Banned in Canada

The Dispossessed Majority was first published in 1972. Subsequent editions have appeared over the years, the last one dated 1996. Well over a thousand Canadians have bought the book. It was therefore quite a surprise to learn that a Canadian government agency, Revenue Canada, has ruled in a ukase (June 30, 1998) that the book is hate propaganda and henceforth forbidden fruit for the Canadian people.

Canada, like many Western countries, has become a tyranny. Bureaucrats decide what is fit and unfit for Canadians to read. People in many Western countries are now serving time for having written material displeasing to the authorities and minority racist groups who keep a close watch on every printed word.

The ban not only extends to books on race and history; it extends to fiction. The Lebensraum! trilogy (reviewed on page 5 of this issue) has also been prohibited from polluting Canadian sensibilities. It will be interesting to know what Canadian blue pencillers will say to themselves if Lebensraum!, as may possibly be the case, turns out to be one of the great literary works of modern times.

The next time somebody tells you about Canadian “democracy,” try to repress a smile.

□ Clinton gave his all to the Jews, handing over to them the reins of his administration. It was terribly ungrateful for a Jewess to do him in. 560

□ Dan Lungren, attorney general of California and leading Republican candidate for governor, opposed the proposition that killed bilingual education. The Stupid Party is getting stupider. 111

□ I don't want to seem vulgar, but it occurs to me that if one of my dresses were as, er, spotted as Miss Lewinsky's, I'd have availed myself of the services of a competent dry cleaner. I know for a certainty the LAST person I'd have handed the dress over to for safekeeping would have been—gulp—MY MOTHER! 190

□ There is no question (apparently) that the German concentration camps had facilities for cremating corpses—German, Polish, Gypsy, Jewish or anybody else who died. Therefore some of the ashes in the Jerusalem museum may well be the ashes of Nazis. 785

□ All human societies have always had just three kinds of behavior—normal, abnormal/tolerated, abnormal/prohibited. In the last several generations homosexuality has graduated from the last to the middle category, although sodomy is still a felony in 14 states. There is tremendous pressure now to bump homosexuality to the top category. But it won't succeed because it's contra nature. This is the basic question about homosexuality, which semantics can't camouflage. 300

□ What do you call a minority member who commits a hate crime? A hater of haters? 111

□ My German Buddy Horst welcomes immigration: "We need them now to do the dirty work. Since we aren't reproducing, we'll need them later to pay for our retirement." Somehow I doubt that millions of youthful José's will cheerfully support elderly Horsts. 802

□ Today a black student complained that I was giving him a headache by trying to teach him English and the rudiments of grammar. His tone was so plaintive I didn't bother to explain what a heartache he was giving me. Suffering teacher

□ I think that the Clinton-Lewinsky affair can best be summed up by the "Dear Schmuck" salutation in Monica's irreverent love letters to the President. 322

□ I hope France is proud of its victory in the World Cup. With a team of Negroes and dusky Muslim tribesmen from North Africa representing a once white and Christian land in the heart of Europe, the real loser was the white race. The rising tide of color has become a tidal wave sweeping us away from our ancestral lands while we listen to the pied pipers of the Jewish left telling us what mean-spirited racists, banal bigots and intolerant xenophobes we are. 983

□ In reference to the anti-drug TV plugs airing in primetime, Clinton said, "These commercials are designed to slap Americans upside the head." 442

□ The great conservative governor of Texas, George Bush Jr., recently had a woman executed. She had served 15 years for two drug-related murders for which she should have been paid a $50 bounty. A few days later the governor released 1,785 child molesters on a "technicality." These animals had served an average of two years each. 786

□ It is simply astounding that the typical American cannot see that the government, at every level, is waging war on America. Example: The military has 10,000 train-car loads of low-grade napalm that it wants to get rid of. Instead of selling it to a power plant to burn and make electricity, it was decided to have a chemical plant in Houston strip it down into "something that can be safely disposed of in the ocean." 336

□ I have had a number of dear friends and relatives who to a greater or lesser degree for longer or shorter periods were bisexual or homosexual. From this experience I draw the politically incorrect conclusion that a person is not one or the other at birth, immutable regardless of experience. Therefore I reject Clinton's demand that our schools teach kids that gay is good. 944

□ Whatever America once was, it is now a monstrosity. Some of you may think this is "anti-American," but I love the old Republic of Jefferson, Madison and Jackson. The Empire is a different story altogether. It has kept the outward form of the Republic, but the content has changed completely. The Empire is all about threatening the Serbs with war for defending their historical homeland in Kosovo, while ignoring the colonization of our own country by aliens from every corner of the earth.

□ On May 27 a 16-year-old Negro demolished my relatively new Dodge by ramming into its rear. I estimate my loss at over $7,000, not including injuries to my wife and me. I intend to sue in small claims court, but have little hope of recovery. In 1979, shortly after my mother's death, two young Negroes got into our family house in Cincinnati and made off with about $20,000 of family property. What a burden they are on this country in general and on me in particular!

□ I'm not a big fan of the Republican Party, but after perusing a local voter's guide, I have to say one thing in its favor. The female candidates pictured were all attractive, albeit mature Nordics. The Democratic women were frequently minorities and generally ugly, dykey or porcine. We don't need more women like that in positions of power, waging a personal vendetta against society because of their shortcomings.

752

□ The most scathing attacks on Christians and their most fundamental beliefs are ubiquitous in the media—periodicals, film, TV. Despite Christians being a plurality, if not a majority, in the U.S., there seems to be little concern that they are the targets of a mean-spirited offensive. Throughout history homosexuals have always been at best tolerated, at worst shunned, but now criticizing them is considered deplorable!

910

□ With a name like Lawrence Summers I had assumed that our Deputy Treasury Secretary had come from old New England stock. But according to an article in the New Yorker, Summers' uncle is economist Paul Samuelson.

105

□ What do the movies Specie, Mimic, Aliens II and Gattaca have in common? In the first three films scientists, having successfully cloned genes, create bloodthirsty monsters that prey viciously on the populace. In Gattaca there are no real monsters, only the monster of genetics itself, which renders viewers wincing and biting their nails at the thought that genes will be the basis for future class wars. One does not wonder why Jewish moguls in Hollywood, who tell us daily that all races are equal, would rather the Goyim not indulge in genetic research. I give the films two thumbs down.

□ As for the Aryan beauty "Jewel" (June 1998), just delete the last two letters of her name and you're where she's at spiritually. Her looks and talent notwithstanding, I'll bet my right arm that she's been intimate with a few of the Chosen she fawns over. It is a great career enhancer. The screening process is akin to the notorious Hollywood "casting couch."

089

□ As a senior citizen, it is my great regret, second only to my profound disappointment in the manner in which this country is developing, that I shall live nowhere near long enough to see the Jews get their just and inevitable comeuppance for all the cruelty, grief, suffering, destruction, despoliation, destitution and death their clever scheming has engendered during the 20th century.

008

□ The tippable point, be it in the neighborhood, city or country, is whenever blacks reach a certain percentage of the population. Chaos then results and is containable only by white intervention. Think of Haiti, the Congo and the District of Columbia.

200

□ In the early 1950s Sammy Davis Jr. married a beautiful blonde Swedish actress, Mae Britt. This sent shock waves of disapproval throughout the jaded entertainment jet set. In that era, even among that fast-living, amoral crowd, such blatant race-mixing was considered too much. At any rate, Sammy strode into a crowded party with his blushing bride soon after they were wed. As they entered arm in arm, they were greeted by an embarrassing silence. John Wayne broke the ice by going over to the salt 'n' pepper miscreants with a beaming smile, giving them both a congratulatory handshake and hug. Because this abominable situation was all right with the Duke, the other degenerates at the party followed suit. John Wayne, who had a Latin wife for many years, was often called "The Celluloid Conservative." How the Jews must chuckle knowing the true characters of the idols and icons the white masses venerate.

□ What event in this century most affected the course of history? Probably the failure of Britain and Germany to make peace in 1940.

800

□ A gentleman with whom I am on excellent terms has always been vaguely pro-Jewish, pro-Zionist, pro-Israel. So I have been careful not to discuss such matters with him. Recently, however, he himself suggested that Jews had gone a tad too far on the Holocaust. He still believes six million of them (or at least a great many) were murdered by Germans, but added that Jews have talked about it so much they have created an anti-Holocaust reaction. I happen to agree. Jewish cineasts just can't stop. Fifty years of the same gabble becomes excruciatingly boring. During WWII our soldiers never gave 10 seconds to Jews. After the war we heard nothing else. Two generations have been soaked in the hateful anti-German propaganda. Can anyone begin to count how much money has been invested in the Holocaust business!

587

□ Presidential hopeful, the upchucking Al Gore, says we should be forced to accept gays. Clinton demands we welcome immigrants. The ideal? Homo immigrants!

577

□ We've got to keep spreading the message of "white renewal," especially as the ugly policy of globalism surreptitiously imposed on the white race during this past half-century now is clearly evident, so evident that its cracks are showing.

□ The notion of "God" is pretty odd when thought about in a given way. This gigantic, invisible being is everywhere at once, seeing all that goes on and hearing millions of simultaneous, separate pleadings and prayers. Is he as big as the universe or is he the universe? Do the universe and he occupy the same space at the same time?

The Significance of Clinton

Power-seeking politicians often seem to be infected with a sex bug that entices them off the beaten path of morality into dark and risky bypasses. The smart pol conceals this affliction by keeping it far from the public eye. Only one or two of his closest associates will know about it and they won't talk until he is safely out of sight in some fancy cemetery.

The dumb pol, however, cannot contain himself. He will take chances and have his trysts in his office, in his limousine, even on occasion conducting his extramarital exploits in public. He may hold on to his political perch, but he will pay dearly in the amount of obloquy heaped upon him by boastfully serious but actually tabloid-type journals, such as the N.Y. Times.

Clinton may think he is smart because he was twice elected, but much of the joy of the presidency must elude him when he reads about himself in scabrous front-page headlines. Even if he believes that millions of Democrats don't hold his carnal sins against him, he can't shake off the contempt his behavior engenders even among his most blinkered followers. Ego counts for something, even in the heart of a hardened, insensate pol.

The leader of a country is its thermometer. If he has a fever, the people will have one. The image he projects affects the nation's psychological makeup. When he philanders he is not only betraying his wife and children, he is also betraying his homeland—and himself. His private life, or what should be his private life, becomes his public life.

This country is supposed to be a democracy. So the ultimate responsibility for Clinton's presidency must be borne by the people who put him in the Oval Office—those who voted for him and those who failed to vote against him. In other words, he is us.

Clinton's televised mea culpa was maudlin. No political leader worth his salt should put himself in a position of having to beg for forgiveness from anyone, no matter what his crime, no matter what his mistakes and missteps. The aura of leadership is very delicate. It can be destroyed by a whisper. The least a leader can do is to keep his sins private. Our beef against Clinton is not his philandering, but his turning over the government and the nation to a clique (and claque) of minorities. Except for Gore and himself, almost every top-ranking Clinton appointee is Jewish.

This could never have happened if the President had not made an unwritten pledge to Jews that in return for their massive financial help and media spin he would leave them pretty much in control of the nation and the nation's destiny. This is his real crime. If he compounded it by having perverted sex with a Jewess, so be it. That mother and daughter Lewinsky carefully saved that dress for possible future use illustrates rather dramatically the people he is dealing with.

Perhaps the sickest part of the whole affair is the media adulation of Hillary, "the woman who stood by her man." The marriage is only held together by a shared mania for power and by a sort of mutual blackmail. He has almost as much on her as she has on him, but few know about it. If there ever was a mixed-up woman, it is Hillary. Whether she is a Messalina or a Sappho, we don't know, but it is certainly one or the other. There still may be a chance of saving Chelsea from her monstrous parents, but the hour-glass is about full.

What is taking the biggest hit here is democracy or what passes for democracy. Any form of government that gives birth to bipeds like the Clintons is diseased at the root. An intelligent, homogeneous people can manage with difficulty to adhere to the democratic canon. A motley population of lowest common denominator hybrids cannot. The Clintons are a living, breathing warning of what this country has become and where it is going. Let us be forewarned.

An unrecognized literary masterpiece

Lebensraum!

In the spirit of these spiritless times, any author of a three-volume novel upholding such faded virtues as loyalty and honor would be considered "out of it." If the same novelist wove brief strands of tribute to Hitler in his or her pages, he or she would be deemed mad, a racist, an anti-Semite and a threat to the social order. Miraculously such a writer and such a work exist. The author's name is Ingrid Rimland and her work, Lebensraum!, is suffused with brilliant flashes of literary talent, albeit no "respectable" publisher would touch it and no "respectable" critic would review it.

Tolstoyan in its sweep, Lebensraum! focuses on the trials and tribulations of a congregation of Christian fundamentalists called Mennonites. One group left Germany and settled in Ukraine at the behest of Catherine the Great, who wanted to capitalize on the Mennonites' agrarian expertise. The other group ended up in Kansas in the latter half of the 19th century. In each case the Mennonites transformed the land into farming utopias, coloring the fertile acres with amber waves of grain. Both communities, though separated by thousands of miles, were known for feeding a good part of the world. Rimland's description of farm life in both Ukraine and Kansas equals the best of the "Breadbasket" school of writing, whether in the New World or in the Old.

But paradises, like certain radioactive elements, have a short half-life. The Communist takeover of Ukraine after WWI and the brutal dispossession of the Kulaks, the prosperous Russian farmers, along with the Mennonites, was sheer horror. Those who resisted having their property and lands seized by the Reds were tortured, murdered or sent off to Siberia. The upshot was the fearful Ukrainian Holocaust. Rimland, who gives the official Jewish Holocaust short shrift, categorizes the Ukrainian one as authentic and responsible for millions of deaths.

In describing the sufferings of the Mennonites in Ukraine in a manner and style resembling Dante's Inferno, Rimland's prose occasionally rises to poetic heights. What people anywhere on earth, anywhere in history, have been put through such an ordeal? Rimland's writing is so powerful that the reader almost suffers as much as the victims. On the other hand, the Mennonites of Kansas, although they went through some bad times in the Great Depression and lost a considerable number of men in two world wars, practically had a joy ride compared to the fate of their Ukrainian cousins.

Rimland's characters live and breathe. The story line is uncluttered and right to the point. The reader not only learns what is going on, but feels what is going on. The trials and tribulations encountered on the trek of the displaced Germans, including the Mennonites, through Eastern Europe in WWII amounts to an excruciating Via Dolorosa, a gruesome anabasis. Soviet snipers, starvation and disease assured the lack of even the most elementary human necessities. Still the trekkers, with the sick in horse-drawn wagons, struggled on to reach a country as dangerous as the one they left.

In the last days of Berlin, the city became a huge fireball. Dodging her way through and around bombs, artillery shells and machine-gun fire was Erika, a 13-year-old girl wearing the uniform of a Hitler maiden, and one of Lebensraum!'s most sympathetic characters. At her defining moment, she approached a mound of rubble under which lay the body of her best friend. She wished her well and gave the Hitler salute, still convinced that, in the words of A. H. Clough, "'Tis better to have fought and lost than never to have fought at all." Immediately afterwards she succumbed to days and nights of endless rapes.

An American Negro while on top of Erika was shot dead by one of the few remaining Wehrmacht soldiers still alive and still in possession of a few bullets.

