We Want Clean Air Now!

TEN WAYS TO CUT POLLUTION

The following actions, used in combination, could substantially reduce the air pollution now afflicting the global atmosphere. By employing existing technologies and techniques, we can both clean the air and diminish the threat of the greenhouse effect.

George Bush sent his half-baked clean air program to Congress in June and it appears as if it will be passed into law. The purpose of the plan is to "put America on the path toward markedly cleaner air", and it will take about twenty years to get that "markedly cleaner air" if Bush's assumptions and projections are correct. But there is no need to wait twenty years to end acid rain or to allow our children and old people, those who suffer most from smog, to breathe freely and healthily once again. The technology that can bring an end to smog and acid rain is available right now. If the government were not under the thumb of the rich special interests it could compel the capitalists to use that technology and America's air would become pure virtually overnight.

What technology are we talking about? The two most important factors in the air pollution problem are vehicles and power plants. An increase in average American automobile mileage of only one mile per gallon reduces carbon dioxide emissions by approximately 40 billion pounds per year. Right now General Motors has a car designed and tested that gets 60 miles per gallon in the city. Toyota has has a car that gets 100 mpg, and for those concerned about the safety of small cars, Volvo has tested a crashworthy automobile that gets 85 mpg in the city. Yet we will not see these cars on the market unless the government forces the automakers to ever-increasing standards because car companies make much greater profit on large gas-guzzlers. The law should require each car company's fleet to average 40mpg within 5 years and 50 mpg within 10 years.

CLEANING THE DIRTIEST FUEL

Most U.S. power plants are coal operated, and coal is the dirtiest fuel known to man. The coal is burned to make steam which turns turbines to produce electricity. Yet high-efficiency, low-pollution turbine systems are already on the market and are being produced by American companies. And where do they sell them? Mostly in Japan. General Electric, for example, sells natural gas-fired turbines that reduce air pollution by 50% to 99% (depending on the particular emission). One of the most efficient power plants in the world uses this turbine system. It is located in Futtsu, Japan.

New power plants should be required to switch to natural gas, while new processes can make the old coal-burning plants much cleaner and more efficient. Sweden and other countries use a technology known as fluidized-bed combustion which greatly reduces the amount of coal and energy which is lost up the smokestack. It is estimated that two-thirds of the energy is lost in this fashion. The process uses huge fans to hold the coal dust in suspension as it rises so that it can be thoroughly burned for greater efficiency. Variations on this theme will allow plants to emit only one-tenth of the sulfur dioxide (the primary cause of acid rain) permitted in U.S. plants, and one-sixth the oxides of nitrogen. Scrubbers added on to the smokestacks of power plants and other pollution producing factories can eliminate even more emissions. Such scrubbers are common in Germany, Austria and Japan but are rarely used in the U.S. These processes must be made mandatory for U.S. companies.

We can move away from power plants altogether by using the sort of fuel cells that are now being used to power our submarines, the space shuttle and some military installations. These are like huge batteries and they emit nothing. Already small fuel cells have been built that can power 25 homes. An experimental program with new houses should be begun in this area immediately.

CONSERVATION IS EFFICIENCY

The other key to ending pollution is energy conservation which is no more than simple efficiency. U.S. manufacturers use twice as much energy per unit of production as do Japanese firms. The same probably holds true for the average American consumer as vs. the average Japanese consumer of energy. High-efficiency light bulbs, equipment and appliances are already on the market for both the home and the factory. They are expensive in the short-run but cheap in the long-run. The government should require the low-efficiency items to be completely removed from the marketplace within five years. Moreover, every new home should be built with high-efficiency air conditioning and heating systems.

Cogeneration is a form of conservation that is now being extensively used in Europe. Excess heat and energy from industrial plants is captured and sold to the local power company which uses it to heat homes and offices. U.S. public utilities should be made responsible for establishing cogeneration programs in their regions.

In the very near future it is likely that we will be burning hydrogen gas in our cars, homes and factories. Though hydrogen gas is usually derived from natural gas, German companies have already developed a process that refines coal to produce pure carbon and hydrogen gas. Solar energy is also making great strides and may soon be economically competitive. Research and development in these areas should

Why the Chinese Uprising Failed

The students who led the uprising against the Communist government in China used the right code words to attract the attention of the Western press. Freedom and democracy, they cried, and the American mass media in particular responded in a fit of sympathetic titillation. No doubt the reporters were reminded of the "good old days" when "revolutionary" Jews such as Mark Rudd, Jerry Rubin and Abby Hoffman led equally mindless demonstrations.

