"Here in America, White Men outnumber alien scum by enormous margins. If they ever realize the strength their numbers represent, nothing on earth can stop them from stomping to death the filthy subversives and traitors who have been beating them, lying to them, stealing from them, and finally turning a mob of black African savages loose on them.

WHITE POWER, Chapter XVI

Slogan for 1976 Congress:

"FREE AMERICA!"

Keeping to the Bicentennial theme, the slogan chosen for the upcoming Continental Congress reflects the desire of White America to be free from the oppression of the Jews and the System. It recalls the spirit in which the Founding Fathers met to seek liberty 200 years ago. It declares the goal of the Party as it sets out on a course to liberate our people and our land from the tyranny of alien minorities.

Nazis Plan Bicentennial Rally in Park

Party Reserves a Site Across From White House

By Betty James
Washington Star Staff Writer

America's 200th birthday party has attracted some strange guests — the American Nazi party will hold a rally across the street from the White House on July 3 to celebrate the occasion.

The rally will champion white supremacy, its sponsors say, a version of the master race theory propounded by Adolph Hitler some years after the Declaration of Independence maintained that all men are created equal.

Those attending the Nazi gathering — along with other birthday guests celebrating elsewhere — will enjoy the comforting protection of the First Amendment to the Constitution under which the rights of free speech and peaceable assembly are guaranteed.

NATIONAL Capital Parks confirmed this week that the Nazis, whose official name now is the National Socialist White People's Party, had reserved the northeast corner of Lafayette Park across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House from 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on July 3.

NCP is to issue a permit after seeing the organization's plans for physical structures on the site, such as the size of the stage. But this is just a formality, according to Mary Krug, an information officer for NCP.

National Capital Parks is the local arm of the National Park Service.

Krug said the Supreme Court has ruled that parklands must be made available to groups to exercise their First Amendment rights. The Park Service grants permits on a first-come, first-served basis, she said.

Only two things could lead to denial of a permit — that someone else has already booked the area, or that the Nazis present a clear and present danger to public safety.

NO OTHER organization has booked Lafayette Park during the period from July 2 through July 5, Krug said.

Nazi leader Matt Koehl told NCP that 1,500 members are expected to attend the rally. Koehl said the program would include marching and patriotic music, banners — and perhaps picket signs.

Koehl was not available for comment yesterday. A duty officer who answered the phone and declined to identify himself said, "We will be holding the rally to remind white Americans that this is their country."

"We want to take the opportunity of the Bicentennial to emphasize the true American heritage, which is essentially a white heritage. White men founded, built, fought and died for this country. The whole concept of America is the concept of the white people who created it."

The American Nazi party was founded by the late George Lincoln Rockwell in 1959. "Adolph Hitler is the founder of our movement. The swastika is the emblem," the duty officer said.

The Congress is already receiving extensive media publicity, including the newspaper articles reproduced herein. Several Washington area TV stations have reported on the Party's preparations, noting the fact that a permit to hold a rally in Lafayette Park (adjacent to the White House) has been obtained. One station devoted over 5 minutes of coverage to the NSWPP when it interviewed Arlington Unit Organizer Frank Knight about the difficulties encountered with county officials in getting permission to participate in local patriotic parades. (see clipping for details)

Everyone eligible to attend is urged to fill out and return the application form sent out with the last Bulletin, along with the registration fee. Comrades should note that this year's fee is only $10 for the two days (3-4 July), which includes the cost of

'Nazis' Want Parade Spot

White Peoples Party to March in Arlington, Fairfax City July 4 Parades?

By Jane Touzalin
Journal Staff Writer

"Storm troopers" for the National Socialist White Peoples Party who marched in Arlington County's Fourth of July parade last year claim they're encountering problems in their bid for a return engagement to this year's event.

Party members have turned to Fairfax City for an invitation to that jurisdiction's Independence Day parade, but will not be allowed to participate, a city official told the Journal.

Rita Sobel, organizer of the Arlington parade, has denied that members of the party — formerly known as the American Nazi Party — are being discouraged from entering the event this year.

Board members of Parade for Arlington's Independence Day (PAID) met Tuesday and told the Journal they will send a parade marching application to the National Socialist White Peoples Party (NSWPP) soon.

But Fairfax City spokesman Robert A. Becker flatly said he will not send a parade application to the group.

"Obviously they want to march in the parade with their swastikas and their armbands, and I'll be damned if I think that's appropriate to the parade," Becker said.

The NSWPP maintains its national headquarters in a small building at 2507 N. Franklin St., near the Clarendon area of Arlington.

"We are a community organization, and also a national organization with active units all across the United States," said Thomas Knight, Arlington organizer for the party. "We want to participate in the parade as a community-based organization."