There are as many characters in Rimland's work as there are in War and Peace and they are drawn just as faithfully. Mennonites everywhere are united by race and religion, but divided by culture. In general both the American and Ukrainian communities kept up their high moral standards. In the political context Americans picked up some democratic ideology. The Old World Ukrainians remained more tolerant of authority.

As for Rimland herself, as a very young girl she lived through many of the events she describes. Somehow or other she and her family got out of Germany at war's end and traveled to a small Mennonite colony in Paraguay, then to Canada, then to Kansas to be with her American cousins, finally to California where she won an award for an earlier novel, The Wanderers (Bantam Books, 1978). She now puts out a newsletter and what she calls Z grams on the Internet.

It's hard to predict the fate of Lebensraum!, a trilogy that deflates and defies all current literary themes. The three volumes portray a Führer with a human face and put the blame on Jewry for much of what has gone wrong in the world. Altogether it is a literary tour de force. The liberal-minority-Jewish crowd, if they ever hear of her writings, will assign Rimland and all her works to the Devil.

In the end, if good writing triumphs over bad, if genius conquers all obstacles, Lebensraum!, glowing with apt metaphors in a stultifying age, will become a literary icon.

To order the trilogy (1,552 pages), send $75, plus $5 postage (separately $25 each, plus $2 postage) to Ingrid Rimland, 6965 El Camino Real, La Costa, CA 92009. California residents add 7.75% sales tax.

Means and Motivations

All philosophy exists as a partisan weapon; and is useful toward revolutionary ends.

V.I. Lenin

In 1965, student revolutionaries defied the mores and values of their day. Why, no one seems to know. The saying went: "revolution for the hell of it." Today, 30 years later, student revolutionaries rebuke the philosophy of life currently in vogue among the ruling class. Why defile the ethical standards of contemporary society? Because the false consciousness known as multiculturalism cynically attempts to divide the indivisible: the mind-body continuum.

The neo-religious stance of modern society, the political correctness embraced by pseudo-intellectuals of every stripe has become a rigid orthodoxy enforced by all the socio-economic muscle that the system can muster. In punishing our speech, the system pushes us underground, radicalizing us and revolutionizing our thoughts. The establishment has turned dissent into a revolutionary act. That we have already been labeled revolutionaries entails that we will one day begin to play the part.

Contemporary life reminds the dissident of that existential tale of a man accused of a crime about which he knew nothing. Every Aryan living in our post-industrial society is deemed guilty. Of what we are accused, no one knows for sure. We have been conditioned to accept the duty of selfless sacrifice in all walks of life; hoping that our meek behavior will expiate our consciences. Perhaps, believes the Aryan, if I only commit one more crime against my own people, if I only degrade myself with one more depersonalized act of self-immolation, then I will be accepted by those who hate me.

How shall we prevail over the orthodoxy of the establishment? Shall we adopt our own orthodoxy grounded on political or religious lines? Shall we adopt the hated strategy of our oppressors and use it to further our own ends? It is sad to realize that we, like the dog who licks his abusive master's hand, all too often adopt our enemies' orthodoxy.

An Aryan orthodoxy is undesirable because the Aryan spirit sees all orthodoxy as an alien form of psychological imperialism. For over 1,000 years, Aryan peoples have struggled in vain to free themselves from the alien yoke of Christian orthodoxy. An Aryan ethos must be many and not one, because Aryans are many and not one. A great number of politico-religious doctrines are more desirable than a single justification for revolution. By refusing to center, congeal and cement separate truths into one inflexible thought, we avoid the pitfalls of contemporary philosophy; which vainly tries to recreate itself into a bland attempt at appealing to all people for all reasons.

Consider the relationship of two Majority activists: one, an Aryan leftist; the second, an Aryan rightist. Both have specific genetic traits inherited from a common ancestor. Each, however, has his own specific outlook based upon the values he has chosen to embrace. One may be a Christian, the other an Atheist. One believes he fights for the flag, the Constitution and his god. The other believes his people to be enslaved by the regressive ideals of capitalist oligarchy. He sees his fight as a national liberation movement, a worker's revolution or a peasant uprising. Contemporary reality calls both men to lay aside their differences and work, if not in partnership then separately, toward the same end. Both have the same enemy, who is equally committed to destroying them both. It is not a question of ideology but of genetics.

The reason for the action taken, or lack thereof, by the revolutionary in the cause of a revolutionary goal is less important than that action in itself. It is the ends we seek, regardless of the means. Through our activities we are redeemed. Whether or not there are externalist and objective reasons for action is a matter for philosophers. Our reasons are internal. They are grounded in motivational facts pertinent to each individual.

Majority activists who show a tendency to divide themselves into a small group based upon class, gender, political, social or economic factors cannot objectively be called racists. Racism to these individuals is merely a plank in the platform of their beliefs. The structures which may seem to afford them the protection of a fortress are, once constructed, used as prisons. True racists are racists for racism's sake. The racial revolutionary of the future will not be a Nazi or Odinist first and a racist second. He will see himself as a white man first and his first duty will be to secure the future of his people, all other issues be damned. He will soundly reject the false consciousness of orthodoxy except as a subjective and personal motivation which he keeps to himself. He, along with all other rational individuals, would regard the effort to unite all whites under one flag as typical of an instantiation of the type of false and Semitic morality which tells only one story about reality, truth and ethics. Such an effort would be neither desirable nor necessary.

In a perfect world, free of foreign imperialism and cultural colonialism, Aryans would be free to divide themselves and fight one another as their whims dictate. Realistic interpretation of our situation shows this to be impossible. Modern society affords no such luxury, and we should not expect it to.

The Virtue of Optimism

While channel-surfing recently, I came across one of those innumerable conferences on C-Span. The young man at the lectern, it soon became clear, was an Arab American. While he spoke a faultless native English, the camera panning through the audience revealed as many burnouses as suits, more women in veils than in dresses.

The speaker was striving manfully to imbue his audience with the hope and belief that the Israeli lobby's stranglehold on American politics and media might soon be loosening. To support this sanguine vision, he proposed that foreign aid was less popular among Americans than ever before. The Levantine lecturer stoutly maintained that the atom bombs exploded recently by India and Pakistan couldn't help but arouse America's censure of Israel's vast but covert trove of nuclear weapons. There was even good news from the Greek and Armenian fronts. Both groups in America, he argued, were increasingly estranged from Israel because of its pro-Turkish stance.

I confess that, at first, all this made me inclined more to groan or to snicker at the earnest Arab American than to rejoice at Israel and its lobby's impending comeuppance. Whether his glad tidings ever brought his saturnine audience to wild hosannas, I don't know, for I soon turned off the set.

Thinking it over, however, I came to see that what the speaker was trying to do was not to uncork a false hilarity among his hearers by fostering the delusion that the U.S. was on the brink of making its own interests, not Israel's, paramount. Rather, he was attempting to inspire them to carry on in their activities—propaganda, lobbying, fundraising and so forth—in the conviction that not only were their efforts worthwhile, but that there were opportunities to be exploited, battles to be won, and that they could prevail if they kept doing their best.

More links us members of the American Nation, of America's embattled Majority, to the Arab-American speaker and his hearers than the accident of a common enemy. We, too, even more than the struggling Arab-American lobby, have need of optimism.

Optimism is something that has long been in short supply in the ranks of Majority members. Today it is difficult to recall that less than a hundred years ago Europeans and their descendants ruled nearly the entire world. The watchwords among the white men who dominated politics and ideas then were, more than ever before (and less than ever since): technology, science, progress, evolution, human betterment.

The Great War, the rise of Marxism and Communism, the Great Depression, the catastrophe of WWII, the revolt and proliferation of the colored races, and other calamities helped put paid to that kind of talk. Today the few thinkers who dared voice pessimism during the previous high tide of homo Europaeus—including Schopenhauer and Nietzsche—would probably pass at nearly any present-day Majority conclave for crackbrained, Panglossian visionaries.

For most of this century pessimism has ruled among the best, the deepest and the most prescient thinkers of our race. Titles like The Decline of the West, The Passing of the Great Race, The Rising Tide of Color and The Dispossessed Majority are not calculated to set us turning cartwheels of confidence. And why not? The race that seemed, just a few decades ago, to be reaching for the stars, is now in imminent danger of losing the planet—and most of our fellow members of the Minority couldn't seem to care less.

Yet it is exactly in this vexed age that optimism is required. For those of us who would inspire ourselves and the rest of the Majority to work, to struggle and to sacrifice, optimism is realism.

Laugh (or weep) if you will, but the stern fact is that, whether our ilk is made from frailer stuff than our ancestors or not, very few of us are cut out for stoicism. To be sure, a few noble souls, such as Spengler or the incomparable Revilo Oliver, were able to carry on despite their belief that nearly everything was lost. Like that Roman soldier who, according to Pliny the Younger, expired standing guard at his post in Pompeii as smoke and ash rained down from Vesuvius, such spirits can soldier on in the face of the worst.

World-class pessimist Schopenhauer

As for the rest of us? We will shirk our duty if we despair of victory. We need to be sustained by the conviction that persistence, courage, dedication, hard work and an eye for the main chance can be victorious. For us the right sort of optimism—one that is active, clear-eyed, and ready to support the most effective pro-Majority undertakings—is much more practical than an impossible stoicism, far better than a paralyzing pessimism.

Thirty years ago, how many could have conceived of the conquest of "nature" over "nurture" in so many disciplines—above all in the workings of the human brain?

Who would have thought, 20 years ago, that sociobiology and its offshoots would now be flourishing and expanding so triumphantly?

Ten years ago, was it imaginable that the Front National would be France's most dynamic party, or that a man like Jörg Haider would be chancellor material in Austria?

Just a decade ago, who but a few wild-eyed optimists envisioned that Ukraine, Croatia, Slovakia and the Baltic states would be independent nations once again?

What inspired these men, these movements, these nations was a dedication that is inseparable from optimism—not simply among the leaders, but among the many thousands of men and women (among the millions of eventual followers) without whose sacrifice and support the breakthroughs and the triumphs would not have happened.

These men and women were aware that, though the future can't be known, it can be molded—by courage, by faith, by dedication, by generosity, by perseverance, by devotion to the task at hand. For them, as for the greatest of our forebears—Robert The Bruce in hiding, George Washington at Valley Forge, and their like—optimism, far from a Pollyanna-ish fate in happy endings, was courage over the long haul.

Today it is not only possible but necessary for us conscious members of the Majority to emulate our racial heroes of old. Upon our disciplined persistence, our generous support, our creativity, our patience, indeed on all our virtues the opportunity for the future triumph of our kind likely rests. Ours is the joy and the duty, not merely to hope for the best, but to strive to be the best.

On Being a Credit to One's Race

During last year's seemingly endless media coverage of the 50th anniversary of Jackie Robinson's rookie season, there was one rather telling comment about the whole affair. It was recalled that in a rare moment of candor, Robinson admitted he was sick of being the poster boy for the Negro race. He didn't like the idea that he was in the spotlight every waking hour, that he had to be a paragon as well as a ballplayer. Unfortunately he had no choice. Leftist intellectuals, elitists and opinion molders, who would normally turn up their noses, hooked or otherwise, at sports, clasped Jackie Robinson to their collective bosoms. The infield fly rule was not part of their erudition, yet they championed Robinson because he was a visible symbol of integration. Sure, Harry Truman signed an Executive Order integrating the Armed Forces. Sure, school desegregation was just down the road. But these were the impersonal, institutional decisions of faceless bureaucrats. Jackie was integration with a human face.

I can't help but feel a slight twinge of pity for Robinson. He had discovered the essential nakedness of the individual in an integrated, multiracial society. In a homogeneous society the post of racial ambassador usually goes unfilled because such a functionary has no function. As the dominant race in America, Caucasians have not had to justify their every act to members of other races, though there have always been mea culpa types on the fringes. But the demographers—as well as our scalawag President—have predicted that midway through the next century there will be no majority race in America. At that point fate ordains that the white man will play the role of racial ambassador, whether he wants to or not. As a member of one minority group among many, he cannot dominate by sheer numbers, so he may have to dominate by superior morality—a dubious premise judging by the increasing decadence of Euro-Americans.

Robinson hated being a role model

These thoughts spring to mind in the wake of the media's latest cause célèbre in Jasper, Texas. The bare bones of the story is that three white ex-cons dragged Negro James Byrd, himself an ex-con and child abandoner to boot, behind their pickup truck until his carcass was pretty well sliced and diced. If the three white men did what they are accused of—no matter what their reason for doing so—they were incredibly stupid. Their brutal acts only render Instaurationists more vulnerable to misunderstanding, calumny and abuse. Like Jackie Robinson, they must accept—if not embrace—the fact that their actions reflect on their race. The Black Muslims figured this out decades ago. We could do worse than to follow their lead.

The incident in Jasper was the subject of relentless media overkill. According to FBI crime statistics, black-on-white crime—not the reverse—is the real problem in this society. We have an embarrassment of riches when it comes to reporting crimes committed by blacks. While Jasper was the lead story on the nightly news, my local newscast featured a snippet on a black Chicago couple who killed their baby and dissolved him/her in battery acid. This report was allotted all of ten seconds while the Jasper story droned on and on. Was what happened in Jasper proportionately more heinous than what happened in Chicago?

Why are all black-on-white crimes treated as isolated incidents while white-on-black crimes are supposedly indicative of deep-seated social injustice? One answer is that the former are dog-bites-man stories while the latter are of the man-bites-dog category—hence more newsworthy. But we still have to explain why the former are merely reported without dwelling on their underlying meanings while the details of the latter are replayed in loving, almost obsessive detail and endowed with almost cosmic significance. A very small number of people in the media decide what to emphasize and deemphasize. As long as they (mostly members of the Tribe) are pushing the buttons behind the scenes of the news organizations, whites will be forced to do penance for every misdeed committed by his racial kinsmen, even in a sleepy little burg that no one ever heard of before.

Jasper is a logging town of about 7,600 nestled in the pine and hardwood forests of East Texas not far from the Louisiana line. I suspect it is no more virtuous or venal than any other East Texas hamlet. Thanks to the media, Jasper is now synonymous with hatred, ignorance, violence and backwardness. Following Byrd's death, the usual feeding frenzy erupted as the mediacrats wrung every last drop of empathy from the teats of racism and gorged themselves on the milk of human unkindness.

As soon as I heard about the Jasper incident, I knew we were in for the biggest spate of racial righteousness since the Rodney King slugfest. A veritable army of reporters buttonholed local folks in barber shops, Dairy Queens and Wal-Marts and came up with the scoop that blacks and whites in Jasper don't socialize away from school and the workplace (where federal law dictates that they have no choice).

Through the magic of the media, James Byrd, like Rodney King, was transfigured to near-mythic status. Among the usual race hustlers, it was no surprise to see Jesse Jackson hogging the limelight with Kweisi Mfume, head of the NAACP, who uttered and re-uttered the famous phrase, "Never again! Never again!" Al Sharpton trekked 1,500 miles from his Zoo City bailiwick to Jasper. Never one to be upstaged, the demented Dennis Rodman offered to pay for the dead man's funeral.

But Rodman wasn't the only screwball attracted to the grisly murder. The fleet of satellite trucks that descended on Jasper assured that the lunatic fringe would be present. One Houstonian, a self-described voodoo priest, showed up on the courthouse lawn to conduct anti-Black Panther rituals.

