"White men around the world are waiting to see if America will lead the way, or if Americans, fearful of soiled hands, will allow the greatest race on this planet to vanish into the ashes of history.

"I've made my decision. What is yours?"

Lincoln Rockwell's 55th Birthday Celebrated

A special birthday celebration in honor of Lincoln Rockwell's 55th birthday was held at National Headquarters on 10 March.

Commander Koehl addressed a gathering of 30 Stormtroopers and Party comrades. He described the outstanding personal qualities of Lincoln Rockwell which distinguished him as the greatest National Socialist next to Adolf Hitler and as a true leader of the Aryan people.

"Lincoln Rockwell," he recalled, "was an essential optimist, a man who never lost his sense of humor no matter how adverse a situation would become. He knew how to wrest an advantage out of every adversity. He never lost sight of what he was fighting for, and he would not rest until that goal was achieved. Only a handful of truly great men of this stature appear across the arena of history. We are privileged to have known two such men and to have been entrusted by them with the greatest of missions. The spirit that dominated them also dominates us, and one day it shall sweep the planet and bring new life and racial freedom to our oppressed Aryan brethren both in America and throughout the world."

The lights were then dimmed and a crucible in front of a large Swastika banner was lit. As the flames flickered higher, the Commander read a list of National Socialist fallen. After each name the Aryan salute was given by all present. At the conclusion of the ceremonies, all comrades present sang the Party song written by Lincoln Rockwell:

*We march and fight; to death or on to victory;
Our might is right--no traitor shall prevail;
Our hearts are steeled against the fiery gates of hell;
No shot or shell can still our mighty song!*

National Socialists Enliven Delaware Political Scene

Local National Socialist activists have recently attracted much attention in Delaware, the first state to join the Union. On 1 March a picket-line demonstration was conducted on the campus of the University of Delaware protesting the appearance of Jewess Bella Abzug, a Democratic congresswoman from New York who had come to expound the Marxist ideas of the Women's Liberation movement.

Dressed in ST uniform, the six National Socialists soon became the center of attention. News reporters and students vied with one another to get closer to the National Socialists and ask them questions. About 50 students congregated around the NS pickets. Some taunts came from the Jewish and leftist elements of the crowd.

A flurry of feature stories began to appear on the growing National Socialist activities in and around Wilmington, Del. Numerous invitations to speak on local radio programs have been received.

Nazis Beat Drums Here for a White U.S.

By ROBERT RODIERNE

They wear brown shirts, black boots, and red arm bands with black swastikas. They call themselves the Nazis of the future.

They are official supporters of the National Socialist White People's Party, Nazis.

Recently they've done some leafletting in Wilmington. Last night, they demonstrated to protest Rep. Bella Abzug's appearance in Newark.

"We're just beginning to get a unit in this area that we can do something with," according to Robert S. Mulford, 23, a local supporter.

MULFORD won't say how many local supporters there are. "It's a tactical advantage to have people underestimate our strength," he says.

But Mulford hopes to have an organizational meeting soon, and have Wilmington supporters formed into an official, established unit of the party.

Official supporters of the party have, now drawn attention in recent weeks, by sticking copies of the party newspaper, White Power, under windshield wipers of cars in white neighborhoods.

The eight-page tabloid, published by party headquarters in Arlington, Va., contains a series of articles preaching the Nazi line and almost always has an attack on presidential adviser Henry Kissinger, who is Jewish.

Mulford works as an electronics technician and salesman at an electronics shop. He didn't want his company name mentioned in his home address given.

NOT that he's afraid of drawing attention to his political beliefs. His ersatz Nazi uniform does that for him. Especially the swastika.

"It tells you what we stand for. You don't have to have any writing under it," he says. What Mulford—and fellow Nazis—believe in is the establishment of a white America and the elimination of "smut, degeneracy and anarchist things we have today."

"We're against capitalism and communism," Mulford says, adding Nazis are neither right or left wing. "We're in favor of a society not based on materialism. We base our life on race, culture and our heritage."

"We consider racism one of the purest forms of patriotism," he says.

Just as Hitler ("One of the greatest leaders of the whites"), Mulford dislikes Jews, who he contends are not part of the white, Aryan race.

"Five out of seven of the Chicago conspirators were Jewish," he says. "The atomic bomb was Jewish."

To establish a white America, Mulford wants the blacks repatriated to Africa and property taken from the Jews. Tom Wilcox, 19, another local Nazi, adds that his group doesn't "feel animosity to blacks." But he's quick to note that the "blacks have created a lot of crime. They are totally unsuited for life in America."

Wilcox is a college student. MULFORD does not think of himself as a bigot. "Bigot indicates ignorance. It means a pre-judgment," Nazis, Mulford says, are against Jews, blacks and other non-Aryans because of the evidence against them.

Wilcox insists, "We're not extreme. We're not stupid. We're not crazy. The white race is the master race—as Adolf Hitler put it. It's been proven."

At heart, Wilcox says, "All while people are National Socialists." But many whites try to hide these beliefs, he says. Part of the Nazi Party's goal is to bring them out in the open.

Their derisive term for conservatives who don't go quite as far publicly as they are "kooker conservatives."

George Wallace falls into that category.

"HE talks a good line," Mulford says.

They consider President Nixon a traitor.

Mulford's father is a World War II veteran who fought against German Nazis. "He's not as violent against my ideas as others," Mulford says.

Wilcox argues, "The only thing we got out of World War II was dead white soldiers."

"And Israel and a Communist United Nations," Mulford adds.

In the meantime, in order to become cited as an established party group, the local Nazis must stage some inflammatory demonstrations and otherwise prove that they have support, he said.

