKS"

Zell Miller is an expert at deceiving and duping the public. His greatest success in this area has been his "I love country music" routine which he uses to mask his betrayal of the rights and interests of white workers and their families.

Miller has energetically cultivated his image as a country music lover. He desperately needs this image to convince white people that he is their friend because he likes country music. The truth is that Miller thinks he is superior to white working people and is deeply ashamed of them. He has betrayed them at every opportunity.

Country music fans might be interested in Miller's use of the term "redneck." This word is an insult applied to white workers and white farmers, especially those of southern or Anglo-Saxon origin.

In his first campaign for Lieutenant Governor, Miller was exposed by his Republican opponent for having endorsed quota hiring and anti-white discrimination. Quota hiring and anti-white discrimination (often referred to as "affirmative action") are the methods used by the federal government to force businessmen to hire blacks and other minority groups who are less qualified than white applicants. This practice threatens the futures of the children of every white family in Georgia. It also means no jobs, poorer jobs, or no promotions for white workers. Almost every white worker has either a personal experience or a relative or a friend who has been discriminated against because he was white.

When Miller was running in 1974, he met with black groups and black leaders like Julian Bond and Maynard Jackson and promised to promote such discrimination if they would deliver the black bloc vote to him. Miller did not care about the suffering and misery this causes for white workers. His only concern was to win the election by selling out to unreasonable black demands so he can keep his snout in the public trough for four more years.

When his Republican opponent exposed Zell's sellout, Miller immediately lashed back. He did not deny the truth of the accusations, but attacked his opponent by saying: "His red neck is showing."

"Redneck" is a term of hatred and abuse toward whites. Now that we know Miller uses such a term to describe his own people, the Dickson campaign would like to know if he uses other ethnic epithets. No, of course not. Miller only uses such terms for his own people. He likes to use such language because it makes him feel superior to his own race, of which he is obviously ashamed.

If country music fans realized how Zell Miller is sneering at them as "rednecks," if they could know he is bartering away their children's futures, perhaps Zell would meet with a different reception at country music gatherings.

Here Zell rides the range...on Peachtree Street in Atlanta. This picture was on the cover of his campaign literature as part of his phony "country boy" image.

MILLER PUPPET OF BLACK POWER

Dickson for Lieutenant Governor, P.O. Box 1183, Decatur, Georgia 30030

In his propaganda sheet, The Miller Messenger, Zell included an article entitled "Zell's Love Affair with Country Music."

Since Miller seeks to hide his utter sellout to the demands of black racism under a mask of country music, we feel it necessary to inform the public about his "love affair" with anti-white political leaders.

True to his reputation as one of the most slippery and deceptive political tricksters in Georgia, Miller garnered tens of thousands of votes in his 1974 race by telling rural white Georgians that "Lester Maddox is like a second father to me." In this manner, Miller shrewdly implied that he agreed with the philosophy of the former governor.

At the same time, Miller was presenting a different image to his true political friends - the masters of the black bloc vote. Miller was cozying up to black power in Atlanta even as he sought to convince rural Georgians of his love for Lester Maddox. During this time Julian Bond held a cocktail party to help Zell.

Which is the real Zell Miller? Georgians found out after the election. Blacks were pleased, while Georgia's whites discovered that they had been duped. At his inauguration - after Maddox had been defeated - Miller went out of his way to kick Lester when he was down.

Did Zell feel any gratitude for Maddox's giving him a job as Executive Secretary to the Governor? Did Zell feel any duty to those Maddox supporters he had wooed with his "second father" line? No!

At the time of the inauguration, Miller sneered: "The people of Georgia have run down the curtain on the clown act of the last eight years." He then embraced Julian Bond.

Miller, as head of the State Senate, has power over committee appointments. After the election, he began the first of his pay-offs on the debt he owed black power by appointing Bond to a powerful Senate committee.

Once in office, Zell continued his love affair with black power. On January 15, 1977, Miller marched with Coretta King after attending memorial services in memory of Martin Luther King, Jr.

At King's grave in Atlanta, Zell held hands with Coretta, Maynard Jackson and Martin Luther King, Sr. and joined in singing "We Shall Overcome."

On numerous occasions Miller has publicly appeared with Coretta King. We reproduce here a picture of Zell and Coretta which appeared in the September 3, 1977 Atlanta Journal.