It was a perfect environment for outside agitation: KKK factions from Waco and Vidor, as well as the New Black Panthers of Dallas, held rallies. The locals, both black and white, grew tired of playing host to the legions who descended on them. The situation was best described by one

George Miller, the black administrator of Jasper Memorial Hospital: "When they cure all the problems in Dallas and it's safe for me to walk the streets of Dallas, then they can come down here and tell me what to do about Jasper."

White folks in high places were also heard from. Janet Reno, the FBI and other federal nabobs offered new variations on their usual indignant platitudes. Capitol Hill lawmakers unanimously passed a resolution expressing their shock—a gesture as empty as a Sudanese digestive tract.

The preachers of America stopped molesting children and committing homosexual acts long enough to beat their breasts and gnash their teeth, as they pointed the finger at those of us who were shortchanged on melanin. A hue and cry went up for stronger federal hate crime statutes. The Congressional Black Caucus rattled its tin cup in search of more money for the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and other federal boondoggles.

As is their wont, the hustlers grasped at a repellent incident and used it as leverage to pry more money from the taxpayers for racial "justice." More civil rights laws mean more civil rights lawyers and more millionaire shysters. Even worse, straight talk about race inches closer to being "hate" speech. If the scaremongers have their way, it may be harder and harder to exercise free speech. Just suppose one of those suspects had a stack of Instaurations in his home? Never mind that there are no incitements to violence in these pages. You dare not leave the magazine on your coffee table, lest some neighbor spy it and make a unilateral decision that you deserve to have your very own FBI dossier.

Like it or not, you are an ambassador for your race. Like the rest of you, I feel no responsibility for the murder of a black man I never met, committed by white men I don't know, in a town I have never visited. But there are forces out there that would like to pin it on me because I'm white, and because I write for Instauration, I'm a prime suspect. The evidence against me is prima facie.

Caesar is a polygamist and we are all his wives. We must be beyond reproach. It does us little good to rant about the depredations of the savages among us if some of them are white. It will do us no good to point out the overwhelming realities of the black-on-white crime rate. We know that the media will not play that up no matter how bad things get.

Like it or not, you are an ambassador for your race. Your misdeeds reflect badly on the rest of us among the great unwashed and the great brainwashed. Imagine the glee of the Jewish media baron when he is presented with a news story involving the worst Southern redneck stereotypes—the nonfiction counterpart of the Jews' wretched movies, books and TV shows.

When white men commit an act like the one in Jasper, they only give ammunition to the other side. It's not treason because it's not done deliberately. But it certainly ranks up there with criminal negligence.

Oblivion or What?

A friend of mine recently made the observation that the New World Order is the modern equivalent of the old Roman Empire, with America now the paramount power. The argument can be expanded by saying that the present equivalent of the Roman patrician is today's international capitalist. Members of the professions are the freemen. The rest of us are slaves.

Western man's domination of the planet and his high standard of living is almost entirely based on the superior technology and manufacturing skills developed during the Industrial Revolution. Without such advantages, Western man would be little better than the poorest Third Worlder.

After WWII an exhausted Europe was prepared to accept the Western intelligentsia's canard that all our past ills were the result of nationalism, science and industrialism, with Western man being the main villain.

Of the Allied powers America alone understood modern production methods and the importance of research and development. The U.S. ended the war as the dominant world power, the only one still on its feet.

Once the shooting stopped, America enticed the best scientific brains in Europe to these shores, offering better pay and living conditions than the Old Country could possibly match.

Moneyed and upper-class Englishmen had always believed that industry and science were dirty trades fit only for the lower orders. Commerce, land and investment provided the best return for the least effort. An arts degree was the best preparation for such careers.

Most of Europe's intellectuals had flirted with National Socialism and/or communism before and during WWII. In 1944, French Communists felt strong enough to think seriously about launching a revolution, but gave up the idea when they decided they did not have the numbers.

Although Russia's ruthless dealings with its satellites in Eastern Europe disillusioned many intellectuals, they did not turn to America and materialism, but continued their love affair with socialism and humanism. The Western world was divided into two almost equal camps. Most political parties had elements of both ideologies.

After the defeat of Russia in the Cold War, America was unassailable. But that did not mean that both camps could not have some of these same goals. The Lima Declaration, in which the developed countries undertook to raise the standard of living in the Third World by the free transfer of Western technology and vast economic investments, was to the advantage of both parties. American industry wanted to develop new markets and transfer production from the high labor costs of the Western World to the Third World. The humanists saw the chance to disperse what they believed was a disproportionate concentration of wealth.

Both sides perceived advantages in the breakdown of frontiers and in the mass immigration from the Third World to the First. The capitalists would be able to force down the cost of labor at home, while humanists, surrounded by cheap servants, developed an agenda to overturn the West's technical superiority. The Asian nations would become supreme, while immigration and intermarriage would breed out the hated white race.

A wild exaggeration? Hollywood increasingly promotes Negroes as morally superior to whites. Intermarriage is constantly encouraged. A senior journalist for a Murdoch newspaper in Australia said in a recent article on "The New World Order" that the Caucasian races have ruled the world for five centuries and made a terrible botch of it. The Aussie writer believed that nonwhite powers will be ruling the world before the end of the first quarter of the new century.

Attacks on whites in America are being stepped up. A new discipline, "White Studies," has been introduced into American universities, the aim being to prove that whites are no better than blacks and that minority races should be given control of white nations. One leading proposer, a part-Jew named Noel Ignatiev, shouts, "Treason to the white race is loyalty to humanity."

Bill Gates—slayer of capitalism?

All the Asian nations taken together could never defeat the white race in war as long as we are prepared to be as ruthless as they are. We are, however, susceptible to defeat by enemies within our ranks. The socialist intellectuals, capitalists, greedy unionists, the church, academia, the corrupt politicians, the equally corrupt judiciary and our own indifference all work towards the triumph of the New World Order, as we head for oblivion.

Who are we? We are the people who changed the face of the globe by the Industrial Revolution and our belief in and use of the Scientific Method. The wealth and soft living we now enjoy did not grow on trees. Our grandparents and parents paid for it with blood, sweat and tears under sometimes appalling conditions.

Without us, the doers, there is no high culture. The rest live off us.

Even capitalism has developed a fatal flaw. Bill Gates is proving that it ends in monopoly. The one thing that makes capitalism superior to all other economic systems is competition. Without it science and industry stagnate. In this sense the world's richest man is mortally wounding capitalism.

America can only remain a major industrial power by the use of cheap immigrant labor, a labor pool that constantly rises in cost if a continuous flow of new bodies is not maintained. In the end successful immigrant communities will always prefer to employ people of their own race.

If we do not stop and reverse the present trend, New York will become another Calcutta, Europe part of Africa and Australia part of China.

Let us be honest. Support for Clinton suggests that as long as most people of European descent have a reasonable standard of living they will not see the dangers of mass immigration until such time when it is too late to reverse the flow.

Polls in Europe and America suggest that at most only 25% of the people in Western societies would oppose the swamping of their culture by Asian or African migration. So what is the answer for the 25%? One suggestion is to set up white enclaves in America and Europe. Antagonistic governments would rule this out. The only logical solution is a new Caucasian homeland.

There are two alternatives, South America and Russia. South America would probably accept large numbers of Caucasians but would welcome large numbers of Asians as well.

Russia offers the best chance. Because of heavy loss of life and territory in two world wars and constant pressure from Asia, Russia needs energetic and talented migrants to build its industries and defend its borders.

Much of Russia is no colder than America or Canada and no drier than Australia or Southern Europe. The world's largest country (in area) has plenty of natural resources and we have the skills to help the Russians exploit them. We could help the Russians raise their standard of living without American money corrupting them. We who have lost our new world would get a homeland in the old where we could prosper.

We are down and out but not yet finished. Now is the time to stop dreaming and prepare for the future while we still have a future.

Newt the Jewt

Does a politician have to be smart? Hardly. Think of Harding and Reagan and reconsider. Does a movie director have to be smart? Hardly. Think of Spike Lee and Warren Beatty and reconsider.

Does a politician have to be honest? Hardly. Think of Boss Tweed and the Kennedy clan and reconsider. Pencil in your own nominees, but make nothing permanent, since each election cycle vomits up a new crew of virginal "volunteers."

Do politicians have to subscribe to the Boy Scout oath? Hardly. Did Roosevelt or Churchill ever tell the truth? Fill in your own blanks, including nationality and career, starting with the generals on both sides who slaughtered an entire generation of the truly best and brightest by their blunderbuss tactics in WWI.

A case can be made that morality, in the catechistic sense of the word, is a definite liability for anyone aspiring to high public office. Pick a Zionist, anyone will do, especially Bibi Netanyahu.

Runner-up liar

The one indispensable quality a politician must have is gall. He must be utterly impervious to shame. The whopper which might make a hardened sinner cringe (a Menaphlegm Begin, a Yitsuck Shamir, a lecherous Moshe Dayan) will not faze a politician to the slime manner born. A natural pol, like a psychotic killer, is immune and unsusceptible to shame. Fill in your own blanks, but leave plenty of room for Josef Stalin and Arik Sharon, the blubbergut butcher of West Beirut.

Take Newt Gingrich, as a case in point, the point being that he is the only politician on the scene today who can even hope to challenge Bill Clinton for the coronet of shameless liar-in-chief. I offer two recent examples of the soprano salamander to solidify my argument. What won't a politician do to "win" (i.e., steal or extort) votes? Especially a politician whose polls are lower than a sewer-rat's belly, especially a soprano politician who's already cutely campaigning for the presidency? What won't such an acute politician do?

Would such a politician be Republican enough to propose statehood for the dumpster island of Puerto Rico, hoping thereby to win Hispanics to the Grand Old Party? What politician would be so shameless, so cynical and so transparent as to make such a blatant appeal to the taco bell-bottomed body politic of beautiful Puerto Rico? What other pol could hope to exceed that exercise in cynicism?

What other politician would be considerate enough to hand-deliver divorce papers—like a pepperoni pizza (no tip required) to his wired-up wife while she was high in a hospital bed undergoing chemotherapy?

What Republican politician could propose statehood for Puerto Rico, knowing the Caribbean island was merely a sun-tanned nightmare destined to go nowhere? A shameless ploy calculated for political advantage and nothing more. What politician could make such a cynical proposal, such a transparently calculated attempt to curry Hispanic votes? (What politician would be stupid enough not to know that curry is Indian and not Chicano?) Has the lesson of the Yankee slavers been lost on the salamander soprano from Cobb County, Georgia? Isn't this just another carpetbagger anxious to sell out his country for the sake of political expediency? Who could be so shameless?

The same soprano politician who raced off to Israel to genuflect to Netanyahu and assure killer Bee-Bee of his eternal devotion and to reassure the yahoo prime minister that Jerusalem is—and always will be—the eternal capital of Israel. Always will be, so long as shameless politicians need kosher money and media clout to win the U.S. presidency.

Jewish Emigrés in the Hitler Years

After Hitler came to power, Jews were free to leave Germany. Many did, with sufficient funds to establish businesses in foreign countries. Traveling on German passports, they migrated to Central and South America, Asia and elsewhere. Many who settled in the Philippines opened restaurants, practiced usury and conducted various legal and illegal business enterprises. During the Japanese occupation, they operated houses of prostitution for Nipponese officers and engaged in "buy and sell" dealings with the invaders.

When Manila fell to the Japanese Army, leaders of the Jewish community, waving their German passports, rode out Highway 54 and met General Yamashita and his entourage as they entered the conquered city. Later on in the evening, Jews held a banquet in his honor in a Jewish restaurant. They pretended to be "German allies of the Japanese."

Ingrid Weckert, in her book, Feuerzeichen (Fire Sign), exposes the little-known collaboration between the Hitler government and the Zionists to promote peaceful Jewish emigration from Germany to Palestine.

In the 1930s Zionists worked hand in glove with Nazi officials to get German Jews out of Germany and into Palestine. In his book, The Transfer Agreement, Edwin Black, the son of Jewish immigrant parents, states that at the very time Jews were actively conducting a worldwide boycott of the Germans, Zionists in Palestine were conducting a lively trade with Germany.

Nazis actually bought tickets for German Jews bound for Palestine and gave the immigrants who wanted to escape the money to comply with British currency regulations.

Erstwhile terrorist Shamir

Under the arrangement described in the Transfer Agreement, some 60,000 German Jews traveled to Palestine. It was not the kind of agreement one would expect of a government bent on the extermination of its Jewish population.

Yitshak Shamir, onetime prime minister of Israel, when a leader of the terrorist Stern Gang, tried to form a military alliance with the Nazis during WWII. In return for Hitler's help in transporting European Jews to Palestine, Shamir promised to take military action against the British authorities. The proposal was made to the Nazi consul in Beirut in January 1941 and then passed on to the German naval attaché in Constantinople, who was in charge of all German clandestine operations in the Middle East. The offer of alliance was discovered in the archives of the German Foreign Ministry after the war.

At the end of WWII the International Red Cross examined German war internment camps and came up with the figure of 350,000 dead. The IRC listed large numbers of men, women and children who died of typhus—a health problem which also affected the German population. Red Army political commissars captured in the war were mostly Marxist Jews and were shot along with spies, saboteurs and traitors.

Practically every survivor will relate tales of the gas chambers. Almost all the Holocaust books by survivors state that upon their arrival in the camps, Jews were sent directly to be gassed. Babies were snatched from their mothers' arms and thrown into the ovens. Nursing mothers were herded into the gas chambers still clutching their infants. Horror story was piled on horror story. Charlotte Bor-mann, a Communist political prisoner at Ravensbruck, stated in her book, The Gestapo Invites You, that rumors of gas executions were deliberate, malicious inventions circulated among the inmates by the Reds.

The Sell-Out of the White Tip

Even as the whole rotten structure of the Soviet Union was about to collapse and be merged in the “One World-New World Order,” the worldwide Communist conspiracy was able—with the witting or unwitting cooperation of the U.S. and Britain—to destroy the two most civilized and advanced countries in Africa: Rhodesia and the Republic of South Africa. Governed by a white minority, Rhodesia and South Africa were prosperous, law-and-order states that attracted immigrants from Europe as well as black Africans from the north. So solid was the economy of South Africa just 30 years ago that investors and ordinary folk the world over were hoarding SA gold rands in the event of an economic calamity. Today, after the subversive meddling of international political, financial and banking organizations, directed primarily by the Anglo-American-Jewish Establishment, Zimbabwe (once known as Rhodesia) and Azania (the proposed new name for South Africa) are fast becoming lawless, economic basket cases governed by a black Marxist, Robert Mugabe, in the case of the former and an erstwhile black Communist terrorist, Nelson Mandela, in the case of the latter.

While Nelson and Winnie Mandela have been reinvented and made salonfähig (socially acceptable) by the synchronized media of the West and portrayed as the veritable saviors and rightful rulers of South Africa, the white Afrikaners over the past few decades have been depicted as bigoted racists and cruel alien masters of an oppressed indigenous people. Nothing could be further from the truth.

While Europeans and Americans have been able to read about the “plight” and exploitation of the native peoples as seen or imagined by any number of white “liberal” or black South African writers, an Afrikaner, Claus Nordbruch, has now published a book entitled Volksbetrug am Kap: Richtigstellung zur jüngsten Geschichte Südafrikas (Betrayal of the Cape Afrikaners: A Revision of South Africa’s Recent History).<sup>1</sup> It presents a completely different picture than that to which Westerners have become accustomed, a picture of a politically divided, crime-ridden, unhappy land whose economy is moving from shaky to collapsing.