The Chinese student leaders knew what buttons to push because, under the reforms begun by Deng Xiaoping in 1978, many of them were allowed to study in the West. And since Deng wanted to attract Western business and technology to China, then surely he could be pressured by foreign opinion, they thought. Guess again. That was only one of the many miscalculations of the student leaders and of the White "experts" who predicted that the students would alter the form of government in China.

THE NEW MANDARINS

It quickly became obvious that there were problems within the student leadership when they were asked about what freedom and democracy meant. Everyone had a different opinion and none of it sounded much like life in America. One female leader on the ABC show Nightline admitted as much when she said that the Chinese do not see America as the model of what China should become.

The Chinese students had no program, no ideology and no trained revolutionary cadre to guide them. So what did they really want? They wanted what their class has always wanted - more money, more power and more privilege for themselves. And that is why they were not able to secure a base of popular support amongst the workers and peasants, despite widespread dissatisfaction with Communism and with corruption and ineptitude in the ruling Party bureaucracy.

DENG XIAOPING

In Confucian China the students were respected as they would become members of the ruling class of mandarins, the technical experts who ran the vast bureaucratic machinery of the country, ostensibly for the benefit of the Emperor and be accelerated, not cut back. Greater efficiency will not only clean the air, it will protect us from foreign fuel embargoes and makes us strategically secure.

With all this available technology why is the plutocracy dragging its feet? Because it is a plutocracy, and the automakers do not want to see small cars replace large cars, and the utilities do not want to sell less electricity, and the oil companies do not want to sell less oil just for the benefit of clean air, healthy living conditions and national energy self-sufficiency.

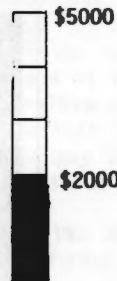

Moreover, the banks have sunk hundreds of billions of dollars in loans into oil-producing nations such as Mexico, Venezuela and Nigeria, and if the U.S. stops buying oil from these states the banks go down the tubes. If the politicians violate the will of the money-masters, they will not be politicians for long. Rest assured things will be a bit different in the new National Democratic order. GG

Empire, but more usually for the benefit of themselves.

Even in capitalist China (1911-1949), the students and intellectuals were prized for their knowledge and expertise and shared in the plenty of capitalism with the merchants and warlords, while the masses starved. Things changed radically in 1949 when the Communists took power.

Mao had little respect for the students and intellectuals because they had so little commitment to or respect for the people. After the revolution, the Communist Party represented the political will of the people and experts were used to carry out that will. No longer were the intellectuals able to shape the political will or chart the course of the nation. They suddenly became just workers like all the rest, and they did not like it. Mao even made the students do physical labor with the peasants and workers so they would come to understand and respect those who work with their hands instead of their minds.

In his reforming zeal, Deng released the students from physical labor and once again put experts and expertise on a pedestal. He thought this would help China modernize in industry and technology. But he did not improve the living conditions for China's students, and in the end it was the Party that still called the shots, not the intellectuals. The mixed messages were volatile. The students see themselves as the new mandarins and want the power and privileges that traditionally accompany mandarin (ruling class) status. But the Communists spent their lives struggling against class-consciousness, and they see the students as a reemergence of the old mandarin class that caused China's decline in the first place.

The Communist leaders know that the students do not give a damn about the peasants and the workers, and they know that if the intellectuals succeed in taking control that the revolution is lost - that China will once again become a land of haves and have nots in which the rich and powerful exploit the poor and powerless, a country divided against itself.

DIVIDED LEADERSHIP

The top rulers of China are not third generation revolutionaries, rather they are the men who spent years in the field fighting the armies of Chiang Kaishek and the Japanese. They gave up everything to battle for their vision of social justice and a great China. They endured and survived the Long March. They are not about to let all that they have struggled for go up in smoke. They are too tough and too committed to their ideals for that. What is surprising is that these men allowed the student demonstrations to go on as long as they did, not that they used massive force to crush them.

The Communist leadership was deeply divided because theoretical Communism has failed miserably, and now they must find an alternative without the benefit of ideological guidance. No one believes any longer in state control of the means of production. No one believes any longer in total control of the means of communication or the brutal suppression of all unorthodox opinion. The Stalinist model is dead. The Leninist model is dead. Marx's solutions have proven unfeasible. Confusion reigns in the Communist world and this caused the temporary paralysis in the Chinese government that encouraged the students to press on.

Some of the top leaders had lost faith in themselves and in their vision, but Deng and the old hardcore had not. Deng was once again able to outmaneuver his opponents on the ruling Politburo and take control of the situation. Those who wanted to negotiate with the students were purged and the crackdown began.

