Into the Quagmire of Imperialism

Try as he might to get a quick victory over Iraq and then get out, George Bush is being slowly drawn into the Middle East cauldron by forces beyond his control. These are the forces inherent in imperialism, accelerated by the power of the Jewish-controlled media.

The justification for our intervention was that we were trying to bring justice to the world in a new kind of White man's burden, specifically, we fought to free a small people (the Kuwaitis) from the tyranny of a new Hitler (Saddam Hussein.) And during the course of this crusade, Bush and his CIA encouraged another small people, the Kurds, as well as the Shiite Moslems to revolt against their oppressor and overthrow Saddam Hussein, which they did. Or at least they tried only to find that the U.S. had no intentions of supporting their revolt as it wanted out of there once it had victory in hand.

But what about fighting tyranny? Ah, there's the rub. The logic of our imperialism demands that the Kurds too be freed from oppression, and the Jewish media played the card to the hilt, suddenly discovering Kurdish suffering, which it had studiously ignored for decades while the Turks, Arabs and Persians took turns slaughtering the Kurds.

A Concerted Effort

Even the images of starving Black African babies (which are always interviewed and photographed by well-fed reporters from fabulously rich television networks whose profits somehow never make it to charities in Africa) were momentarily pushed off the TV screens for this concerted effort to draw Bush into the Middle Eastern quagmire. And all the liberal and conservative commentators, from Sam Donaldson to Pat Buchanan, said Bush had to get involved as it was the right thing to do, despite the obvious risks. So Bush was dragged into the quicksand, demonstrating how little real power a President has, even in foreign policy.

The Jews were delighted and the New York Times and A.M. Rosenthal crowed their victory. Now the U.S. must administer a 50x100 mile area of Iraq for the benefit of the Kurds, and the area continues to grow. And soon the U.S. will find itself attempting to control the Arabs as the Jews do, and will find itself fighting Arabs and killing Arabs and painting Arabs always as the evil enemy. Foreign policy by media had never been so effective. Media power, which had been used like a bludgeon during the Vietnam War, was now being manipulated like a fine surgical tool.

But the press lords only took advantage of the real problem, and that problem is imperialism itself. In seeking to control other races the White race has only undermined its own unity and strength. When we conquer colored populations, the rich aristocrats and capitalists bring the non-Whites back as slaves or wage-slaves as they apparently prefer the complete submission and subservient attitudes of the captive races to living in more or less equality with their own kind. They surround themselves with colored servants and workers, and they lord these symbols of possession and status over their fellow Whites. Prestige, status and dominance is what aristocracy and capitalism are all about, and imperialism stems naturally from them, as does discord, class conflict and disunity. If Southern aristocrats did not want to live amongst Black slaves and if Northern capitalists did not want cheap colored labor, America would be as White as any European nation.

Because imperialistic exploitation is so obviously evil and offends the inherent sense of social justice that exists in the White people, the imperialists generate all sorts of rationalizations to justify their base policy. Hence we derive the many forms of the White man's burden: we must civilize these poor people, educate them, free them, protect them - No! We must leave them alone! That is our only duty to them and it is the primary duty that we owe our own people.

The coloreds cannot be White and will never be happy trying. More importantly, the attendant consequences of imperialism undermine the physical homogeneity and the moral unity of our own kind. We must stop trying to control others and right ourselves.

If we wish to expand then we must do so into the void, into the emptiness of space, and leave those areas populated by colored peoples to their own devices. America is powerful where Mexico is not simply because it was virtually uninhabited when the White man arrived. Expanding into colored populations is racial and cultural suicide. Imperialism has done our race incalculable damage, and under White Nationalism it will come to an end. GG

A Surprise Commentary On Modern Art

Ed.- We have received so much mail of late that most of this issue is devoted to our readers comments and submissions. Jim DeWitt of Alabama wrote, "I appreciated your article on modern art in the latest issue of The Nationalist. Here are several related items that may be of interest to you." Included in the fascinating package relating to the question of abstract art was the following transcript of a radio commentary by Paul Harvey, with the

I have no expectation that what I am about to say will resolve, once and for all, the continuing debate over so-called "modern art."