Nordbruch first describes the land, the people and its history. Essentially the population consists of Boers on the one hand, and the British and Jewish community on the other. The Boers,<sup>2</sup> Nordbruch contends, were best portrayed by German geographer Siegfried Passage one hundred years ago:

Anthropologically speaking, the Boers are the true descendants of emigrant Dutchmen, Lower Saxons, and Huguenots. They are strong muscular individuals, somewhat gruff farmers endowed with all the virtues and shortcomings of Germanic farmer folk, i.e., stolid, conservative, and stubborn, prone to follow tradition, but clever and practical, shortsighted but tough, devoted, and possessed of great endurance and unshakable calm.

The English and Jewish contingents, for the most part, were and remain city people whose interests lie more in the business, commercial and administrative realm than in cultivating the soil and putting down roots. While it would seem on the surface that their respective interests would not conflict, the fact is they do. The English and Jews are more involved internationally. The Boers, attached to the land, favor independence and nationalism. The Boers are quite capable of establishing an autarkic state, the very idea of which is anathema to the South African globalists.

In the 1600s the Dutch settled the land around the Cape, which at that time was sparsely populated by Bushmen and Hottentots. The British seized the area in 1806 and, following the discovery of diamonds and gold, the English and Jewish communities quickly expanded. The Dutch or Boers, resenting the intruders, trekked north and founded two separate republics: the Orange Free State and the Transvaal. Meanwhile, Zulus, Xhosas, Swazis and Sothos were migrating from the north to occupy the area from Transvaal to neighboring Transkei. In the course of time the Zulus (perhaps remembering their wars with the British) became allies of the Boers and retained an almost independent homeland. The other African tribes cooperated with the English.

As British imperialistic greed grew and Boer resentment seethed, the Anglo-Boer War (1899-1902) was fought to decide who would rule South Africa. After a costly, hard-fought victory and the introduction of the world’s first concentration camps for Boer women and children, the victorious British formally established the Union of South Africa, which incorporated the two Boer Republics. With the victory of Daniel Malan’s National Party in 1948, the Boers, who now enjoyed full power, withdrew from the British Commonwealth and established the Republic of South Africa.

Apartheid, which had previously existed only informally, now became official government policy. Laws were passed governing social, cultural, political and residential separation. Nordbruch described apartheid as a form of separate development that was in no way similar to the earlier U.S. policy of establishing reservations for Indians and was somewhat akin to the now expired U.S. policy of "separate-but-equal"<sup>3</sup> foisted on the emancipated black slaves. The homelands (Bantustans) established by the Afrikaners in the traditional ancestral tribal areas were far more humane than the American practice of seizing the richest land and relocating the Indians to barren areas. The equating of "apartheid" with "apart hate," a clever propagandistic ploy of those opposed to the policy, was a disservice to the accomplishments of the policy and to the truth.

In the opinion of Nordbruch, history is made by strong individuals—heroic builders or villainous wreckers—not by mobs, masses or even the electorate. The overwhelming number of Afrikaners had as little to do with the legitimization of the ANC (African National Congress), the freeing of Mandela, the transfer of power, and the integration of the races, as did the American people in the decisions to integrate the races and change the immigration quotas. Had the whites in either country been asked their opinion, they would almost certainly have opposed such policies as ultimately destructive of their traditional way of life. Such decisions, Nordbruch believed, were made by a few higher echelon "elitists." In Western democracies, the people's "representatives," most of whom were elected under false premises, never intimated that they would vote for such radical programs. In Nordbruch's view even the storming of the Bastille would not have occurred had it not been for Danton and Robespierre. The revolutionary events in South Africa occurred under the guidance of a few well-placed individuals, supported by international forces behind the scenes.

South Africa, Nordbruch and most Boers contended, reached its zenith under the leadership of Hendrik Verwoerd, the Afrikaner hero-builder. It was Verwoerd who formalized the homelands and created the Republic of South Africa in 1961, thereby winning full independence for the Afrikaners after 60 years of British rule.

Verwoerd, the murdered hero

It was under Verwoerd's leadership that the republic achieved its greatest economic successes. The rand was considered the most stable currency in the world. Unemployment and taxes were low; economic growth was high. Verwoerd encouraged and increased white immigration and investment from abroad. As much help was accorded the homelands as the economy permitted.<sup>4</sup>

All of these constructive processes ended on September 6, 1966, when a "deranged" Greek immigrant, Dimitrio Tsafendas, assassinated Verwoerd while he was making a speech in Parliament. The "fabulous years," as Afrikaners referred to Verwoerd's administration, came to an abrupt stop.

Nordbruch cites Jaap Marais, a veteran supporter of Verwoerd's policies, on the causes of the collapse of the republic:

There were many reasons why Verwoerd had to be murdered. The success of the separate development policy in South Africa was certainly one important reason. The policy was so successful that it was about to be adopted in . . . Mozambique, Rhodesia, and Southwest Africa. Had this been done, the influence of the Afrikaners in all of southern Africa would have been considerably strengthened. For that reason, Britain had to oppose it under all circumstances. This was, for example, the reason why the British were even prepared to deliver Rhodesia to a Communist government. The same pertains to Southwest Africa. The second main reason was the South African money lords. They wanted Verwoerd to "accommodate" his policy with respect to nonwhites so as to increase their profits. . . . [I]t was primarily the enterprises operated by the Jewish businessmen Oppenheimer and Ruppert that controlled matters. There is no doubt about that. In January 1966, Dr. Verwoerd said in Parliament that he would oppose the monopolies because they harmed South Africa. Oppenheimer and Ruppert naturally took the hint.

The decline in South African fortunes set in after the assassination of Verwoerd and the appointment of John Vorster as prime minister (1966-1978) and his eventual election to the presidency of the republic (1978-1979).

Nordbruch assigned a good part of his book to interviews with leading Afrikaner figures, whose voices and views were not heard in the U.S. or Europe, or, if heard, were routinely held up to ridicule. As Nordbruch quoted him, Marais, head of the Reconstituted National Party, denied that fear of black uprisings or economic sanctions had much to do with the Vorster government's abandonment of Verwoerd's policies. The South African military was stronger than ever and the country was quite capable of surviving sanctions. Instead, Marais believed:

As the people began to lose confidence in the post-Verwoerd policies, the outside pressure began to have a greater effect on the economy. In the 1980s, Oppenheimer said that the boycotts had contributed little or nothing to the elimination of apartheid. It was much more the international banks that were decisive. In the 1970s the inflation rate rose from 2% to 7%, while the growth rate fell from 6% to 3%. In the 1980s the inflation rate rose to 16%, while the economy almost stagnated with a 1% growth. The inflation naturally had its effect on the value of the rand. As a result, foreign loans became much more costly, which was precisely what the international banks had intended because the more South Africa fell into debt, the more dependent it became and the easier it was to pressure.

Mandela, no hero but a saboteur and terrorist

The absolute nadir of South African fortunes was not to be reached, according to Nordbruch and other Afrikaners, until the Frederik W. de Klerk era. To describe the feeling of betrayal experienced by the Afrikaners and to name the individuals they believed had sold them out, Nordbruch referred to Piet J. Pretorius's book, Sell-Out,<sup>5</sup> in which Pretorius claimed that influential South African individuals not only passed on secret information to foreign powers, but were themselves actually retained by foreign intelligence services.

President de Klerk's brother, Willem, was in Nordbruch's opinion as responsible for the collapse of the white South African government as the President himself. It was Willem, a professor, who was an early on activist in the psychological war against the white government. It was Willem who introduced such terms as verlig (enlightened) and verkramp (blind). The former term applies to those who favored power-sharing. The latter was a pejorative for those who preferred the separate development policy. International and national elements in favor of the "one-man, one-vote" concept, which meant eventual black rule, recruited liberal black and white ministers in both the Dutch and Anglican churches to preach the virtues of integration and "sharing power."

Behind the scenes Nordbruch stated American CIA agents and their British colleagues in MI6 were actively meddling in South African politics on the side of the verlig, as were the powerful masonic lodges, especially the key Bruderbund Lodge, which in the 1970s began to replace nationalists in high office with more internationally oriented members. Leading lodge brothers were reported to have held meetings with Communist leaders Jacob Zuma, Aziz Pahad and Thabo Mbeki, Mandela's successor.<sup>6</sup>

As for the African National Congress and the South African Communist Party, their strategies were indistinguishable. Both advocated and carried out terrorist plots and sabotage. Both advocated the overthrow of the legitimate government. As heads of the ANC, Mandela and Mbeki were close allies of Joe Slovo, the recently deceased Jew, Communist Party leader and KGB Colonel. Even Amnesty International, alleges Nordbruch, never considered Mandela a political prisoner but rather what he actually was—a saboteur and terrorist. In the course of the South African government's war against terrorism, many prominent Reds had been arrested, including Abraham Fisher, Walter Sisulu, Govan Mbeki, Harold Wolpe, Dennis Goldberg and Arthur Goldreich. Nordbruch cited political analyst Thomas G. Gulick to the effect that, among other aid, the Communist-dominated ANC and PAC (Pan Africanist Union) received 9 million American dollars every two years.<sup>7</sup>

Since the early 1980s, the ANC could no longer be distinguished from the Communist Party. Like their allies to the north, SWAPO in Southwest Africa, ZAPU in Rhodesia, FRELIMO and the MPLA in Mozambique, the ANC strove to unite the black masses under Marxist leadership.

Unfortunately the combined forces of the democratic West, international capitalism, currency speculators, international communism and "world public opinion" have prevailed and Dr. Verwoerd's South Africa is no more. Nelson Mandela is honored by Her Majesty the Queen and fawned over by an American president. Today, Communists in Russia and elsewhere have officially become part of the New World Order governed by international financial and banking interests. It has been said, however, that international capitalism will soon stink as badly as did international communism. Should that day come, the whole rotten financial structure of the West will also come tumbling down.<sup>8</sup>

The Washington Times (June 19, 1998) reported that unprecedented aid from the central banks of Britain and the U.S. has failed to stem a collapse in the value of South Africa's currency on world foreign exchange markets. The rand crashed 8% in value against the dollar in 24 hours. The rand's fate—and the response of the South African Reserve Bank as well as its new-found intervention allies in London and Washington—is likely to dictate the state of the future economy. Economists fear the weaker rand will translate into higher inflation.

The Other Side of Ian Smith

Instauration's review of Ian Smith's published book, The Great Betrayal (June 1998), shows that, like all too many, the reviewer has taken at face value Ian Smith's vain and craftily evasive memoirs.

The real value of Smith's opus lies in what he has left out. A small but significant minority of Rhodesians saw through Smith, the politician, even before he "crossed over" from the old liberal establishment party to join the grassroots Rhodesian Front, whereupon he ousted the naive and overly trustful leader, Winston Field. But most people soon forgot, even though it was common knowledge that during the vital election period (1964-65) Smith's speeches had been specially prepared for him by his new information adviser, Ivor Benson. This was recognized later by the Jewish writer, B.A. Kosmin, in his book, Majuta: A History of the Jewish Community in Zimbabwe, a book wholly friendly to Smith. As most Rhodesians knew at the time, Smith's speeches, typical of grassroots Rhodesians, gave Smith his wholly undeserved "right-wing image," which he has been trading on ever since.

That Smith was a ruthless and cunning political operator can be seen in the way he has either left out or evaded such issues as:

(a) the takeover and hamstringing of the early Friends of Rhodesia organization (discussed in four important chapters in the 1995 edition of Ivor Benson's book, Truth Out of Africa);

(b) the staging of the Chiefs' Conference as a preliminary deception and betrayal of the loyal tribal hierarchy;

(c) the ruthless persecution in the 1970s of Wilfred Brooks, editor of the Rhodesian Property & Finance journal, until his career was ruined;

(d) the tricking of Lord Graham, Duke of Montrose, to remove him from Parliament. (Smith had a much earlier dislike of Graham, as described by the Duke himself, in his memoirs, posthumously published, after some family editing, by his widow in 1996.)

Unforgivable were Smith's "kindly words" for leading Rhodesian Jews like Gelfand, Palley and Rosin, all vehement leftist-liberals. Smith also had praise for Kissinger and Zionism's puppet, Nelson Mandela. The presence of Kissinger and Mandela in Smith's gallery of favorites ought to have shown which way the wind was blowing. As for Prime Minister John Vorster, he and Smith were willing "birds of a feather" in Kissinger's great "African Common Market" network. Why else would Smith fail to mention the stunning revelations in 1962 of U.S. Congressman Donald Bruce's Congo exposure. Why else would he fail to mention South Africa's treason trials of the late 50s and 1964, culminating in the complete exposure of Mandela's Zionist revolutionary leaders, all white "plutocrats" of Big Money.

It also seems strange that reviewers of Smith's autobiography should fail to notice that he continues to receive a relatively "good press" from the left, in addition to blind adulation from the bemused right. Yes, ordinary Rhodesians fought bravely, but they were bamboozled by Smith into fighting the wrong enemy, the blacks, in a classic 20th-century no-win war designed for other long-term purposes.

True-Blue Anti-Zionists

My father was a lifelong friend of Charles C. Crane, the Chicago manufacturer who authored the 1919 Crane-King Commission Report opposing the Zionist conquest and colonization of Palestine. There is a certain continuity in family thought. No one can really speak of an American anti-Zionist tradition, but there are a few true-blue Americans who have always known the score and have done their best to pass this knowledge on.

Races and Species

The daily paper tells us that "anthropologists can find no clear racial boundaries to show where one 'racial' group stops and another begins." Science has understood this ever since 1758 when Carolus Linnaeus created the biological system of classification still in use today. If there were clear boundaries between two groups, they would be classified as separate species, like chimpanzees and Homo Sapiens. A race is a subdivision of a species that has multiple overlapping groups. Synonymous terms are variety and subspecies. The ambiguous term "population" is today a politically correct euphemism. Blacks and whites are considered races of the same species precisely because there are no clear boundaries between them. Populations intergrade from one to the other. Blacks and whites can and do voluntarily interbreed and produce viable and fertile offspring. That is why they are classified as races rather than separate species.

Gambling Shysters

I work for an attorney, so I readily concur with most of what Zip 323 wrote in "The Litigation Racket" (June 1998). However, I don't know that I would characterize a lot of the lawyers' earnings as "easy money." Under contingency fee arrangements, a number of personal injury attorneys bankroll the litigation of their clients, who pay no legal fees if they don't win their cases. I have personally seen my boss invest $250,000 in a case and get nothing in return. Remember, those "outrageous" awards are also underwriting cases that provide little or no reward to a firm. There is more than a touch of the gambler in successful trial lawyers, who frequently exhibit flamboyant lifestyles. No matter how good a case you have, there's no telling how a jury will react. There is always a bit of "stage fright" on the eve of a trial.

Jurors, of course, are under no compulsion to award money even if they find a tort was committed. The same is true of a judge in a non-jury trial, as evinced in the June "Talking Numbers" snippet pertaining to the University of Texas students who were wronged by affirmative action policies, but received only $1 as compensation.

Jury selection, by the way, is now the specialized province of highly paid consultants, at least in top-dollar cases. My boss believes jury selection is 90% of the battle. Having seen some of the questionnaires that go to jurors during voir dire (the selection process), it is obvious that a juror's right to privacy is severely limited. A local woman recently served time in jail for refusing to answer questions she deemed too personal.