Miller also has close ties with black activist John Lewis. Lewis ran against 5th District Congressman Wyche Fowler, who is white. When Lewis and Fowler were facing each other in a run-off to fill the seat left vacant by Andrew Young, Miller campaigned for the black Lewis and against the white Fowler and passed out leaflets for Lewis on the streets of Atlanta. Despite Miller's efforts, the white candidate won the election.

Miller's connections with Lewis go far beyond merely trying to help him defeat one white for Congress. Lewis headed a black political group known as the Voter Education Project or the VEP. The VEP is a vote registration drive for blacks. It does not seek to register people. It seeks to register only blacks.

Miller has helped the VEP in two ways. He has helped raise money for its black-only voter registration drives. (Incidentally, Miller has never raised money for white only voter registration drives; he would denounce any such project as "racist.") He has aided the VEP by publicly endorsing the extension of the so-called Voting Rights Act of 1965. This act was passed after 5 Southern states voted for Goldwater in 1964 and was tailor-made to apply only to those states. It pro-

Zell Miller is not content with federal intervention in Georgia's affairs. His fund raising efforts for VEP are used to finance Project 23 black-only voter registration drives. The VEP has made it clear they plan to drive 23 counties into black rule.

It is interesting to note that at present more blacks are registered in Georgia in proportion to their numbers than whites. Miller cannot claim that he is helping an under-represented group. Whites are the ones needing voter registration drives.

We also reproduce this map from the May 21, 1977, issue of The Atlanta Journal and Constitution entitled "23 Areas May Be Targeted for the Election hibits those states, including Georgia, from requiring voters to be able to read or write. Northern states are exempted from this discriminatory anti-Georgia law. Yet, when it came up for extension in 1975, Miller endorsed and praised it. He knows he needs the votes of blacks who cannot read or write to stay in office.

Further, this act bans any changes in local government that do not increase black voting power. Albany, Monroe and Moultrie are some of the cities which have seen federal intervention simply because their new plans did not increase black voting power.

of Blacks." This article gives the details on "Project 23" which Miller has assisted by raising funds for the VEP. As stated in the article, it is hoped that not only will the local legislative seats, county commissions and offices fall under black rule, but blacks will be sought for the 2nd and 5th District Congressional seats.

We ask white residents of the following counties to spread the word about Zell's activities to bring their counties under black rule: Baker, Burke, Calhoun, Clay, Crawford, Dooley, Greene, Hancock, Jefferson, Macon, Marion, McIntosh, Peach, Quitman, Randolph, Stewart, Tallapoosa, Talbot, Terrell, Twiggs, Warren, Washington, and Webster.

Zell: Georgia's Slipperiest

Zell Miller has left a path even more erratic than a waterbug on LSD in his frantic maneuvering to keep on the public payroll.

In 1960 Miller called for an end to segregation. In 1966 he ran for Congress advocating the repeal of the Civil Rights Act. After Rep. Phil Landrum beat him, Zell wormed his way into the good graces of Governor Lester Maddox.

After being appointed State Chairman of the Democratic Party of Georgia, Miller campaigned fanatically for George McGovern, and was the only prominent Georgia official to do so.

In 1974, McGovern supporter Miller ran for Lt. Governor, telling the people of Georgia that Lester Maddox "is like a second father to me." At the same time, he attended cocktail parties thrown by Julian Bond and told blacks he supported anti-white discrimination.

After the votes were counted, Miller attacked Maddox and insulted him at the inauguration.

In 1975, Miller endorsed a ban on hand guns "whether hand gun control opponents like it or not." After a year passed, he attacked gun control. But Maynard Jackson revealed that Zell had made a secret deal to support gun control.

Dickson for Lt. Governor

TAX RELIEF NOW!

Dickson for Lieutenant Governor, P.O. Box 1183, Decatur, Georgia 30030

Property taxes are surging all over Georgia. This is a problem which affects all of us, whether we are suburbanites or farmers or businessmen. Many politicians have told us what cannot be done to reduce property taxes.

Sam Dickson tells us what can be done.

"Young couples just beginning their marriage, for the most part, simply cannot pay mortgage interest plus their property taxes. Elderly couples are being forced off the land they kept and improved over their lifetimes. These trends must - I repeat - MUST be stopped. And now. Right Now!

"We can and we must have property tax relief, if we are to avoid taxing Georgians, particularly those of fixed income, off their land. Farmers must be assisted in this regard by means of taxing farm land on its use and not its valuation. Florida has already made progress in this area.