As some people are turned off by it, some are turned on by it.

And whatever protestations are provoked during these next three minutes, Paul Harvey is not taking sides.

Defenders of contemporary art forms in the image of Picasso and Dali and Monet explain that no artist can compete with the modern camera when it comes to "realism." The artist, therefore, has resorted to "surrealism" as a means of adding a third - or even a fourth - dimension to art.

The impressionist encourages the viewers imagination to soar to limitless heights.

You, therefore, are expected to look at a cubist's cubes and within your mind's eye you are expected to make of those lines, blobs and colors "your own picture."

And if you are incapable of enjoying this experience, the modern artist will patronizingly suggest that you revert to enjoyment of some art form which does not require an educated imagination.

Some of us have suspected that some modern artists were pulling the canvas over our eyes to disguise their own ineptness but - to say it candidly - we were afraid to call junk junk.

Whatever the future for these questionable art forms, we who do not dig them will not have to be afraid of them anymore.

Picasso godfathered much of the way-out painting and sculpture which intimidated us.

To this day Picasso's bizarre sculpture, five stories high, is the centerpiece for the city of Chicago...

Picasso paintings sell for hundreds of thousands of dollars. I have here an interview with Picasso published in the French magazine, La Croix.

The interviewer was the respected Italian author, Giovanni Papini.

I suspect the reason the interview did not receive more widespread attention heretofore is that it might shrink the values of certain art treasures including those which Picasso left in his personal estate.

Any way, this is what Picasso himself had to say:

"Most people today can no longer expect to receive consolation and exaltation from art. The refined, the rich, the professional do-nothings, the distillers of quintessence, desire only the peculiar, the sensational, the eccentric, the scandalous. And I, since the advent of Cubism, have fed these fellows what they wanted and satisfied these critics with all the ridiculous ideas that passed through my head. The less they understood me the more they admired me! Through amusing myself with all these farces I became celebrated and rich. I do not have the effrontery to consider myself an artist, not in the grand old meaning of the word. Titian, Rembrandt and Goya were the great painters. I am only a public clown, a mountebank." Endquote.

A "mountebank" is a pretender, a charlatan, an imposter. Now you know THE REST OF THE STORY.

How many other Jewish charlatans have played similar flimflams with the full backing of the Jewish media. "With all the ridiculous ideas that passed through my head - The less they understood me the more they admired me." You college students should try to get your physics professors to explain Einstein's theories to you, and get ready for a good laugh. They do not understand any more of it than you do, but oh do they admire.

Was Einstein's "genius" the invention of Ullstein Verlag, the huge Jewish-owned publishing house, as his German critics contend. Of course, we now hear none of the scientific criticism that was heaped on Einstein's theories by the German scientific community as Ullstein Verlag could not compare with the grip the Jews have on the American press and media of today. If it can be done with art which is right in front of your face, then why not with science which is so much more difficult to fathom. But this is a subject for another article on another day.

A final quote [Life magazine, Dec. 27, 1968] from our great pretender Pablo Ruiz Picasso:

"When I am alone with myself, I have not the courage to think of myself as an artist in the great and ancient sense of the term. Giotto, Titian, Rembrandt and Goya were the great painters; I am only a public entertainer who has understood his times and has exhausted as best he could the imbecility, the vanity, the cupidity of his contemporaries. Mine is a bitter confession, more painful than it may appear, but it has the merit of being sincere."

Another Jew for the couch, which brings to mind another great Jewish scam. Wonder if Picasso, Einstein and Freud ever got together to compare notes on their art....