Knight said it would be "only appropriate" for his group to take part in patriotic events during 1976, the Bicentennial year.

"I think it actually conforms very well with the idea of Bicentennial America — as a symbol of white men's ingenuity. Everything that we appreciate today is a by-product of the white man," Knight declared.

Knight said he telephoned Ms. Sobel about a month ago to ask how to enter NSWPP marchers in the Arlington parade. Last year some 15 uniformed party members participated, he said.

Knight claimed Ms. Sobel told him the parade was probably filled up, but that she would call him later to confirm that information.

After their initial conversation, Knight said, Ms. Sobel never responded to messages he left on her automatic telephone answering machine.

"Nobody told him he couldn't be in the parade," Ms. Sobel said this week. "I didn't tell him anything. I didn't even talk to the man."

She said she didn't remember hearing any messages from the NSWPP on her answering machine.

"If they (NSWPP) have had difficulty, we were not aware of it," said Norman Worthington, a director of PAID.

Worthington said that last year the party's marching unit "was in the parade, and we never had any difficulty with them in the parade."

Though some parade-watchers later complained about NSWPP's participation in the event, PAID members said, other groups were also the focus of criticism from spectators.

Knight said that, in last year's parade, "we were very well-received — in fact, so well-received that it surprised me."

He said spectators "came up and asked us questions, and some of them even shook our hands. A lot of them offered money to us for a copy of our newspaper."

In Fairfax City, Becker predicted, the presence of the marching "storm troopers," would probably not be so well-received.

"The citizens would react with some degree of indignation, and rightfully so," he said. "It would make a farce of the whole parade."

The parade "has a great deal to do with Democratic ideals. I hardly see how the American Nazi philosophy contributes to that theme," Becker said.

Becker said he consulted with Ms. Sobel about the NSWPP marchers and was told he should allow them to participate in the Fairfax City event.

"She told me I don't have any choice but to let them in our parade because it's a Constitutional issue," he said.

Arlington parade organizers "obviously led them (NSWPP) to believe their parade was closed, and now it appears they're trying to palm them off on me," he said.

Knight, 25, and a party member for five years, said local residents may be the victims of the "Hollywood stereotype of a Nazi."

"People think of the sabre scar, the monocle and the German accent," he said. "We aren't the stereotyped hate-mongers that Hollywood and the newspapers portray us to be."

If the NSWPP marching unit cannot appear in either of this year's parades — both of which will be held July 3 — it will be "just an out-and-out infringement upon our rights," Knight claimed.

He said local officials might fear NSWPP marchers would provoke citizen criticism, but "there's something more important than that, and that's doing what's right."

"I can appreciate their positions but I cannot tolerate their stands," Knight said.

two meals. If an attendee wishes to take part in the series of workshops on Monday, 5 July, the cost is just $5 extra, which includes breakfast.

Every National Socialist planning to attend should make arrangements for accommodations for the weekend well in advance. Comrades are advised not to waste time and effort by looking for hotel or motel vacancies when they arrive in the Washington area, as many groups and tourists will be in town during the Fourth of July weekend, and lodging could be hard to find. Instead it is advised to let National Headquarters help out. Just write in to NHQ and specify which nights and what kind (single, double or twin double) of room you will be needing, and it will be reserved for you. But be sure to do this before 10 May. After that date NHQ will not be able to arrange accommodations.

At this stage, indications are that this will be the best Congress ever. Everybody should make a maximum effort to attend!

Founder of Party Honored at Birthplace

On 6 March, National Socialists from several states of the Midwest District gathered in Bloomington, IL for the annual commemoration of the birth of Commander Lincoln Rockwell. Two groups of ST, along with contingents of NSYM and NSWO members, formed up several blocks away from the hospital where he was born 58 years ago. ST Chief of Staff Cedric Syrdahl led the column to the site. There he gave a speech on the historic importance of Commander Rockwell, who will be forever remembered as the man who raised the banner of National Socialism in America, resurrecting the Movement from the ashes of destruction in Europe. At the conclusion of the speech a wreath was placed near the building.

Are YOU Willing to Give a Weeks Pay?

Are you willing to give a weeks pay to a cause you believe in? The future of the White race may depend on whether you are or not, because the COMMUNISTS certainly are willing to. And they are doing just that, as the reproduced article from the Daily World at right clearly shows. To date, the CPUSA has raised more than FIVE TIMES the amount we have raised in our Three-Year-Plan, and they did it in less than half the time our campaign has been going on. The Reds believe they can raise a quarter million dollars by May Day of THIS YEAR through the dedication of it's supporters. With a determination and will like that, they will certainly win, thus spelling the end of Aryan Man. UNLESS, of course, they are opposed by an organization that embodies an equal or GREATER will and determination. It is as simple as that.