Nevertheless it's hard to work up too much sympathy for the deep-pocket defendants, such as large corporations, insurance companies and, increasingly, the Catholic Church.

Der Führer Was Right

I thought your article on Hitler ("Wolfman!," July 1998) was unduly harsh. Analogizing him to a wolf is pretty much of a stretch.

How can Lorden write such poetry and still believe in the Holocaust? And he hails from the land of Zündel. In his story Lorden cries "Wolf!" But Uncle Adolf figured out the Jewish question and converted a whole nation to anti-Semitism.

Hitler was right. So he lost. Our side always seems to lose these days. He's still right. He felt the tide and heard the crashing waves of the mystical ocean of the collective unconscious. The tsunami he conjured raised Wotan for a season.

Saddened Reader

Lorden's "Wolfman!" article probably serves a couple of purposes. It proves that Instauration is open to writers with the widest range of historical and personal viewpoints. It also relieves the serious reader of feeling obligated to take Lorden seriously.

Reading "Wolfman!" was like opening a time capsule. It sounded like everything I ever heard in elementary school. At first I couldn't believe it. Then it dawned on me Lorden was serious. The article confirmed everything I suspected after having read Lorden's previous article, "Goldhagen's Gaps" (Feb. 1998). I suppose I thought Instaurationists were more mature than that. I thought they could admit to having been tricked into fratricide. I thought they could see the evil in internationalism. But maybe not. Maybe they find comfort in the old-time propaganda. Maybe years in the front lines surrounded by death precludes an honest assessment of the enemy's leader. Lorden probably has a well-developed racial consciousness. But in this article he was doing the enemy's work. Maybe someone should point that out to him. Frankly, I found it all unspeakably sad.

Unbelievable Article

I cannot believe you printed Peter Lorden's word trip. How quickly we forget! Not too long ago many of the KGB files were opened and a lot of former murderers came forward and bragged about wearing German uniforms while butchering civilians. When any Russian town was in danger of falling, Beria and the NKVD would step in and play their lethal tricks.

Lorden couldn't shine David Irving's shoes. Let's remember, to get a book published by a former German officer would be impossible if it didn't have something bad to say about the "bogeyman!"

When I was in Paraguay I had access to some private libraries. I spoke with many Germans who survived the trek. Never did I ever hear a bad word spoken about Hitler. But alas, even in this last outpost, race-mixing is creeping in. It's hard to outrun a satellite.

I hope Lorden doesn't write something about the South. I'm taking my family to Brentwood (TN) for the unveiling of a 20-foot-high stature of General Forrest. The tribe has been going wild about it in the local papers.

Reviving Wartime Propaganda

Peter J. Lorden is really something! First we get forged quotations from The Voice of Destruction by Hermann Rauschning, then we get the myth of a Nazi "sneak attack" on a peaceful, unoffending Soviet Union. Now we get "Wolfman!"

Let's take the case of Poland. Nowhere in Lorden's article does he mention the many thousands of Germans butchered and horribly mutilated by Polish mobs prior to September 1939. No one dares to mention the innumerable, extremely moderate German peace proposals for resolving German-Polish differences. No one dares to mention the one million German ethnics driven out of Poland between the two wars, the closing of their schools and the liquidation of their businesses. These poor, innocent Poles just didn't do anything to deserve the retribution.

As for the alleged atrocities in Poland, this comes from The Drama of the Germany Army by John W. Wheeler-Bennett. It contains an account of a fictional extermination speech allegedly given at the Obersalzberg on August 22, 1939. The forged quotation says, "our strength lies in the absence of pity and in violence," and "mercilessly killing everyone of the Polish race and tongue, men, women and children. . . ."

Undoubtedly a certain number of Poles were liquidated. After Bloody Bomberg it is difficult to sympathize with them. How could the Jews of German-occupied Poland have been done away with (even partially) when most of them had already fled to the Soviet zone? Besides, if extermination had been the goal, why did the Germans build the Warsaw Ghetto? As for unleashing the "wolves" after the invasion of Russia, when SS General Stroop crushed the Warsaw Ghetto uprising in 1943, the 50,000-plus Jewish prisoners were deported further eastward (the reason for the revolt in the first place) rather than being executed on the spot. So what happened to the "wolves?"

Hitler issued harsh orders for the conduct of war in the east. Please remember, the Germans were fighting the most barbarous enemy on earth. The Soviets never signed the Geneva Convention, regularly executed German prisoners from the opening of the Russian campaign and scorched the earth in retreat to starve their own population, not to mention millions of captured Soviet infantrymen. So the Germans were brutal, too. How did the Einsatzgruppen, which consisted of only 3,000 total personnel, manage to kill all that multitude of people before it was disbanded in Russia, why are the diaries of secret police chief Himmler still hidden away in Israeli hands? And that famous Posen speech! Himmler allegedly brags about murder squads, tape records the speech, then allows it to fall into the hands of his political rival, Alfred Rosenberg, where it becomes an Allied prosecution exhibit (after incriminating pagination is inserted into it by unknown hands). All in all, it's a great way to keep secret exterminations secret!

As little as I think of Lorden as a scholar, I think even less of Instauration's editor for publishing his article. After all the revisionist research which has been published overturning the legends of WWII, you print this? And oh, that wolf face with swastikas on its eyeballs! The next time your Anglophile soul wishes to recreate wartime propaganda, I suggest you print a photo of a Nile crocodile, its fearsome jaws clamped around a poor animal, with the insignia of Ireland or India on its bloody corpse, while the English Union Jack shines in the croc's loathsome eyes.

No Hitler. No Holocaust Blather

I found Lorden's "Wolfman!" article rather refreshing. One does get a little bit weary of hearing Hitler worshipfully praised ad nauseam by the radical right. Let's not forget that if Hitler had not come upon the scene, at least 50 million white men and women would not have died in a senseless war. Most importantly, we wouldn't have the Holocaust albatross eternally around our necks.

Aesthetic Prop Envisioned

In the film, A Perfect Murder, there is a telling scene. Gwyneth Paltrow, tall and as Nordic as they come, goes hunting for the apartment of a man who attempted to murder her. Her search takes her to a flea-bag building populated by browns and blacks. As she makes her way down the street, down an alley, into an apartment house and down the corridor, all heads turn in disbelief at the sight of this angel in their midst. I've seen thousands of movies in my life, but I don't think I've ever seen the aesthetic prop so boldly portrayed.

Federally Subsidized Porn

The National Endowment for the Arts gave:

- $60,000 to the producers of the documentary, Sick, which has a closeup of a masochist nailing his penis to a board.
- $400,000 to the 1997 biannual of the Whitney Museum of American Art, which featured Santa's Workshop, a video which showed naked females defecating in a bucket.
- $50,000 to "artist" Joel-Peter Within, who had a head from a morgue sawed in half and positioned so that the two halves seemed to be kissing.

Male Teachers Wanted

The dominant role of women and their effectiveness in training boys and young men in pre-college education is finally being weighed in the balance. The embattled ex-Supreme Court candidate Robert Bork surmises that many white suburban kids are cottoning to misogynistic rap lyrics because they resent the authority figures of mothers, female teachers and domineering, whining feminists. It is well known and unfortunately still accepted that many schoolboys are routinely being drugged because of "attention deficit disorder," which schoolmarm cannot control. Schoolboys have never behaved as docilely as schoolgirls nor should they be expected to. The problem is best solved by having more male teachers. Perhaps then the teaching profession would receive the recognition, prestige, importance and pay it deserves.

Slow Speed

The Constitution, as we all know, speaks of the right to a speedy trial for those who fall into the clutches of the law. But what about Sam Bowers, an old Ku Klux hand, who was arrested in June and charged with the firebomb murder of a black racist way back in 1966? Bowers has been tried twice before for the same crime. In both cases the jury deadlocked.

Ideology Switcher

Some years ago Harvard sociologist Nathan Glazer was distinguished for being the rare Jewish academic who opposed affirmative action. Today he takes it all back. The only doctrine Jews seem to stick to is Jewish racism which, it goes without saying, they never describe as such. In his salad days Glazer described himself tortuously as, "Luxembourgian. . . non-Leninist but revolutionary in some obscure way." How they jump like hoptoads from ism to ism!

Straight Talk for Queers

Homosexuality is obviously caused by some genetic mixup. Anyone with half a cerebrum knows that, yet large contingents of peabrained Republicans are now talking about a "cure." All this nuttiness does is further divide a party that should be the political arm of the American Majority. How are we going to fight our enemies with a platform that totally misunderstands the nature of queers. Let the homos flock to the Democratic Party, where they belong. Let the anti-abortion crowd move their ideas and practices to religion and out of politics. Let's stick to the main issue—race.

Irreconcilable Differences

The Gammage Case: When a white cop skirmishes with a wildly out-of-control Negro, he has to be careful, very careful. If by some chance the black has some physical affliction and dies in the middle of the struggle, he is no longer an aggressor. He has now been magically and mediocratically transformed into a martyr, while the cop has become a murderer. Eventually a series of trials, civil and criminal, are set in motion. In each case the black jurors vote guilty and white jurors vote to acquit the defendant. In the meantime the city fathers have been forced to come across with a considerable amount of money to staunch the tears of the bereaved relatives.

The above scenario was repeated almost word for word in the case of Jonny Gammage, a Negro who died two years ago in a scuffle in a Pittsburgh suburb with five cops after he had been pulled over for "erratic driving." Two of the cops were not charged. A third was acquitted by an out-of-town jury. The remaining two cops had to endure two trials. The first trial ended in a mistrial when a Jewish coroner testified improperly. The second ended in a hung jury with 11 whites voting to acquit and one lone Negro insisting on a guilty verdict. Meanwhile the city fathers gave Gammage's relatives $1.5 million. A third trial was scheduled but a federal judge cancelled it on the basis that the litigation had gone on much too long. So far the prosecution has not appealed.

The Gammage case was one more proof that the Anglo-Saxon and Negro interpretation of the law differ widely. To borrow a line from Kipling, "Never the twain (white and Negro jurisprudence) shall meet."

Law derives from culture and the culture of the Negro is totally unsuited to what has evolved into Western law. Wild inattention to facts, florid exaggeration and utter disrespect for the truth should have no place in any legal system, yet this is exactly the baggage which blacks bring with them when they enter the halls of justice.

The Tawana Brawley Case: Nothing in recent times has been more of a thorn in the criminal justice system than the Tawana Brawley case. A black 15-year-old in Dutchess County (NY) smeared herself with animal feces, scratched racial slurs on her body and crept into a garbage bag. When found she claimed she had been a victim of white rapists. Based on the many discrepancies in Tawana's story, the press should have devoted at most a one-day, back-page story to the so-called crime. Instead it became an international cause célèbre. After three Negro headline-hunting attorneys got their hands on it, it degenerated to the point where some credence was actually given to Tawana's howling prevarications.

Sharpton's racism cost him plenty

The black legal trio went so far as to claim that Steve Pagonis, a member of the prosecution team, was one of Tawana's rapists. This vicious ad hominem was too much for any prosecutor to bear. Pagonis sued Al Sharpton and his two assistant shysters (C. Vernon Mason, who had been disbarred, and Alton Maddox) for $365,000. The three lawyers fought the case in talk shows and in the streets. One noisy demonstration was held in Washington. Somehow, Tawana never came to court to give her side of the story under oath. The farce ended when Pagonis was awarded $345,000 by a six-person jury composed of four whites and two blacks. Sharpton was hit for $65,000; Maddox for $95,000; Mason for $185,000. This was small change compared to the $1.5 million that the county had to pay to the Gammage relatives.

Pagonis, of course, will probably never collect even a fraction of this legal windfall. But the case may possibly persuade some members of the black legal community to exercise some restraint on what it can say and get away with. On the downside the trial gave tons of publicity to Sharpton, which he put to use in running as a Democratic candidate for New York City mayor. He made a substantial showing. There is a slim possibility that this un-evolved biped will one day preside over the affairs of Zoo City.

Quota Quotes

Mark Willes, editor of the Los Angeles Times, plans to carry his liberaloid predispositions to the extremes of absurdity. From now on he has commanded his Majority writers to back up their articles with some quote or comment from a minorityite or a woman. If his staff should refuse or neglect to do this, Willes promises he will do the job himself. Willes acquired his vast knowledge of newspaperdom from a lifetime in the cereal business. He was previously CEO of General Mills.

• Everywhere They're Tops

Richard Holbrooke was named to replace Bill Richardson, a half-Latino, as U.S. Ambassador to the UN. This leaves the top jobs in the Clinton administration almost completely in the hands of Jews: State (Albright); Defense (Cohen); Treasury (Rubin); National Security Adviser (Berger); Senior Adviser (Emmanuel). Though not officially part of the government, Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan wields a powerful economic punch. Lack of space prevents listing all the Jewish agency heads. Meissner of INS and Goldin of NASA are two of the most important. Considering the overwhelming Jewish presence in the U.S. citizens can be forgiven for thinking that something is out of kilter.

Outlandish Suit

It was only right that Georgia Tech would renege on its offer to make Jeffrey Sonnenfeld dean of the Business School at a salary of 200 kilobucks a year. Before leaving Emory University, the Jewish egghead was caught in flagrante delicto vandalizing Emory property. As a result he was fired from his Emory job. Instead of taking his punishment like a man, Sonnenfeld is suing like a Jew. He claims the charge of vandalism has hurt his reputation, as well as his finances.

Metamorphosed Snitch

Lt. Ivan Shapow of the Springfield (NJ) police faces a three-rank demotion and a 60-day suspension without pay for secretly taping a private phone conversation of his superior officer, Capt. Vernon Pedersen, who was heard saying, referring to Shapow, "that Jew bastard." These buzz words naturally put a totally different spin on the matter. Now Shapow, instead of being a lowdown snitch, has become a First Amendment buff. Pedersen, on the other hand, is now in the doghouse as a certified anti-Semite. He was relieved of his position on April 8.

Gates's Flunky

Brooklynite Steve Ballmer, a second-generation American, has taken over as president of Microsoft. It's not the first time an outsider has "inherited" a wildly successful Majority company. Ballmer, by the way, doesn't know enough about computers to write a simple program.

Black Overspending

Lincoln University is on the brink of financial disaster. For 144 years it was supposed to be the lighthouse of black education. Today, President Niara Sudarkase has practically thrown Lincoln's treasury away, spending $531,963 to refurbish the university home she shares with her husband. The trustees only authorized $6,000 for improvements. Sudarkase collects $157,000 a year in salary. Wonder what the late Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall would say about his alma mater?

Querulous Rabbi

A lady member of the Cincinnati police force, Monica Gaynor, stopped Rabbi David Becker in September 1994 for walking against a traffic light while on his way home from synagogue services. She ordered him to sit in her police car and sign a jaywalking citation, although he claimed it was against his religion to get into any automobile and carry any identification on the Jewish Sabbath. The officer warned the rabbi he would be jailed if he did not comply. He did comply, but later went over her head and complained to the city fathers. To get Becker off their backs, they paid him $7,000 and killed the jaywalking charge. Who says Talmudic law is not taking precedence over U.S. law?

Third Racial Confab

In the third and thankfully last of Clinton's racial omnigatherums, the President proudly announced that he had a grandmother who was one-quarter Cherokee. The American people used to boast of their lack of color. Now their chief of state boasts of having a splotch of redness.