LETTERS

Very much like your comments about religion. It seems to me that everyone would benefit if they believed in your religion, even those who consider themselves our enemies. Isn't their religion a liability to them just as it is to us? If a new religion based on the biological reality of the human condition could be put in place would that not effectively end or reduce our present problems? Would it not have a beneficial effect on all people? If we changed the thrust of our movement to concentrate more in this direction would that not blunt the effect of our opponent's propaganda against us?

Believing as I do, I still very much enjoyed your article "TOWARD A NEW SPIRITUALITY." It brought to mind Finlay of South Africa whose new book is entitled Out of Tommorrow. It is a MUST read for all those who fearlessly seek the truth.... While on the subject of seeking the truth I highly advise Professor Waddell's The British Edda and The Makers of Civilization in Race in History....

Since a separate state for the Kurds will surely prove to be the cause of future turmoil throughout the Middle East, it is no wonder that the Israel-firsters, for their own ulterior motives, are leading the demand for a Kurdish homeland. Peace in the Middle East carries no percentage for the Israelis; it would obviate the necessity for their incessant Chicken Little cries of impending doom that are inevitably followed by demands that we supply more and more sophisticated weapons and increasing amounts of American tax dollars to keep the fragile Israeli economy afloat. We Americans are not soon to be relieved of this albatross hanging around our necks.

Those plying the cause of the Kurds conveniently leave unmentioned the sadistic part played by these people in the genocide perpetrated against the Armenian Christians, the same Christians Senator Dole attempted to include in a Congressional resolution memorializing victims of genocide. The resulting uproar from the Jews and their supporters, fearful that naming any other group would diminish the magnitude of Jewish lives lost in the Nazi holocaust, was such that the Senator prudently backed down. Also left unmentioned in the sympathy expressed for the Kurds is the fact that they practice a form of fundamentalist Islam that is considerably to the right of the Ayatollah Khomeini. The U.S. government, without thinking, got itself involved with the Islamic fundamentalists in Iran and Afghanistan, to its regret; now, others want us to make the same mistake with the Kurds.

I became aware of the existence of the National Democratic Front only recently. I was intrigued by my first contact and soon I had invested a fair amount of money in back issues and audiotapes. I then earnestly read and listened to these things. They were very interesting, and they indicated that the NDF represented a fresh break from all prior White nationalist organizations. There was leadership and organization. Gone were the fascist salutes, the brown shirts, the white sheets and the swastikas.

On one tape there is a discussion concerning a ban on the use of alcoholic beverages on the part of members of the NDF. Various worthy reasons are put forth to support this rule, and these reasons reflect concern or suggest a concern by the leadership for the personal conduct of the members and how that conduct contributes to the Cause.

I listened to all the other tapes and I read all of the back issues, and nowhere else, with the exception of the issue of homosexuality, did I notice any other such concern.

This is a pity because I think that the leadership of the NDF is missing something. The use of alcohol or any other recreational chemical is bad for a number of reasons. There is the threat of dependency, the danger, the bad image, the waste of money, the distraction from reality, and so on. But the use of recreational chemicals or the addiction to the recreational chemicals is not the only thing which causes this.

There are millions upon millions of White American men, and probably quite a few members of your organization (and maybe even yourself) who are, if not addicted to recreational chemicals, are addicted to recreation.

I am not talking here about exercise, or personal athletic activity, nor am I talking about the weekend movie with the wife, or an occasional concert, or visit to the favorite fishing pond. I would be the first to proclaim that the casual use of recreation is a good thing. I am talking about the relentless escapism practised by both genders of Americans but especially by men in the form of constant viewing of televised spectator sports....

This is what is wrong with the imbibing of spectator sports:

1) It is always addictive. Nobody can consume just one baseball game. Eventually everyone will have their favorite team and want to watch it all the time.

2) The addiction is impossible to break. Nobody is known to have ever given up their obsession with spectator sports.

3) It robs men of their masculinity. Spectator sports channelizes the masculinity of perfectly healthy and normal men into concern that are trivial, leaving them with no energy left to pursue other matters.