Are National Socialists more determined than Communists? You can answer that question yourself. Donate a weeks pay and help your Party meet it's $88,888 goal.

California Comrade Freed; Charges Dropped in Assault Case

Duty Officer Jerry Jones, who shot and killed a deranged psychopath in defense of the Los Angeles headquarters, was released on 3 March from the L.A. county jail. He had been incarcerated for over 8 months awaiting trial before that date. Comrade Jones was found guilty of second-degree murder and sentenced to 5 years probation.

Two charges of assault with a deadly weapon have been dropped in the case of Duty Officer Clyde Bingham, who was also involved in the 15 August shooting incident. (He was locked up for over three months before being bailed out last November) However, the anti-NS prosecution in his case was not satisfied with the decision, and has charged him with "brandishing a weapon not in defense of persons or property". He is due to appear in court on May 13 to face this latest bit of harassment.

Los Angeles ST Confront Reds

On Saturday, 13 March, two teams of uniformed ST under the command of TL Martin Kerr held a demonstration in front of the Socialist Workers' Party bookstore in Pasadena.

The cowardly Trotskyites secured themselves in the safety of their building as the ST marched before them. During the one hour picket, chants of "White Power," "Communism is Jewish," and "We Want Dead Reds" were sounded by the National Socialists.

As the ST formed up to depart, four cowardly reds tried a sneak attack on the last member of the column, but were unsuccessful due to the alert actions of the ST operations officer. The teams were only momentarily detained, and marched away without further incidents.

The SWP gave a slightly different account of the incident in their rag, The Militant, which is reproduced on the next page.

That evening the L.A. Unit held a meeting which was attended by 37 National Socialists and Party sympathizers. During the gathering a battle offering was collected and 3 probationary troopers took the Stormtroop Oath.

Week's pay will keep May Day flag flying

May Day, the most important of all holidays for the working class, has become the symbol of working-class struggle for peace, liberation and social progress.

In all the years since the leaders of the Chicago Haymarket demonstrators were martyred in 1886, the First of May has been celebrated to honor those who fought throughout the world against fascism, terror and corporate tyranny, and May Day has also been the occasion to celebrate workingclass victories.

This year May Day will celebrate the liberation of the Angolan people, as May Day, 1974, celebrated the liberation of the Portuguese people and, May Day, 1975, the liberation of Vietnam.

The Daily World continues to carry high the banner of May Day.

In these weeks, preparing for May Day '78, we are counting upon our readers to help keep this banner flying.

Two New York friends of the DW from the printing trades have set an example by each contributing a full week's wages to this paper's Fund Drive. They have also raised funds from others. Their sacrifice of a week's pay reflects the spirit of May Day.

Today we issue an appeal to all our readers to follow the fine example set by these two workers. Won't you contribute a week's pay to keep your paper going?

The contracts of over six million workers will be negotiated this year, the election campaigns are in full swing, and the voice of the Daily World must be heard loud and clear.

ADD YOUR NAME to those who have already pledged one week's pay to the DW before May Day. Urge your friends and shopmates to do likewise.

Fill out the special coupon on page 2 and send it to: The Daily World, P.O. Box 544, Old Chelsea Station, New York, N.Y. 10011.

Nazis harass S. Calif. socialists

PASADENA, Calif.—Six uniformed Nazis picketed the newly opened Socialist Workers party campaign headquarters and Pathfinder Bookstore here on March 13, chanting "White Power," "We want dead reds," and "Communism is Jewish." The Nazis picketed for about an hour, then lined up in military formation. After receiving whispered instructions from the leader of the group, they turned and marched single file past the bookstore.

Manuel Barrera, a socialist campaign supporter, was standing to the side of the picket line waiting for the Nazis to leave when one of them shoved him with his elbow. Barrera moved back, further away from the line of the Nazis. The last Nazi in line struck the socialist with his elbow and knee as he passed him, then squared off with his fists up, waiting for Barrera to respond.

The socialist refused to be provoked. The Nazis then departed.

Barrera then went to the Pasadena police and filed charges against his assailant, providing the authorities with the license-plate number of the Nazi's car.

Police should have no problem identifying the Nazi, since they were given a picture of the attacker taken by a photographer.

This is not the first time Nazis have harassed Pasadena socialists.

On the evening of the bookstore's public opening, men later identified by the police as Nazis were seen writing down license-plate numbers of nearby cars parked there for the program.

The following night, air-gun pellets were shot through the office's front window.

The Nazi party has made Pasadena a focal point of its activity, exploiting the racism of the antibusing movement here.

Meanwhile, a protest meeting has been called for March 19 against Nazi violence, and broad community support for the meeting is being solicited by Pasadena socialists.