"If necessary, we must adopt an extra one cent sales tax with a mandatory commensurate rollback in the county millage rate in order to reduce soaring property taxes.

"Furthermore, the laws must be revised to make sure that everyone pays fairly. Tax inequity is a monstrous scandal in Georgia.

Most Georgians don't know it, but we have one of the most poorly worded laws on the taxation of bank property and bank shares in the nation. Miller has had four years to work on this subject and press for a new law which would make the banks pay their just and fair shares. Instead he has - as usual - remained silent and done nothing. Meanwhile, because of the loopholes in the existing law, many banks are literally paying no taxes on bank shares and less than their share of property taxes. One of Georgia's greatest banking empires avoided taxes on bank shares last year in Fulton County.

Richmond County had to file suit in Augusta last year against one of the state's largest banks to try and get the courts to interpret the law so as to make this bank pay its taxes. Four other large banking empires have filed amicus curiae briefs as "friends of the demned if we vote as a bloc.

"This situation cannot continue any longer. We have a just and moral right to vote for a better future for ourselves and our families. In fact, we whites must demonstrate the same solidarity as the minorities - crossing regional, class and educational lines - or this country and civilization will die.

"In the Eaves scandal we saw the problem clearly focused. Whites on the police force were and are being discriminated against. They are being cheated of their rights to jobs and promotions because blacks are being assisted through cheating on their examinations.

"What did Zell Miller and the other civic leaders do about this? Did they immediately demand that Eaves be fired and indicted for his crimes? NO! They called for 'peace and quiet,' asking that everyone show 'restraint.'

"What about the policemen whose families have to do without because they are denied promotions and better pay? Does no one care about them? Zell Miller doesn't care. He is seeking the black vote by endorsing anti-white discrimination and doesn't care about the suffering of policemen and other white workers.

"Does anyone think for one moment that black leaders would be calling for 'restraint' if the situation were reversed and a white court" opposing the state and arguing that they shouldn't have to pay taxes.

"I do not blame the officers of the banks. They have a duty to their shareholders to avoid every tax they can. I blame the Zell Millers for allowing the situation to exist. Meanwhile, the State has lost millions of dollars in taxes from many of those banks while the Millers have taxed and taxed Eaves were guilty of assisting whites to cheat their way past the examinations? NO! Coretta would lead a march. Hosea would demonstrate. Andrew Young would get Jimmy Carter to withhold funds. Maynard Jackson would file a suit in federal court. They do not know the word 'restraint' when members of their own race are involved.

"But our white 'leadership' calls for 'restraint.' They can afford to show 'restraint.' They artfully insulate themselves from the problems they create for us by and taxed the homeowners and farmers.

"My friends, I pledge to you that this outrageous fraud will stop, when we win this campaign. We will have tax relief and "Zell's team" of bankers and other special interest groups will pay their share. Every property owner must join with us. If we can Get the Zell out, we can have property tax relief.

moving to North Atlanta so they can live in all-white neighborhoods. They have so much money they cannot even imagine the suffering caused white working people by 'reverse discrimination.' Some of them - like Zell Miller - have even found a way to get ahead in life, to get money, social prominence and power by going along and co-operating with the minorities against us. There are no words in the English language strong enough to describe this kind of traitor, this kind of greedy, callous, selfish psychology.

Ga's Slipperiest Politician

Next Governor Busbee came under Miller's eye. Zell endorsed the constitutional amendment to allow the governor to succeed himself. Then he changed his mind and attacked Busbee for supporting the measure. Finally, Zell said that he would support the amendment if Busbee would promise not to run.

Miller claims to be a clean and honest politician and makes a great show of revealing his campaign donors. But his lips are sealed about the strange deals some of his cronies are able to pull.

In 1975 Lt. Governor Miller was furnished with a car for his personal use by Lavonia auto dealer

Robert Meredith. Zell appointed Meredith to the State Properties Commission.

In 1977 the GBI charged that Meredith had forged 38 automobile titles during the past two years. Meredith was never prosecuted due to a legal technicality.

Meredith has also been named as the principal in the largest odometer rollback scheme in U.S. history, as well as pleading "no contest" to federal tax evasion charges.

Miller has refused to explain his relationship with Meredith or to comment on why he accepted a free car from a man he appointed to office.

Haven't we had enough of this kind of slippery, dishonest politician? It's time to get the Zell out!