A WHIFF OF GRAPESHOT

During the French Revolution the Paris mob was able to topple one government after another until a young officer named Napoleon Bonaparte was made responsible for defending the government from the mob. He loaded his handful of artillery pieces with grapeshot, a form of shotgun round for cannon, and fired directly into the approaching mass of humanity. The mob dispersed, never to rise again. The Parisians were willing to kill, but were not willing to die for what they believed in.

Deng knew that if he played footsie with the demonstrators by using truncheons and water cannons instead of machineguns and tanks that the demonstrations would go on forever and would become bolder and bolder. The students rarely referred to the peasants without the adjective "stupid", so Deng assembled army units composed of "stupid peasants" to stamp out the rebellion. The peasant units carried out their task with considerable enthusiasm, killing hundreds of students. Lying comes as naturally to the Communists as it does to the Capitalists, so Deng's government immediately announced that there had been no killing in Beijing even though it was filmed and photographed by Western news agencies. This was a particularly stupid move that will further undermine the credibility of the leadership as the truth seeps out to masses.

If the workers had risen to support the students things might have been different, but they held back despite their diasaffection with Communism. They too did not trust the intellectuals and the workers of the mind. In fact, what is remarkable is the utter lack of support the uprising received outside of Beijing itself. Only in Shanghai were there sympathetic demonstrations. The rest of the country just waited to see who would win.

DOOMED FROM THE BEGINNING

The American press immediately tagged the crackdown a massacre by a fascist(?) government, and screamed that this would never happen in a "democratic" country, conveniently forgetting about the Bonus March massacre that Franklin Roosevelt ordered against unarmed WWI veterans in 1933, or the killing of students at Kent State and Berkeley, or all the other bloody repressions in American history. It is true that the student demonstrations of the late sixties were not normally put down with brutal force, but that was only because Jewish media and political power protected the Jewish-led rebellion from suppression. It petered out anyway for a lack of a coherent ideology, a workable program and a united, well-trained cadre - the same problems the Chinese students had. The Jewish leftists in America also failed to secure a base of popular support amongst the people despite widespread disaffection with the government, and the Chinese students similarly failed. Moreover, the Chinese students faced a government that, though initially divided, still believed in itself. The combination of factors spelled doom for the uprising. But China's troubles are far from over and the next generation of revolutionary leaders will learn from this failure. Communism's days are numbered all over the world. GG

NEW AMERICA - The Radical Voice of American Nationalism

New America is the ideological and historical journal of the National Democratic Front. It exposes the half-truths, historical lies and hypocrisies upon which the present plutocratic System is based, and it reveals and explains the eternal principles of nationalism that guide the NDF. Our ideas are drawn from an historical and scientific analysis that follows truth wherever it may lead. New America No.4 is concerned primarily with the issue of race:

- On Nationalism, Part IV: Racial Freedom This article outlines the NDF's official position on Race. Who is in, who is out, and why.
- Books in NDF Review
Drylongso by John Gwaltney - A most revealing self-portrait of Blacks and Black life in America. This book makes one realize how alien White culture is to Blacks, and how different we really are from one another.
The March Up Country by Harold Covington - A critical analysis of a book that purports to be a manual for White revolutionaries.

A Separatist Speaks

By Doug Christie

Ed.- The following article is reprinted from The Western Separatist Papers, a publication of the Western Canada Concept (WCC) which is a political party, led by Douglas Christie, dedicated to attaining the independence of Western Canada. The purpose of reprinting this piece is to remind us that the lies and hypocrisy that we are fighting are not specific to the U.S., but characterize all of the Western plutocracies. They are all part of the same fraud and once one falls, they are all imperiled. Mr. Christie is also a prominent Canadian trial lawyer who takes on difficult freedom of speech cases that no one else will touch. Ernst Zuendel is one of his clients. For information on the WCC write: WSP, P.O. Box 1133, Sooke, B.C., Western Canada V0S 1N0.

The laws of Canada present more reasons for the West to separate, for example:

1. A British Columbia judge sending pro-lifers to jail for picketing an abortuary and blocking the door says, "you can't choose to disobey the law even if you don't agree with it, that will lead to chaos." These people believe they are stopping murder.

Douglas Christie(l) with assistant Keltie Zubko and Ernst Zuendel(r).

At the same time, The Canadian government is spending millions prosecuting old men for events in 1939 to 1945. The reason: They chose to obey the law of their country in wartime. If they say that in defence, the answer is "you should have obeyed a higher law to protect human life!"