Party Subject of Documentary Film

Due to the increasing emergence of the NSWPP into the American political scene, two professional film-makers made the Party the subject of their latest movie. Titled "The California Reich," it specifically centers on activists and activities in San Francisco, Tracy and Los Angeles. It's makers claim it to be an objective documentary, but the film has many ragged edges which tend to represent the Party in a less than favorable light. Even so, the Jews have condemned it for its portrayal of National Socialists as average White Americans, the kind an audience might identify with, instead of in terms of Hollywood stereotypes.

MOVIE REVIEW

Inside Look at American Nazis

BY KEVIN THOMAS

Times Staff Writer

The very first thing one must consider about Walter F. Parkes' and Keith F. Critchlow's powerful Oscar-nominated documentary "The California Reich," which opens today at the Fox Village with a return engagement of "The Man in the Glass Booth," is whether it should have been made in the first place.

That's because the members of the burgeoning National Socialist White People's Party, who are the subjects of this profoundly disturbing film, have pretty much arrived at the point where they believe there's no such thing as legal publicity—that no matter how implicitly critical the context, there are plenty of people out there who are going to respond to their hate message. On the basis of this very direct, matter-of-fact film it's hard to disagree with them.

Indeed, "The California Reich" can be taken any way the viewer wishes. Obviously, the Nazis wouldn't be about to cooperate with anyone who would hold them up to ridicule. It took 11 months for Parkes and Critchlow, both former Stanford film students, to gain their trust and be allowed to film in Nazi homes as well as at party functions.

Yet what the Nazis apparently saw as a valuable propaganda opportunity becomes for the rational viewer a straightforward glimpse of a group of largely uneducated working-class whites so profoundly threatened socially and economically by the emergence of minorities that they have turned to Hitler worship. And this is where the value—and justification—for the film lies: to heighten our awareness of how potentially dangerous those most affected but least equipped to deal with great social upheavals can become. In their way, the Nazis are a kind of ultimate in contemporary paranoia.

Against a homey Americana background of rallies and gatherings, highlighted by a terrifying sequence dealing with a near-violent riot erupting in protest of a Nazi appearance at San Francisco State, "The California Reich's" principals emerge. They are San Francisco unit leader Alvin Vincent, family man and gun enthusiast Ken McAllister, Tracy truck drivers Paul and Wayne Raymond and Staff Sgt. Fred Sirber, whose small son already has his own Nazi uniform.

A crazed, glazed look comes to the eyes of these American Nazis when they spew out hatred of blacks and Jews and speak of certain ultimate conquest. Though they may come across as crackpots, they should be taken seriously because Nazi ranks are seemingly on the rise.

At the beginning of "The California Reich" we're told that the American Nazi Party has approximately 2,000 members in units in 25 cities, four of which are in California. At the end we're shown excerpts from editorials from the New York Times for Nov. 3 and 11, 1923.

The editorials read: "The federal officers estimate the strength of (Hitler's) forces at not over 1,000 and describe them as Boy Scouts having an outing, playing at war—persons better fitted for the comic opera stage than for a serious effort to overthrow the government."

German NS Trial

The trial of 9 National Socialist comrades in Germany during the months of January and February has concluded with the conviction of all nine, who were charged with attempting to revive National Socialism there, with the NSKG (Nationalsozialistische Kampfgruppe).

The judge, however, imposed surprisingly light sentences of fines and suspended prison terms on seven of the men, and the other two he declined to sentence at all, despite their conviction, which he had the option to do under West German law.

On the last day of the trial comrades from all over Germany came, numbering almost 100 people, to give support and protest against the persecution of National Socialists under the Bonn regime. 50 were allowed into the visitors' gallery of the courtroom, while the rest passed out leaflets outside the courthouse, denouncing all anti-NS show-trials in Germany, before being stopped by the police.

Hess Anniversary

Local units are reminded that 10 May is the 35th anniversary of the 1941 peace mission of Rudolf Hess, who flew to Britain with an offer from Adolf Hitler to end the fratricidal war in the West. Britain's alcoholic Prime Minister Churchill, a puppet for Jewish and Communist interests, imprisoned Hess without a hearing. After accusing Hess of fictitious "war crimes" at Nuremberg during the infamous orgy of Talmudic bloodlust which sent eleven National Socialist martyrs to the gallows, he was imprisoned in the fortress of Spandau, where he remains to this day.

The weekend of 8-9 May is suggested for pro-Hess demonstrations and vigils to keep the world aware of the injustice perpetrated against the 86-year-old Prisoner of Peace.

WHERE THE ACTION IS!

Washington, DC — The Seventh Congress of the National Socialist White Peoples Party will be held here over the Fourth of July weekend. Registration for this event is now underway. Every comrade should consider it his racial and patriotic duty to attend.