The conference once again proved that you can't talk about race if you can only talk about it out of one side of your mouth. Anyone who speaks honestly about racial realities—the Negro crime rate, for example—would be denounced as a racist and escorted to the door.

Wrong Turn

In all the reams of newspaper print lavished on the murder of Ennis Cosby, comic Bill Cosby's son, not one word was mentioned about "Jews." The murderer, Mikhail Markhasev, was always described as "a Ukrainian immigrant."

Mrs. Cosby didn't blame Markhasev for the tragedy. She blamed America itself, which she claimed had taught Markhasev to hate blacks. From what she said one could hardly be forgiven for believing that Markhasev, an honor student turned gang member, had taken a few courses in phobic antiblackism. What Mrs. Cosby didn't say and what black voices almost never say is that Negroes themselves have moved into the racial hatred business—with a vengeance. Many more blacks

Mrs. Cosby doesn't blame Markhasev

these days kill whites than vice versa. What contributes dramatically to racial hatred is the inexcusably overblown coverage of white crime and the soft-pedaling of the ravages inflicted on white society by Negro law-breakers. By falsely blaming white America for a murder committed by a Ukrainian Jewish immigrant who had only been in this country for little more than a decade, Mrs. Cosby was doing much more to stir up racial hatred than, for example, some itinerant band of aging Ku Kluxers.

Mrs. Cosby should compare the justice meted out to her son's murderer (life with no parole) to how the criminal justice system treated 18-year-old Joel Lee's murder five years ago. A black approached Lee (a Korean) on a Baltimore street and shot him dead. Despite the testimony of four eyewitnesses, a jury of 11 blacks and one white acquitted him. Such is Negro justice, such is O.J. justice.

It is unlikely that white Americans are responsible for the racist feelings, if any, of the Ukrainian Jew who murdered

Ennis Cosby. More likely, it was the irresponsible, repulsive and often criminal behavior of so many of the members of Mrs. Cosby's own race that gave rise to his racial views.

Simmering Boycotts

If you are a Jew and want to go car shopping, you have fewer and fewer choices. You shouldn't buy a Ford because old Henry was unenthused about the Chosen. You shouldn't buy a Chrysler because the company is being bought by Daimler-Benz, manufacturer of the Mercedes, a car once fancied by Hitler. It gets worse. Rolls Royce, once the status symbol of the rich, especially rich Jews, has been bought by BMW, another German car company.

When it involved status and showoff, some Jews have always been willing to cut Gentile carmakers a little slack. That is why there are so many Mercedes littering the garages of Tinseltown. When the Beetle was all the rage, many Jews, especially the hipsters and class warriors among them, went along with the flow. Nevertheless old hatreds still haunt the Jewish psyche. Many of them still use their pocketbooks as anti-German weapons.

It's lucky for the Chosen that non-Jews don't act like Jews. What would happen to Jewish wealth if Gentiles based their buying preferences on ethnicity?

Novelist Fuhrman

Not to be missed because of the message it carries about how wealth distorts justice in America, Mark Fuhrman, the embattled LAPD detective and author of the bestseller, Murder in Brentwood, has written a second masterful volume about another terrible miscarriage of justice. The sleuth's opus, Murder in Greenwich, deals with the vicious, "unsolved" murder of 15-year-old Martha Moxley in one of the country's most exclusive residential communities. Whereas the Simpson case had much to do with race, the Moxley murder has everything to do with money and political power. Fuhrman reexamines the evidence of the long since "cold" case committed in 1975 and concludes that the most likely perpetrator was Michael Skakel of the wealthy and prominent Skakel family. Michael is the nephew of Ethel Skakel Kennedy, through whose marriage to Robert Kennedy the fortunes of the Skakel and Kennedy clans were joined. Public awareness of the family ties between the Skakels and Kennedys became clearer when William Kennedy Smith was charged and later acquitted of rape in Palm Beach.

Unfree

Some Majority activists put up a sign on the California-Arizona border that bluntly stated, "Illegal immigrants are not welcome in California." Latinos smelled racism. One of California's most powerful Hispanics, Manuel Obledo, warned that unless the sign was removed by June 27, he would personally burn it down. The owners of the billboard took it down three days ahead of time. They said they were all for free speech, but they had to preserve their property.

Change of Racial Scenery

The demographers keep reminding us that in the near future, America will not be a white majority country. It's one thing to digest statistics intellectually; it's another to actually experience what they represent. Case in point: Irving Mall in suburban Dallas. It used to be overwhelmingly white with a sprinkling of blacks and Mexicans, the traditional minorities. During a recent visit to the food court, I did a little number-crunching in my head as I eyeballed the locals. The future the demographers projected was already there. Whites were definitely a minority. So was everyone else: Blacks, Mexicans, subcontinent Indians, Asians, Middle Easterners and some generic brown-skinned people I couldn't place. The food court and the shopping mall may be the staples of modern Americana, but I never felt less American in my life.

J.H.

Immigration Madness

Under the unenlightened leadership of Doris Meissner the INS has granted refugee status:

- To certain African women who choose not to undergo female circumcision.
- To some Chinese women who would like to have more than one child.
- To some AIDS-infected individuals who might be ostracized in their home countries.
- To some Jews from the former Soviet Union who sensed that Russians and Ukrainians dislike them because of their prominent roles in the Communist dictatorship.

Recently the INS reported that resident visas will be offered to some 400 refugees from Rwanda and Burundi, whose marriages across ethnic lines have put their lives at risk.

Primate Watch

Nathaniel Abraham, a black 11-year-old Detroit kid, will be tried as an adult for murdering an 18-year-old as the latter emerged from a party. Abraham could get the death penalty. He will be the youngest murder defendant in U.S. history.

Another 11-year-old black, this time in Dallas, has been found guilty of beating to death a three-year-old girl. His name has been withheld by authorities. Since he will be tried as a juvenile, he can't be given a death sentence.

#

In Slidel (LA) a black asserted he was dragged by a car full of whites for 2½ blocks. When police investigated, they found the alleged crime was the aftermath of a drug deal that soured. Later, Cornelius Weaver, 23, admitted he had fabricated the yarn.

#

A weirdo named Shawn Lichtfuss scrawled graffiti attacking Zionism and Israel in foot-high, spray-painted letters on three synagogues in Bucks Co. (PA). He said he wanted to tell Americans that Jews oppressed, mistreated and dispossessed the Palestinians. It was hardly a serious crime, but Lichtfuss's bail was set at $1 million.

#

The law is finally catching up with Rev. Henry Lyons, the high-flying, high-living head of the National Baptist Convention USA. In all, he was charged with 56 counts of fraud, extortion, money laundering, conspiracy and tax evasion. Arrested with Lyons was Brenda Harris, who shared with him a $700,000 mansion in Tampa (FL). While on the church's payroll Brenda was the recipient of such gifts as a Mercedes and expensive jewelry. Unlike Lichtfuss (see above), she and Lyons had to put up not one penny of bail.

James Freedman has left Dartmouth, where he was president for 11 agonizing years. His shtick, to use a term derived from his ancestral lingo, was to insinuate that all his critics were anti-Semites.

#

Hispanic Robert F. Sierra Jr. crashed his truck into a tree and ran away, leaving his girlfriend, Sarah Skinner, to die for lack of medical attention.

#

There are two Timothy McVeighs. One is Timothy J. McVeigh, the Oklahoma City bomber. The other is Timothy R. McVeigh, recently dismissed from the U.S. Navy for his homosexual propensities. Instead of being thrown out brutally, he was treated magnanimously, allowed to retire, given all his benefits and awarded $90,000 for his legal expenses.

Michael deVegler, another criminal friend of Clinton and his chief fundraiser in Georgia, has been charged with accepting a $41,936 bribe for steering a Florida county's $500-million-bond issue to Lazard Frères, the octopean Jewish investment bank.

#

By age 35, Preston Allen of Washington (DC) had 16 children by 11 different women. He was recently jailed for three years for failing to provide any child support for his brood. As soon as they were born, he invariably forgot about them. When asked by the judge if he had ever heard of condoms, The black Lothario said they made him break out in a rash.

#

Four fairies, who toiled in the hair salon at tony Bergdorf Goodman, sued their boss, John Barrett, for $124 million for sexual harassment, proving that this "crime" is not always male-on-female.

#

A year ago Randall Visor, a scruffy, bearded black in Aurora (IL), ran a red light and crashed into a car containing three pretty young Majority high school girls. All were killed, as was the black "companion" riding with Visor. Only the murderer survived.

#

Three men opened fire in a Karaoke bar in Tacoma in early July. Five Vietnamese were killed and five wounded. The perpetrators, some of whom have been arrested, are Cambodian gooks. Is the Vietnam War, once believed to be over, moving to the state of Washington?

#

In Chicago, Onowanique Tribble, a 16-month-old girl, wouldn't go to sleep. So her black unmarried parents chopped off her hands, feet and one forearm, which they fried and fed to local dogs and other animals. The remains of the toddler's body were left to soak for weeks in a tub of battery acid.

#

Daryl Jones, nominated by Clinton to be Secretary of the Air Force, is just the kind of person the President is looking for to fill top-level jobs in his administration. He is a black. He lied about being grounded as an unqualified pilot. He broke military regulations by trying to force Amway products on his fellow reservists. The more Jones appealed to Clinton, the less he appealed to the U.S. Senate, which refused to confirm him.

Patricia Cochran, unwed mother of Johnnie Cochran Jr.'s child, has instituted a palimony suit against the Negro shyster, infamous for playing the race card in the O.J. Simpson murder trial. Mrs. Cochran (she borrowed his name) claims she has been living with him for 20 years.

#

The N.Y. Court of Appeals removed Criminal Court Judge Lorin Duckman from the Bench. He had let an ex-con go free who had promised to kill his girlfriend, a promise he made good on a few weeks later.

#

Ten years after he killed three white sisters and their 11-year-old brother, mongrel Leo Narvaiz Jr. was given the needle in the Huntsville (TX) prison.

#

NAACP officials can't seem to break the habit of lying. The new executive director of the Pittsburgh chapter of the black racist organization, Stanley Holbrook, decided to quit after it was discovered he had greatly embellished his education résumé. He wrote that he had two degrees from two different universities. It was a figment of his imagination.

#

Twenty queers were arrested when they tried to prevent Zoo City Mayor Rudolph Giuliani from taking part in a Gay and Lesbian Pride March. They had it in for the pseudo-Republican for not doing enough to curb anti-homo violence. They also shafted him for shutting down porn shops.

#

The latest racial hoax unraveled in the mostly black First Colonial High School in Virginia Beach. Antiblack messages were scrawled on the gym walls and surrounding areas. The miscreant turned out to be Glenn Veasy, the school's black basketball coach.

#

According to a letter in the Dallas Morning News (June 14), Dr. Khalid Mohammed, "called for the indiscriminate murder of whites" at a meeting of the Pan-African Connection. He was not persecuted for committing a hate crime.

#

Santos Pastor Baca, a one-man population explosion in Honduras, is the proud father of 35 children. His oldest is 51; his youngest three months.

#

Cleveland State is the first university to offer a master's degree in diversity.

Composition of Starr's grand jury: 12 black women, 6 white women, 2 black men and 3 white men. One of the black women is the jury's forewoman.

In 1997 federal immigration authorities reported holding 50,165 aliens who had committed crimes. Most had been imprisoned for aggravated felonies. After being sent whence they came, how many will return? None? Some? All?

Students of music for four years or more scored 59 points higher than average in the verbal part of the College Entrance Exam; 44 points higher on the math part. Speaking of music, the intelligence of laboratory rats gave a noticeable jump after they listened to Mozart.

75% of the drivers on I-95 in Maryland are white, but in 1995-97 only 23% of those stopped and searched by state troopers were white. Although only 17% of drivers on I-95 are black, 70% of those flagged down were Negroes. The media blamed this discrepancy on racism. No matter that statistics show that blacks are inveterate speeders and accident-prone. DWN (driving while Negro) is no longer a joke to members of highway patrols. The ACLU and NAACP have filed a class action suit to force cops to quota-ize tickets.

Debt represented 83% of Americans' disposable income in 1997. 4.9% of this amount represented credit card delinquency. Bankruptcy filings reached a new high of 1.4 million. Yet experts continue to boast about the "robust economy."

Boosters of affirmative action are not only minorities and liberals. They are also big Majority corporations. Boeing has contributed $50,000 towards fighting Washington State's Proposition 1-200, which calls for ending affirmative action in state jobs and institutions.

More than 40% of those aged 65 will enter a nursing home before they die. Average cost is $40,000 a year.

It's bad but it could be worse. Less than 3% of all marriages in the U.S. are interracial.

States with Jewish populations of over 4%: New York 9.1%; New Jersey 5.5%; Florida 4.5%; Massachusetts 4.4%; Maryland 4.2%; States with 0.1% or less Jews: North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana,

Arkansas, Idaho, Mississippi, West Virginia and Wyoming. (Source: American Jewish Yearbook 1997)

In the first quarter of this year 1,532 dogs were caught as they roamed the dingy streets of Detroit. Many of these semi-wild canines have coagulated into packs that have become a major menace to mailmen and small children. Last year 15,000 calls, many unanswered, were made to the city's animal control division.

Los Angeles-Riverside-Orange County has more Hispanics (5,850,261) and more Asians (1,712,608) than any other metro area. Dallas-Ft. Worth has the highest number of whites (3,099,558).

Whites spend 13.5 hours a week on housework; blacks 9. Whites are couch potatoes 20 hours a week; blacks 24.

Proposition 227 torpedoed bilingual education in California, provided the education establishment complies. The vote was 60/40. 37% of Hispanics were yeasayers.

29.3% of females and 26.3% of males in the 25-29 age bracket have graduated from college. 1 in 3 whites, compared to 1 in 7 blacks, have obtained a bachelor's or higher degree.

Nearly half of black girls and 15% of white girls show signs of puberty as early as age 8.

Foundation heads are not underpaid. They average $363,000 a year. In 1997 Thomas Lofton banked $450,000 plus $163,648 in benefits for running the Lilly Endowment. In the same year Susan B. Beresford got $440,500 plus $169,705 in benefits for guiding the destiny of the Ford Foundation.

1 million U.S. teenagers become pregnant each year; 200,000 of them have abortions. 69.8% of black children born in 1996 were bastards; 40.7% of Hispanics; 21.5% of whites.

Less than 2% of the 394 clerks hired by current members of the Supreme Court were black; 4.5% Asian. No Indian or Hispanic clerks were employed. Conversely, of the 26 law clerks working for the U.S. District Court, 15% were non-white. The National Bar Association, composed of 17,000 blacks, is screaming discrimination. Jews, who are vastly over-represented in the Supreme Court (2 out of 9) are not counted as minorities.

Rudolf Kos has cost the Catholic Diocese of Denver $23.4 million. That's what the Diocese has been ordered to pay for the priest's sexual abuse of nine former altar boys. Kos is in jail for life.

Federal and state law enforcement agencies were permitted to wiretap 1,186 phones in 1997. This permitted snoopers to secretly listen to 2 million private conversations.

Although the majority of Americans are against it, the Clinton administration continues to give special preferences to minority companies. Last year affirmative actioners handed out $10.8 billion worth of contracts to "disadvantaged firms."

Children in more than 10,000 U.S. schools are forced to attend 35-minute courses once or twice a week in which they are taught about empathy, problem solving and anger management.

There are now more American Muslims than Presbyterians, Episcopalians or Mormons.