2. The Law Reform Commission passed a recommendation in its report to create the crime of feticide. Anyone who by negligence (e.g. a mother through drug abuse or a doctor through malpractice) causes the death or injury to a fetus should be prosecuted as a criminal. The same commission decided the deliberate killing of that same baby (by way of abortion) should be very easy in the first 22 weeks and relatively easy in the next 22 weeks.

3. The federal government is introducing more and more Third World immigrants to whom children are considered an asset while the original population is encouraged to abort its future generation.

4. The proposed new value added tax will soon mean every transaction from the simplest purchase to buying a house or seeing a dentist will attract federal tax over and over again. Ottawa, now a sea of patronage and corruption, will have an endless supply of new fresh water from the vital West.

5. The federal Customs Department declares that Customs will not stop Salman Rushdie's book The Satanic Verses even though it offends in varying degrees 300,000,000 Moslems and scores have died fighting against this book. It seems it isn't in Otto Jelinek's and the government's view, hate literature. Arthur Butz's book "The Hoax of the 20th Century" is still criminal although it has never been shown that anyone got so much as a bloody nose from reading or distributing it. So much for federal fairplay. Though censorship is wrong, if you censor one then censor all. Could it depend on whose ox is gored?

6. The federal government of Brian Mulroney has allowed Joe Clark to publicly condemn South Africa for its policies to the point of direct aid for Mozambique and Zimbabwe, both one-party communist governments, but Canada remains silent on Israeli shooting of hundreds of unarmed Palestinians. When will Canada send aid to them?

Ernst Zuendel on the Offensive

An Open Letter to the Defenders of Rushdie's Rights!

I am a writer and publisher whose books were and still are seized at the Canadian borders, banned by Canada Customs and subject to criminal prosecution.

I had my postal privileges revoked for a year, and had them restored only after an expensive legal battle.

I have been charged and dragged through lengthy court proceedings which bordered on a classic totalitarian-style show trial. The Judge presiding over this trial so twisted the laws out of shape that five Appeal Court Judges overturned the verdict and this ruling was upheld by the Supreme Court of Canada!

Nevertheless, I was recharged within 20 minutes of the Supreme Court's ruling and underwent another 4 month trial, all for the writings of another man, which I had merely reprinted.

I was then ~~once~~ again tried in a court presided over by a Judge who bent the rules out of shape and overturned long held legal traditions. I was convicted again, and given a nine month jail term!

The Appeal is now being worked on while I am totally silenced by a "judicial gag order".

While I have gone through these legal proceedings, my home has been bombed, my car severely damaged! I have been assaulted and beaten to the ground by hysterical demonstrators and I have been punched, spat at, and hit over the head with sticks on the court house steps.

I have been set on fire while handcuffed and in police custody!

I have been kicked out of lecture halls, had talks cancelled, been banned from entering Austria and the U.S.A. I have suffered relentless telephoned abuse, bomb and arson threats...all this because I dared to question a dogma - not for insulting the prophet Mohammed.

The Ayatollah in my case were the writers and broadcasters as well as the politicians and Judges of this land!

The very hypocrites who so loudly demand freedom of speech for Rushdie, demanded and still demand that I be jailed, deported and permanently silenced for blasphemy!

My crime? I blasphemed the temporal dogma of the Western World, what they like to call "The Holocaust".

Forgive me if I think little of your efforts and if I don't believe in the sincerity of your motives. For all your mouthings are not worth the paper they are printed on!

You are cowards and hypocrites!

SHORT BURSTS

Republikaners on the Rise

In the elections to the increasingly powerful European Parliament that took place on June 19th, the nationalist German Republikaner Party won 7% of the vote making it the 4th largest of German political parties. In 1992, the 12 nations of the European Community will drop all trade barriers and become one huge market. The European Parliament is responsible for the regulation of commerce between the nations of the EC. It is now being lobbied ferociously by American and European companies, industries and governments.

The Inevitable Jew in the Woodpile

Why is it that there always seems to be a Jew involved in every major political and financial scandal. House Speaker Jim Wright was selling influence to his Jewish "business partner" George Mallick, and Rep. Tony Coelho was involved in a shady junk bond deal with Thomas Spiegel, a Jewish S&L owner, and Michael Milken, the Jewish king of junk bonds. Both Jews are now under indictment for financial shenanigans in separate matters, Spiegel for abusing his S&L and Milken for his involvement in the Boesky web of corrupt stock and bond dealings. Mallick, incidentally, is a real estate developer who convinced Wright that there was nothing wrong with the Texas S&L industry (as it was going down the tubes due to fraud and mismanagement) and that the federal regulators were unduly harassing Texan bankers. Wright attempted to get the Home Loan Bank Board to back off Texas S&Ls but the scale of the scandal and the obvious abuse undid his efforts. Three out of every four Texas Savings & Loans went bankrupt in the '80's. The indictment of executives are still rolling in.