4) Spectator sports is a diversion from reality. Nothing that happens in the arena is important, yet millions upon millions of American men spend large portions of their lives watching what goes on inside those arenas. As a result they don't read, they don't think, and they don't talk about anything else, and thus they are left without the knowledge to pursue other matters even if they have the concern.

At one point in my life I studied the American Revolution. I pondered why they rebelled, and why we are so placid, after all, their cause was abstract and the burdens placed upon the modern American is large, heavy, real, and sometimes, when he or someone he loves is the victim of a crime, personal. The answer is simple; the modern American man is first and foremost addicted to amusement in the form of spectator sports. Nothing else is important. When he watches spectator sports, he is a real man, and no one dare criticize him, regardless of what other social obligations he ignores. Basketball, baseball, football, hockey, sit-coms, alcohol, cocaine, heroin, it seems that the only difference between one and the other is legality.

If the NDF is going to take a stand against the casual use of alcohol, against the cold beer on a hot summer day, the martini after 12 hours at work, the wine bottle at a romantic dinner, it should take an even stronger stand against the entire American cult of popular entertainment.

Personally I do not believe that the casual use of alcohol sets the Movement back one day. On the other hand, I firmly believe that the addiction to spectator sports is a prime reason why this country is in the state it is. It has paralyzed the minds and sterilized the bodies of the entire male population of White America. If televised spectator sports existed in 1776 we would still be a part of Great Britain.

Yours truly,
Daniel O'Connell

Ed. - the above was printed to demonstrate the lengths to which those who love opiates will go to defend their "individual right" to get high. It is difficult to say whether the leaps of logic in the above stem directly from opiate use, but then again it would be hardly surprising if such were the case. We have never yet received a well-reasoned response to our attacks on the use of opiates, but please keep trying - we will print them.

I am an older, White independent businessman concerned about the survival of the White race and about the changes taking place to my nation, Canada, and the United States of America.... In my city of Vancouver we are bracing for the Yellow onslaught which will result from the Red takeover of Hong Kong in 1997. Already Chinese land developers and speculators have begun reserving expensive new waterside condos for their own kind. Whites need not apply! In one notorious case, condos were offered for sale in Hong Kong only. White Vancouverites never even got a chance to tour the new building, let alone make an offer to buy. Under this coming Yellow occupation the Aryans will be relegated to the bleak industrial zones of this growing metropolis.

SHORT BURSTS

Only the Jews

Once again Jews have been caught defacing their own property with anti-Semitic graffiti and slogans. This time it was in Montgomery County, Maryland. Naturally the story broke to great publicity as the local papers competed with one another to condemn the "Nazis" who did the terrible deed. And also unsurprisingly, the news that Montgomery County police are now convinced that Curtis and Susan Klein vandalized their own property was buried deep in the newsprint. Why is it that only Jews do this?

A People Lost

According to a new book sponsored by the polling and advertising firm J. Walter Thompson, "Americans are making up their own rules and laws. We choose which laws of God we believe. There is absolutely no moral consensus in this country...." The book is entitled The Day America Told the Truth and is written by James Patterson and Peter Kim. It concludes that Americans believe that their leaders in all spheres have failed them, and yet they "ache to do the right thing." As a moral authority in their lives, the press is rated below fictional TV by Americans. Ninety per cent of those polled admit to lying regularly. (Which jibes with a recent report on college cheating which says that 65% of all students and 85% of business students admit to cheating on exams. It can get worse - in India a professor was castrated by his students for turning in cheaters. They apparently consider cheating an inalienable right.)

"Most Americans are very confused about their personal morals right now," say the authors. Hardly surprising as most Americans are still White and yet they are forbidden to identify with their own kind, their own values and their own culture. Morality stems from commitment, and people stripped of their racial identity commit only to individualism, which is at best amoral.