Average NBA hoopster salary is $2.36 million. Footballer Sean Gilbert has a $47.5 million, 7-year contract, which means he will make more in 7 years than the average American family will make in 1,200 years. 317 major league baseball players are paid $1 million a year or more.

The International Red Cross has now turned over to the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum 10,000 pages of documents concerning members' visits to German concentration camps in WWII. Rumor has it that this mountain of paper contains no mention of gassings.

In 1995, 4,804 persons were hospitalized in metro Philadelphia, victims of some form of physical assault. 409 had been stabbed or shot. Thousands of others were treated in hospital emergency rooms.

41% of the Jews who were married in metro Los Angeles in the last 5 years wed a non-Jewish spouse.

The Columbia Encyclopedia (Fifth Edition) states there were 3,440 lynchings of blacks in the U.S. from 1882 to 1968. A columnist in the L.A. Times, Gilberto Honojosa, claims 9,300 blacks were lynched in one decade in Texas. Quite a disparity.

Waspishly Yours

I'm tired of being alienated. Everybody knows or should know that, thanks to the Army Corps of Engineers, which never saw a delta it didn't want to dam, that the all-American salmon is an endangered species. That's why the white American male finds the sockeye so symbolic, why whiteness is so sympathetic to the instinct to swim upstream to spawn. Doesn't the culture that is killing whiteness urge him to spawn in the handy delta mud? Why make all that instinct-driven effort to struggle upstream to die in the white waters of his origins? Why not succumb to the corps of social engineers? Why commit suicide just to spawn?

I want to wallow like everybody else. Instead of a sock-it-to-'em sockeye, I want to be a gefilte fish. I want to be circumcised into the foreskinless fold of anchorite skinheads. I want to celebrate with guilt-free brio Israel's 50th anniversary as a "light unto the nations."

Why not? Isn't everybody toasting Israel's tip-top talent for spitting on Arabs before toasting them on a spit? What's wrong with kosher shish kebab? Isn't Israel unique? Didn't it steal Yahweh from the Canaanite god called El? (Hence the ancient Hebrew curse, "May you all go to El!") Didn't Ashkenazis copy blitzkrieg and Lebensraum from the Nazis and the afterlife from Christianity? What other country still has refused to define its borders after 50 years? What other country is still stealing land, after it promised not to at Oslo? What other country still bites the hand that has fed it 85 billion dollars over the past 30 years? What country gives Israel billions that might have been better spent elsewhere, especially at home? Isn't Israel the only socialist-cum-Communist country supported by Wall Street, Newt Gingrich and the militant Dick Armeys of the world?

Hitler signed a non-aggression pact with Stalin and then stabbed the Man of Steel in the back before the Man of Steel could steal up behind him. Jews promised peace at Oslo and then negotiated the negative under Netanyahu.

The Nazis flattened the village of Lidice and Jews brought the same "light unto the nations" to Sabra and Shatila and Deir Yassin.

Didn't Israel steal all the water in Palestine, dribbling it out to the sand niggers drop by drop, even while the sockeye salmon can't find an unpolluted place to spawn? So why shouldn't America celebrate Israel's 50th anniversary, since Yahweh also controls the U.S. Congress?

What other country has such a masterful propaganda machine that it has outdone hell's bells Goebbels himself in its ability to stand truth on its head? Why shouldn't America celebrate Israel's 50th, since Israel already controls Gingrich, Gore and Clinton anyway? Why shouldn't the world celebrate the expulsion of 1.5 million Palestinians from their homeland, while deploring the "ethnic cleansing" in Bosnia?

Doesn't Israel's survival prove that chicanery, hypocrisy and moral amnesia will always be triumphant in a world indifferent to evil? Why didn't the world intervene in Cambodia, Rwanda and Armenia to prevent final solutions there? Where were the delousing stations in Rwanda when ragged refugees could really have used some Zyklon B against all that typhus and cholera? Where were all those Teutonic crematoria in East Timor? Cleanliness is next to godliness, after all. So why should the world have prevented the plunder of Palestine?

Grab what you can, Hitler declared, and then let the lousy lawyers and historians sort it all out later. "History will be good to the Allies," Winston Churchill said. "I know, because I plan to write that history." Which he did. Who else would give him the credit for bankrupting Britain and destroying the British Empire and sacrificing another generation of duped Europeans in order to make the world safe for the Nomenklatura?

Would the grateful Israelis ever give the British credit for blowing themselves up in the King David Hotel? Would the Jews ever thank the British for surrendering to terrorism so the Ashkenazis could then concentrate on liberating Lord Moyne, Count Bernadotte and countless Palestinians from their property and life? Why shouldn't we celebrate Israel's 50th anniversary? Don't the dim Hasidim from the Mediterranean rim also celebrate?

So, as a pale pecuniary glimmer of Israel's "light unto the nations," why shouldn't America also celebrate Israel's 50th anniversary of "might makes right?" Except for scale, for we all know that Jews never bother to steal anything small, what's the difference between a Nazi and an Ashkenazi? Why shouldn't we celebrate the birth of a country conceived in rape, born in deception and fulfilled in fraud? Why shouldn't Americans, especially, committed to the spirit of self-determination, endorse the dispossession of Palestinians? Since we believe in self-determination, why shouldn't we do everything we can to keep the Palestinians from achieving a nation of their own? Since we created it, why shouldn't we celebrate the 50th anniversary of the grateful country which deliberately killed 34 Americans on the U.S.S. Liberty, and was complicit in the death of 241 Marines in Lebanon? Why shouldn't we thank Israel for allowing 300 American men and women to die for Israel and oil in Desert Sturm und Dreck, to be sacrificed for democracy in Kuwait?

I'm tired of being an outcast. I want to join the kosher chorus singing the Star Tangled Banner in praise of Israel. I'm tired of being an endangered species, one of the few who refuses to criticize Israel. Remember Washington and Jefferson and all those other sockeye salmon, swimming against the stream to spawn? Why should they have bothered to fight their way back, leaping many obstacles, especially when white men like Nijinsky can't jump? Look what has befallen, look what has hatched from all their suicidal self-sacrifice.

I'm tired of opposing principle, in favor of money, power and politics. I want to be like the rest of my fellow Americans—corrupt and contented. I want to be pure. I want to love Israel. I also want to plunder and lie and be praised as a "light unto the nations." I also want my country, President and Congress, to be a ventriloquist for the cause of Zionism.

I want to live in a country ruled by rabbis who condone rape and hate democracy, rabbis who live to argue about "what makes a Jew," not a country ruled by money and power and country-club Republicans. I want to live in an independent Communist country like America, not a capitalist country like Israel whose dime-sized paradigm is the kibbutz. Therefore, I hate Cuba, China and North Korea, where capitalism flourishes, like it does in Israel. Why are the rabbis always arguing about what makes a Jew? The real question is, "Will Israel be there, 50 years from now?" And isn't that enough to revive your Christian faith in prayer? Desperate dilemmas demand desperate remedies.

So let's all celebrate Israel's 50th anniversary by dancing the hava nagila in our safe and happy city streets.

V.S. STINGER

St. Martin's Press dropped publishing David Irving's book about Goebbels when Jewish pressure groups turned on the heat. When St. Martin's recently announced it had made a deal to publish Jerry Springer's book about what goes on behind the cameras of his low-browed show, there was no pressure to drop the project—from Jewish organizations or from anyone. Nothing exemplifies the abysmal state of American TV more than the Jerry Springer Show, with its staged, barnyard battles between divorcées, adulterers, perverts and sexopaths. Springer will be making more than $1 million from his new opus. Average what Springer and Irving stand for and you have today's Zeitgeist. It's not only what is printed, but also what is not printed that determines the shape and content of contemporary American culture.

Time Warner's purchase of CNN could hardly be counted on to improve the quality of the network's output. In a story about the Vietnam War, CNN came brazenly out with the tale that the U.S. had deliberately used poison gas to punish G.I.s who had turned tail and run off to the gooks. The story circulated almost instantly around the world. For a few days people everywhere groaned and tore their hair at America's perfidy. Truth had to struggle to come out and when it did it had difficulty making as much of an impact on the public's consciousness as the pack of lies.

One wonders about these CNNers who put on a completely mendacious story that put their country in the worst possible light, particularly at a time so much media attention was being focussed on Saddam Hussein's alleged stockpiles of poison gas.

One has to wonder about the "reporters" who cooked up the story and the CNN executives who gave it their imprimatur. One wonders about the mindset of these people, the same people who are in charge of deciding what is and what isn't news. How can any TV boss with a shred of respect for his country let a monumental lie like that be aired. To lie is bad enough. It gets much worse when it is expanded into orchestrated sabotage.

Speaking of CNN, its old consigliere, Ted Turner, has converted to the liberal-minority religion with a vengeance. When asked on Larry King Live to choose his favorite role models, he blithely answered Rev. Martin Luther King and Mahatma Gandhi. Wife Hanoi Jane chimed in with her pick, Robert Redford. A couple of decades ago it would have been Uncle Ho.

The Texas Board of Education is so fed up with the entertainment horrors disgorged on a daily basis by the Disney Company that it dumped $45 million worth of the firm's stock from its portfolio. What triggered this decision was Pulp Fiction, the braindead film cranked out by Miramax, a Disney subsidiary.

It is the opinion of me, Satcom Sam, that Pulp Fiction, whose dialogue amounts largely to a staccato drumbeat of "mfs," is the prime example of Hollywood cultural vulturism. The ultimate blame for this cinematic pigification must be ascribed to its creator, Quentin Tarantino. (Taranto is a city in Italy and Italian Jews have been known to take the name of their native city.)

A chief problem with the obscene million-dollar contracts that TV moguls make with their "stars" is that when the stars stop twinkling they still rake in huge amounts of money. Instead of being fired, they still remain on the payroll and something has to be found for them to do to justify the millions that wend their way into their bloated pockets. A case in point is Bryant Gumbel, whose ultra-generous contract with CBS lasts for years, but whose first primetime show, Public Eye, bombed so miserably it had to be taken off the air after its first season. Couch potatoes indicated by their inattention that they didn't want to see anymore of Gumbel's black face. Unfortunately they will continue to see more because CBS has to keep Gumbel involved in some project or other in order to cut its losses.

PBS is going with the diversity flow. The so-called non-commercial network, which is overloaded with more and more commercials and promos, has announced it will soft-pedal its British programs on Masterpiece Theatre and go in for dramatizing American novels. Once the great white hope of Sunday night TV, Masterpiece Theatre has lately been churning out reruns and second-rate programs worthy of daytime soaps.

Comic Milton Berle, now 90, is the subject of a scathing new book, Near You, by his 36-year-old son, Bill, who avers papa spent most of his time skirt-chasing. Some of the old man's prey was shared with the young Berle.

Irving (Sonny) Bloch, the onetime Jewish talking head who, with some associates, fleeced his listeners out of $21 million, died earlier this year in posh Bloomfield Hills (MI). He only served 16 months for his massive Milken-sized embezzlement.

From Zip 455. The half-hour discussion of current cinema on the ultra-PC Charlie Rose Show panned most current hits, but unanimously praised "actor" Anne Heche, Ellen DeGeneres's squeeze.

From Ivan Hild. It is becoming apparent that the white racist cause has a huge potential ally in the world of Christian activism. Concern is growing over such matters as "cultural pollution" and the anti-Christian criticism that emanates from obviously Chosenite quarters. Though white Christians tend to blur the difference between (white) culture and (Christian) morality, often believing that the latter begat the former, more and more Christians are beginning to realize that religion is culture-based (and therefore racial). The other day I heard a C-SPAN caller-in, a middle-aged white man with a pronounced Southern accent, bemoaning the criticism so often ladled out against Christianity by persons obviously not of Christian background. "[P]eople like these often as not have the gall to quote the Bible such as, 'Judge not lest ye be judged,' when they don't believe in anything that the Bible stands for!" said the caller, adding that non-Christians in positions of influence in the media these days are "way beyond their numbers in the population at large."

Going further, no doubt just as the C-SPAN squelch button was about to be pushed, the caller noted the moral or rather the immoral impact of so much "anti-Christianism" on cultural decay both on TV and in the movies. Linking culture to race is an easy process for us Instaurationists, but not so easy for other members of our tribe. For the rank and file of Americans, overwhelmed by the propaganda of multiculturalism and racial mixing, the nexus is tougher to make.

Oddly enough, educated Americans seem better able to negotiate the leap. How many times have we heard students of philosophy discourse on the 18th-century Scottish origins of man's individual responsibility which, after all, is the very basis for Christian morality? The obverse vision—man-as-social-animal—best fits that other kind of folk that thrives in the canyons of Manhattan and on the L.A. freeways.

Not long ago those who depended on Hillary's "village" to raise their kids used poison-tipped spears to hunt game when the rest of us were developing scientific farming, animal husbandry and biology. Not surprisingly we must give virtually all of them food stamps, public welfare and all the rest, while Hillary advises us to get on track with them. Like it or not, collectivism is the cultural province of racial groups outside the white world.

That supreme blabbermouthed "conservative" Christian, William Bennett, who has appointed himself lay guardian of Christian morals, looks at the problem of cultural depravity spewing forth from our TVs and movies and immediately reaches out to his great and good political friend, Senator Joe Lieberman (J-CT). "Christian morality" becomes "Judeo-Christian morality." Jews become pillars of morality. Bennett-Lieberman's contribution to this debate is an annual "silver manhole cover" award to the most egregious examples of cultural pollution. The award this year goes to the Jerry Springer Show and the House of Bronfman, whose Hollywood division owns this entertainment abscess.

Upon announcing the award, Bennett-Lieberman leapt into their qualifying song-and-dance number, stating, "It is regrettable that such an otherwise up-standing family, noted for endless charitable giving, should make this lapse of judgment." The Bronfmans! The gang to whom every American drunk relies on for his nightly fix! The mob whose influence in the halls of international affairs makes the power of the Italian Mafia look Boy Scout-ish in comparison! The crowd that keeps the engine of Zionism oiled with the lubricant of high finance!

Ask the Palestinians about the Bronfmans! In his desperate desire to say something nice about this choosiest of Chosen families, Bennett appears like the desperate, naive German National Socialists late in WWII who, in braving the Allied bombing of their cities, hoped only that the destruction might presage the coming of American troops to rescue the fatherland from the invading Russians. To believe that a Bronfman would pay attention to the cultural destruction being done to America by its investments in Hollywood or TV is like thinking that Franklin Roosevelt would fight to the death to preserve German society.

Notes from the Sceptred Isle—John Nobull

In common with all educated English-speakers, I use “media” as a plural (a Latin neuter plural, just as “criteria” is a Greek neuter plural of “criterion”). When Marshall McLuhan wrote that “the medium is the message,” he was making a useful distinction between singular and plural. The media are used, not to reflect reality, but to propagate unreality (i.e., lies). To that extent, the medium (whichever it may be) really is the message.

Those writing for publications on our side should recognise that educated people are turned off by the least typo, let alone grammatical solecisms. They rightly feel that if editors are careless about the way in which their contributors express themselves, those contributors may also be careless about their facts. Isn't that true of the establishment press? At the very least, every editor on our side should use a spell-check.

What is more, using “media” as a singular makes the media seem more monolithic than they actually are and adds to the spreading of gloom and despair. In America, because of the much envied First Amendment, there are some regularly published journals on our side. Instauration is undoubtedly among the most educated, despite the fact that it prints letters from the less well educated. Our editor rightly feels that our people have been denied a voice for too long. It is not their fault if they have learnt next to nothing at school. It is the fault of the teaching unions—as in all other English-speaking countries, with the notable exception of New Zealand.