Mulford says his associates are planning more such gatherings.

Several supporters of Aryan supremacy are making an effort to organize a local chapter of the National Socialist White People's Party.

They wear the Nazi uniform—brown shirts, black boots, red arm bands with black swastikas—and want blacks deported to Africa and the property of Jews confiscated.

"We consider racism one of the purest forms of patriotism," says Robert S. Mulford, 23, who says he's an electronics technician and salesman, but won't say where.

He and other local Nazis demonstrated Thursday night against the appearance of Rep. Bella Abzug in Newark.

They also have been putting copies of the party newspaper, White Power, on the windshields of cars in white neighborhoods.

He did say, however, that he wants to form an official Nazi branch in Wilmington, and hopes to have an organizational meeting soon.

Florida National Socialists Lead Fight Against Black Terror in Schools

The nation-wide coverage of the recent battles between White and Black students in Boca Raton, Fla., is reflective of the increasing turmoil in America's public schools as the liberal-Jewish system continues its anti-White bussing and integration programs against neighborhood schools.

Almost all the students hospitalized or injured were White. Whenever White students attempted to retaliate against such vicious attacks they soon found themselves confronted by the police. School superintendent Gus Sakkis refused to do anything against the Blacks for these attacks, but made sure there was plenty of police protection for the Blacks when the White students decided to give them a taste of their own medicine.

On 4 March, local Party leader Richard Saunders and Party organizer Eugene Hough, went to the home of Sakkis to present him with a letter which denounced him for his criminal role in the Black terrorism. It stated: "We demand that White students be protected from Black atrocities in your schools. Integration is nothing more than the slow genocide of the White race!" It concluded: "You are hereby warned that in catering to arrogant Black demands, you are aiding and abetting the White man's racial enemies in the hideous crime of genocide." In true liberal fashion, Sakkis left for the golf course upon learning of the imminent arrival of the National Socialist delegation.

Interest Grows in Cleveland

Interest about the Party continues to grow in Cleveland. During the uproar over the wearing of Swastikas by a number of Cleveland police officers (See Bulletin No. 129) newly appointed Cleveland organizer Richard Biederman and Comrade Casey Kalemba appeared upon invitation at the West Shore Unitarian Church where the program of the NSWPP was presented.

'White Power' Group Protests Pinellas Integration Policies

By ALLEN GENGLER
Tribune Correspondent

ST. PETERSBURG — Charging "unfair practices" toward white school children, members of the National Socialist White People's Party visited Pinellas County's acting school superintendent's residence yesterday.

Superintendent Gus Sakkis wasn't at home when the local leaders of the NSWPP (formerly the American Nazi Party) arrived at his house, so they taped a letter on his front door charging him with "catering to arrogant black demands."

IN FRONT of the house a harried, uniformed man carried a sign which read "White Power." A few of Sakkis' neighbors came by and made insulting remarks, with one person saying, "Rich, they're Nazis. I didn't know there were any around here."

The letter, with a bright red and black swastika seal at the bottom, went on to state, "We demand that white students be protected from black atrocities in your schools. Integration (sic) is nothing more or less than the slow genocide of the white race!"

AT THE END of the letter they stated that if protection isn't provided, the "blood of every injured student will be on your hands."

The three members of the bay area NSWPP arrived at Sakkis' house at about 2 p.m., in uniforms with swastika armbands, and knocked on Sakkis' door. When no one answered, they read aloud the letter to two reporters, then saluted Nazi style.

They then taped the letter on the door and talked with reporters. Francis Hough, state coordinator of the organization, said, "I didn't know if he would have the courage to be here or not."

HOUGH SAID that they had called Sakkis at home, telling him they would be by. According to Hough, Sakkis told them that he was just leaving and wouldn't be there when they arrived.

Hough said the organization is "doing what we can to protect the white students in school," advocate their goals don't seek legal means, he said. "I think it's a very despicable sort of action for a person who said he wasn't at home."

HE SAID THAT the only warning of the protest was a reporter for a publication called Quanta Magazine.

And the JDL...?

After all their vows and oaths about showing up on 4 March in "massive numbers" to rout the "Nazis" and finally drive them out of El Monte, the JDL lived up to the finest traditions of Jewish heroism — they didn't show up. One day before their big "showdown" with the NSWPP, Irv Rubin, leader of JDL in Los Angeles, announced that he'd had "a change of heart."

Actually the only change that might be noticeable would be a big yellow stripe down the JDL's back. It's always been there; it just looked like a brighter shade of yellow. The JDL is accustomed to fighting its opponents on its own terms, usually where it greatly outnumbers its adversary and can resort to chains, truncheons, knives and the like, or by using bombs, like it did a year ago when a young girl in a Soviet mission was killed by a bomb attributed to the JDL.

Face-to-face confrontation, with nothing but courage with which to defend their filthy words, has never been a very popular mode of political action with the JDL, despite all their protests to the contrary. Like jackals, they're only dangerous when they outnumber you and you have your back turned. These Jewish hyenas have learned to keep their distance from the powerful talons of the National Socialist eagle.

Notes From National Headquarters

At this time, there are two basic levels of operation within the Party: national and local. State and regional organization will be developed as the need arises to warrant such expansion.

No local Party unit is authorized to solicit funds, other than those for a White Power message, the purchase of propaganda materials, or for bail and legal expenses.

No Party unit is authorized to solicit funds outside its immediate area of jurisdiction. Such jurisdiction is limited to the local metropolitan area, or to one or several counties in the case of rural areas.

No local Party unit is authorized to solicit by mail or telegram.