The Montana Mystery

Montana's high school seniors rank first on the Armed Services Vocational Aptitude test and third on the ACT college admission test. How can such a poor, rural state perform so well on national tests? One factor is that half of the state's high schools have less than 100 students. The students are not lost in the mass. Further, rural life often centers upon the local schools which creates a healthy social and intellectual atmosphere. Rural families also suffer far less from divorce than suburban and urban families, and they hold to traditional social values more firmly. And the factor that no one will discuss is the state's demographic makeup - it is virtually all White.

Yeah, We's Smart Too

Poor Timothy Maquire. He was cruising along at Georatown Law School close to graduation when he crossed the line of Political Correctness. He wrote a commentary in the school newspaper entitled "Admissions Apartheid" in which he claimed (correctly) that the admissions standards for Whites and Blacks at the Law School are "dramatically unequal." For writing this disturbing truth, Maquire was attacked as a racist by the Blacks and the Reds, who are feeling their oats on campus these days.

In 1977 a similar article appeared in the Georgetown newspaper which was much more thoroughly documented. It revealed that the average LSAT score for Whites was 680 and that for Blacks was only 580, an astounding difference but no shock to those who had to sit in class and listen to Blacks struggle to answer simple questions from the professors.

At that time the Blacks and the Reds did not have the strength nor the gall to attack the author for printing the truth. Now Maquire has had to hire attorneys to ensure that he will be allowed to graduate in June.

PC can only help our Cause as the more Whites who suffer from the oppression of multiracialism, the more who will support our national revolutionary alternative. It is especially wonderful that Whites are being threatened and punished simply for telling the truth. This is an old Red tactic, born of the Talmud. The Whites of Eastern Europe would not stomach regimes of lies, nor will the Whites of the West.

Who's the Boss

One would think that Jim Baker would have gotten the message when he asked Israeli Prime Minister Shamir to halt Jewish settlement on the West Bank and Shamir responded by ordering acceleration of such settlement. The Jews know who is boss.

THE CODE OF NATIONAL REVOLUTIONARY CONDUCT

The following code is designed to guide the behavior of the truly committed National Revolutionary. It establishes an ideal that the officers and cadre of the National Democratic Front must try to attain. The degree to which we live up to this ideal as a corps of political leaders will determine the success of our Movement in the National Revolutionary struggle in which we are now engaged.

I. After providing for the basic comfort and security of his family, the National Revolutionary will devote his time, energy and money completely to the National Democratic Front.

II. He will speak directly, clearly and precisely at all times and will back his words with action.

III. He will act honestly and honorably at all times. The conduct of the National Revolutionary shall act as a model for all White people.

IV. He will be as open about his beliefs as he can be with those Whites not in the Movement, recognizing that the NDF does not expect him to sacrifice his physical or financial security unnecessarily.

V. The National Revolutionary will not use drugs or alcohol.

VI. He will come to the aid of any White person who is in need of his help.

VII. He will always display public support for the program of the NDF, despite private reservations, and will express his criticisms to his superiors openly and honestly through the proper channels. Once a final decision on any matter has been made by the leadership, he will throw himself into execution of the adopted policy regardless of his personal feelings on the matter.

VIII. The National Revolutionary will obey the orders of his leaders intelligently such that he uses his initiative and judgement to execute the ultimate intent of his instructions in the light of changing circumstances, rather than follow the letter of his orders where they no longer apply.

IX. He will frame orders to subordinates to allow for maximum freedom and initiative in their execution, and he will not interfere unnecessarily in the sphere of a subordinate.

X. He will attempt at all times to maintain an atmosphere of good will in the Movement. He will not criticize a National Revolutionary comrade except to his face, and only then in such a manner that a harmonious resolution of the problem can be achieved. Criticisms should center upon ideas and policy rather than personality. Divisiveness and those who cause it cannot be tolerated as it is essential that the NDF remain united.

XI. The National Revolutionary will embrace the struggle courageously and passionately, and he will seek to make the Movement a joyous experience for himself and his comrades, even in the face of hardship and persecution.