The Power of the Press

Both Wright and Coelho complained that the press was changing the rules of the game in midstream in order to get them. There is a lot of truth to this. The top Republican in the House, Newt Gingrich, started the ethics charges against Wright but the press, particularly the Washington Post, saw the opportunity to assert itself and exploited the situation. The sort of influence-peddling that the Post focused on is the fuel of Congress. The fact that the media is now examining it closely and implying that it is unethical sent shivers through the body of Congress. Wright was offered up as sacrificial lamb but many politicians are wondering aloud as to what is going on. Doesn't the press know how the System works? Of course it does, and that is the whole point.

The media is upset that 98% of Representatives and Senators are reelected. Congressional campaigns have developed into such huge money-machines that incumbents are virtually invulnerable. This has seemingly diminished the power of the press to affect elections and that makes the media-masters unhappy. The Post wanted to demonstrate to the politicians that it could change the rules of game at any moment - that it was still boss. It took on the most powerful politician in the Congress and destroyed him. Naturally, the Post claimed that the "people" were now displeased with the ethical behavior of their politicians, but the people long ago recognized that Congress had sold its soul to the rich special-interests. That is why the people do not vote. Less than 38% turn out for Congressional elections, and the media does not really care as long as the System is not threatened by this lack of support. Wright was corrupt, but so are all the rest. The media made politicians understand just how vulnerable they really are to the spotlight of the press.

Now that the point has been made the media-masters will back off because they do not want to completely undermine the corrupt System that gives them so much power. But every so often the politicians need to be reminded that they are the puppets and not the puppeteers.

The Rich Get Richer

According to David Morris, a columnist for the St. Paul Pioneer Press Dispatch, over the past eleven years the concentration of wealth in the hands of the rich has increased enormously. One percent of the population has become 50% wealthier while eighty percent have suffered declining income. Since 1980 the number of millionaires has increased by 145% while 11% of all Americans (9 million households) have no assets at all. Over thirty million Americans live in poverty with one million homeless on the streets. Just be thankful that we are living in the longest economic boom since the Great Depression.

LETTERS

Dear Sirs,

Enclosed find a $20.00 money order. Please send videotape #3, White Unity Day March and New America #4. I could use some business cards if you have any.

I have been disturbed of late while reading some of the other racist publications. They seem to be getting away from the idea of separate racial homelands on U.S. soil, preferring to wage immediate, all-out war against everyone and everything. Don't they realize we can't get the cooperation of other races unless we offer them something besides death or exile to a strange environment which amounts to the same? These people can't seem to comprehend that we will never be able to kick anyone's butt until we take the first step of having our own government and land with an all-White army and police force....

I had to laugh when one racist wrote that White property owners won't want to give up their land to make racial homelands. In another few decades these people will be fleeing for their lives and will be happy to find any country that will give them safe harbor....

What gets me are statements in other publications like, "We will have a real holocaust this time," or "The Jews will be smoke in the wind." How many converts do they expect to win with that line? After all, there are only so many serial killers in the world. These people call themselves National Socialists, but if the NSDAP had used that platform it wouldn't have taken the post of dog-catcher.

What the hell good is exposing the Holocaust myth and then turning around and saying you want to make it real? These guys are PR geniuses. Way to go. Thank you Baron Rothschild....

I have the greatest respect for the Metzgers, the skinheads and, of course, the NDF, our future government. Thank you so much for being there and caring.

Love for all White warrior people,
Frank Darby
Nevada

Dear Gary,

Thank you for the latest issue of New America and the NDF's Program of Democratic Nationalism. I found them interesting. I am in total agreement with your program, particularly the point in Foreign Policy where you advocate a confederation of White nations who will adopt an international language which will be taught as the second language in all of the schools of the confederated nations. This is the essence of true racial nationalism where we have unity within cultural diversity, where we can communicate in a neutral language to benefit from each other. With this policy there will be no room for cultural imperialism which is oppressive and therefore divisive. This neutral language will be conducive to real unity and amity amongst our nations. In the meantime, forward to our eventual victory,

Dear Gary,

Would you be so kind as to send me a copy of New America No.4. I enclose three dollars for it. Also, I would like you to know that I remail my copy of The Nationalist to people I think might be interested.