Instauration, as I see it, is in the business of informing and providing an outlet for the Majority, who have been taught so little that is useful at school, while at the same time presenting irrefragable arguments which will impress the better educated. As Oswald Mosley used to say, one should be radical in politics and conservative in culture.

It is not just Jews who are aiming at us in the mainstream media, but their liberal lickspittles as well. Indeed, the latter are much better at hitting us where it hurts, because they are not only our enemies, they are also members of the Majority middle class. We have met the enemy, and he is one of us. Our letters refuting the arguments of leading articles in the establishment newspapers are simply not published, but we can get back at the journalists whom we inevitably meet. The trick is not to express one's views directly, to begin with anyway, but rather to imply that, as journalists, the ladies and gentlemen of the press are gutter rats until proved to be otherwise. This must be done in the nicest way possible, with a big smile. We English are past masters of the put-down, and are therefore not universally loved.

To the journalist, one should say something like, “I see your editorial policy has been somewhat modified of late regarding Israeli settlements on the West Bank.” This implies (a) that the subject was deliberately underreported before and (b) that journalists wouldn't dare write anything which conflicted with editorial policy. It invariably elicits what is expected to be taken as an expression of personal opinion. No man likes to feel like a yes-man, and even fewer women want to be regarded as yes-women. (A woman's whole existence is concerned with not being predictable. This explains the apparent lack of logic which drives vulnerable men to distraction. Women are not bothered by male accusations of illogicality. They have gained their object, which is to make themselves interesting, and they can always riposte with some devastating argumentum ad hominem).

When the ladies and gentlemen of the press have ceased tying themselves into knots trying to prove that they are independent voices capable of disagreeing with editorial policy, they will want to get at you, to see what makes you tick. Don't cooperate. Just express the hope that the journalist will keep his or her job (implying that those who disagree with the editor don't last long) and pass on with a big smile to speak to someone more interesting. The journalist is left feeling frustrated and resentful, wondering what had driven him onto the defensive.

In dealing with lady liberals, a nice line for the younger man is to imply that he would have liked to become better acquainted but the lady's profession puts him off. He then goes off to talk to an equally attractive lady who does not spout the liberal line. The journalist is left feeling that she smells (figuratively, of course).

The New Yorker, with its dreary liberaloid articles and lousily drawn cartoons (especially the ones which portray kooky little people with long noses) is a journal which I now only see in a dentist's waiting room. But one cartoon did catch my eye. A woman is saying something like, “OK, so you're a journalist. But I'm sure you're not one of those bottom feeders.” That is precisely the line which I have used on occasion. It puts journalists on the defensive immediately. It's nice to know that there are some pretty sophisticated underminers of liberalism in the U.S.

In France, rightwingers are wittier than we are. When a man who is not an open supporter of the Front National relays Le Pen's witticism about Le Tour Pourri (i.e., the wholly corrupt) as opposed to Le Tout Paris (i.e., the Paris 400), it has an irresistible effect on liberals who haven't heard it before. Being French, they can't resist a witticism, and it is soon repeated—with appropriate expressions of condemnation. A FN witticism about Chirac describes him as “SPF” (sans politique fixe), based on the fact that homeless demonstrators are referred to in politically correct parlance as “SDF” (sans domicile fixe). This puts Chirac's supporters on the defensive, although it is not quite fair. Everyone knows that Chirac has a definite fixed policy: to do exactly what the B'nai B'rith tells him to do, whereas Le Pen has been willing to lend tactical support to both the Socialist and the members of the Gaullist RPF against Chirac. He knows that it was the Jewish organisations which ordered Chirac to switch from proportional representation to the constituency system, so that all FN deputies were driven out of the national assembly.

The point of all this is that words have power. They are not the only reality, as claimed at the beginning of Genesis, but they do play a key role in defining what is accepted as reality, which is why politically correct people imagine that by banning certain words, they can ban the realities behind them. They are wrong. Orwell and Solzhenitsyn have shown us that reality will always make a comeback, that we can use words to undermine our opponents. It can't be done by using logic, because key parts of our logic have been outlawed. At any rate, let us honour the few journalists on our side whenever we meet them. All of us who write for Instauration are journalists, after all.

Canada. A virtual news blackout keeps one of Canada's longest-running human rights tribunals out of the public eye. Now in its second year, the tribunal is focusing on Ernst Zündel, the perennial target of minority censors, and his alleged involvement with a web site in California. That the site is not illegal under American law is of minor importance. The tribunal's purpose is to continue the Chosen-driven, taxpayer-financed, anti-Zündel vendetta, while also searching for a way to extend Canadian censorship to the Internet. The Human Rights Commission's most salient decision has been to refuse Zündel permission to enter evidence contrary to the Big H. Echoing previous courtroom and human rights decisions, the commission ruled that truth is no defense against charges of "hate."

In order to publicize this obstreperous ruling, Zündel scheduled a news conference in the House of Commons press theater. An unusual motion in Parliament brought a quick, unanimous vote barring Zündel from the building. Undismayed he held his meeting outside, garnering nationwide attention.

Rare in Canada's fractious Parliament, the unanimous vote brought together several warring political parties, including separatists and federalists, socialists and neocons. On reflection, Zündel should get an award for momentarily uniting the political representatives of a disintegrating country. Canadian Jewish Congress lobbying brought the parliamentary motion in the first place and guaranteed its results.

A full year of badgering has paid off for Canadian "Nazi-hunters," who have finally pried a list of WWII pensioners out of the German government. German privacy laws have recently been amended to allow Jews access to information about some one million recipients of war disability pensions. About 1,800 of them live in Canada, at least half of whom are widows or other relatives of deceased servicemen. Although the lists contain little more than names, birthdates and current addresses, Jewish groups claim the information will provide the first step in determining responsibility for alleged war crimes.

From a subscriber. "Holocaust deniers," as early Christians, have been and continue to be thrown to the lions. They have been offered up to appease the un-appeasable. They have been bloodied, ostracized, fined, jailed and relentlessly ridiculed. Still they come. They have been cynically denied elementary justice. They have seen their natural rights sneered at by kangaroo courts that would cause even Uncle Joe to grin in his grave.

Still they come. Still they pursue their cause as did those ancient Christians. They have been called dingbats, hate-mongers, neo-Nazis—and that most dreadful of all appellations—anti-Semite. They have been spat upon. Their families have been destroyed. They have been bombed, burned and viciously assaulted on the courthouse steps. They have been tormented, slandered with impunity and financially ruined.

What they have never been is answered. They have never been allowed to publicly state their case before a proper panel of peers. Not once. What is being concealed? This incredible omission, with a host of other taboos, lies at the core of crumbling Western societies. The sickness is not in the deniers. The sickness is in the duped and ignorant masses driven by half-hidden herders.

Now the absurdly named Human Rights Commission declares, "Truth is no defense." That's right. That is the sickness of our times, of the dark age we are entering. Our fair Lady of Justice in Canada is nothing more than a politically correct whore.

God help us all, especially "Holocaust deniers." For they, above all others, are to be hounded as heretics in this Mother of All Witch-hunts.

And still they come.

Britain. One of the minority billionaires strutting around Britain these days is an oily character who calls himself Prince Moosa. Although his country, Bangladesh, is among the poorest in the world and poverty is the natural state of 99.9% of its population, Moosa sports a wardrobe of 3,000 designer suits. The heels of his shoes are encrusted with jewels. His toothbrush—except for the bristles—is gold. His gold pen is ornamented with 4,810 diamonds. How did Moosa manage to collect his out-of-sight wealth? He is an arms dealer, a profession that should be, but probably never will be, abolished.

Hitler's Mein Kampf, the English translation, sells at the rate of 3,000 a year in Britain, according to Richard Cohen, a publishing executive. It's a Random House imprint and all royalties go to an unnamed charity. Now that Random House has been bought by Bertelsmann, the giant German conglomerate, nervous Germans may decide to trash the book. In Germany, Hitler's opus is not for sale in any bookstore.

The Jewish population of Britain is declining and is now below 300,000. It is expected to fall to 200,000 in the next quarter century.

Switzerland. After putting up a brief show of resistance, the big Swiss banks finally caved in and agreed to give Holocaust survivors $1.2 billion. The Swiss also obediently let an Israeli spy return to the Zionist homeland. As a further act of pandering, Swiss authorities jailed writer Jürgen Graf and his publisher (for 15 months and one year, respectively) for putting out literature that questioned the Holocaust. Each was fined $5,500 and $38,700 in sales was confiscated by the state. The Jewish victory, however, was not a clean sweep. Anti-Semitism in Switzerland has grown by leaps and bounds in recent months. One supermarket dared to boycott American products, an event that brought shrill laments from Jewry. Jew, it appears, are allowed to boycott non-Jews, but not vice versa.

Kosovo. The people of Kosovo are 90% Albanian and primarily Muslim. Since it is a province of Serbia, Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic, a Serb, is refusing to allow it to separate and become independent or part of Albania.

The Albanian militants in Kosovo are battling Serbian security forces in what is becoming a nasty little conflict that has taken a considerable toll of lives. As usual in that tormented region of the world, the civilians have paid heavily. The Serbs are accused of "ethnic cleansing," a policy that led to such heavy loss of life in Bosnia.

Speaking of Bosnia, the hatred between Serbs, Croats and Muslims is so deep and so entrenched it has become an integral part of their culture. Because we cannot force them to live together in peace and harmony, the sooner we get out of the area the better.

Russia. Although he was never arrested for spying and is still considered by many to be another "McCarthy-era martyr," a portrait of J. Robert Oppenheimer now hangs in Moscow's KGB Museum dedicated to celebrating the success of Soviet atomic espionage. He deserves the "honor." The recently deceased KGB General Pavel Sudoplatov listed "Oppy" as one of the chief developers of the Soviet bomb. Though identified as "Star" in the Venona radio intercepts, Oppenheimer is still considered a man with clean hands in the U.S. His American defenders insist that Sudoplatov's recollections are confused.

Ongoing decryption of intercepted messages (Venona Project) between their Moscow controllers and Jewish spies working on the Manhattan Project during the 1940s and 50s has recently unearthed yet another nuclear turncoat. Theodore Albin (Ted) Hall, né Holtzberg, a resident of England for the past 30 years, joins the long list of Stalinist spies active in that era.

Middle East. Once again the U.S. has shamed itself by voting with Israel against granting full membership in the UN, but no voting rights, to Palestinians. The vote in the UN was 124 to 4 in favor. The U.S. and "gallant little Israel" received the support of the Marshall Islands and Micronesia.

Israel. Many Israelis consider Flatbush-born Baruch Goldstein, the mass murderer of 29 Arabs in a mosque, a sort of semi-divinity. They have built him a shrine and Jewish pilgrims from all over the world have come to kiss the headstone on his grave, which bears these words: "He gave his life for the people of Israel, the Torah and the law." The Israelis who should have second thoughts about venerating the bones of a mass murderer are getting ready to disinter them and transplant them to less holy ground. That the shrine of Goldstein existed at all reveals a mindset that separates Jews from any other people in the world. One way of explaining this unique Jewish mindset is to attribute it to a genetic curse, which means it is ineradicable.

In 1946 the Christian population of East Jerusalem was nearly 50%. Today it is less than 2.4%.

In the past 10 years Israelis have blown up more than 1,800 Palestinian homes, leaving some 10,000 without a roof over their heads.

Iran. Roger Garaudy, who was fined $20,000 by a French court for writing a book critical of the Holocaust, was invited to speak in Tehran under the sponsorship of the Iranian Foreign Minister. Garaudy, an ex-Communist who switched to

Islam in the winter of his years, made these points:

People in the West can condemn their highest leaders, but they don't have the right to utter one critical word about the Zionist regime. . . . I can say with certainty, America and Israel are one and the same. The Majority of senior American officials are Zionists and they use their influence to promote Israeli interests.

South Africa. A sardonic joke is circulating among South African Jews fearful they may eventually be forced to quit their luxury homes for shacks in black slums. At least they will be saving money on moving expenses, since most of their possessions have already been filched by blacks and transported to Negro townships.

Amy Biehl was the white American bleeding heart who was beaten to death by South African blacks, the very people she was trying to help. The four black murderers were set free in July. When Amy's parents heard the news, they applauded. They had urged this leniency from the very beginning. Amy deserted her race. Her parents deserted their parenthood.

When it was thought the South African rand could not fall any lower, the Mandela government announced on July 7, 1998 that Tito Mboweni, an African National Congress activist and former labor minister, had been appointed to take over the South African Reserve Bank from Chris Stals, a white. Mboweni has absolutely no experience in banking but intends to understudy Stals for about a year as a kind of on-the-job training. Shortly after the announcement of Mboweni's ascent to power, the rand dropped another 6% with no bottom in sight.

Peru. A convicted terrorist and member of the white-hating Tupu Amaru revolutionaries, Lori Berenson has been held in a high-altitude prison since 1996. Normally the world would take little notice of Ms. Berenson's predicament. Marxist throwbacks in Peru and elsewhere are being arrested daily. But Lori is something special. She is a New York Chosenite. Accordingly the liberal-minority grapevine wants her freed or at least given a new trial. Javier Valle Riesta, the new Prime Minister of Peru, somehow was persuaded to adopt this line. But when he presented it to the Japanese-descended President, Alberto Fujimori, he was rebuffed. He then offered his resignation, which was not accepted.

Sometimes the mills of the Jews grind exceeding slow, but as we have all learned to our grief, they keep grinding. . . and grinding. . . and grinding. It will be interesting to see how much longer Ms. Berenson remains in durance vile. It's possible she will be out before Gerhard Lauck, the Kansas lad who was given four years in a German jail for distributing pro-Nazi pamphlets. Lauck, unfortunately, does not have the racial background that would attract the attention of Chancellor Kohl.

Australia. The newly established One Nation Party, headed by populist Pauline Hanson, has just won a quarter of the votes in Queensland elections in the party's ballot-box debut. While Asians already represent nearly 5% of the Australian population, their numbers will rise to 8% by 2035, if current trends continue.

It was predicted that Hanson's One Nation Party would win one or two seats in the Queensland Parliament. Instead she will obtain about 10 as a result of winning 23% of the overall vote. As the numbers piled up, the Australian powers-that-be went bonkers. Hanson, they yowled, was a racist because she wants to protect her own race and country from being Asianized. After the election Australian Jews pulled off a typically dirty trick. They listed the names and addresses of 2,000 known to be Hanson supporters.

Mrs. Hanson, married and twice divorced with four children, is one tough lady. She won't be overwhelmed and suffocated by the Australian establishment, as have earlier Australia Firsters. Most Australians believe in cutting down on immigration, though they keep voting for politicians who are willing to increase it.

Someone better stand up for the whites in that lonely continent or it will suffer the fate of South Africa.

East Africa. Not too long ago the U.S. was the favorite white nation of black Africans and African and Middle East Muslims, mainly because it was not one of the colonial powers. Today it is probably the most hated white nation, as proved by the recent bombings of U.S. embassies in Nairobi and Dar es Salaam. It all began with Uncle Sam's insane alliance with Zionist racism. It won't end until the U.S. abandons its suicidal tie-up with the cancerous, Jewish geopolitical beachhead on Asia's western shore.
